. . . only way out is to fight

Fishermen's Plight May Spark Harbor Blockade

By PETER MEDWID

Commercial fishermen "fighting for survival" will "blockade" the Inner Harbor Saturday to force Ottawa to take concrete action to save the high seas fisheries.

More than 300 trollers and net fishing boats are expected to gather at Race Rocks at noon Saturday for a mass sail-in to the Inner Harbor.

"This will not be an illegal act by a bunch of hot-headed fishermen," said fisherman John King of Victoria.

"We are individuals who are scared of losing our livelihood and we are all coming to Victoria at the same time to talk.

"We will arrive here at the same time and if there is some sort of blockade it will just be the usual milling around of boats trying to find a place to berth," he added.

But there is no doubt in most fishermens' minds that little or no traffic will be moving in the Inner Harbor.

Some fishermen have contacted the CPR and Black Ball Ferry notifying them of the sail-in and suggesting that ferry times be changed or that some sailings be cancelled.

Air taxi service firms which operate out of the harbor have also been notified and fishermen suggest that flights be cancelled because of the danger involved.

For more than a year, the fishermen have been pressing the federal government for action to protect existing fish stocks on the major fishing grounds off the West Coast from huge foreign fleets and for the federal fisheries department to make an immediate start on the building of fish hatcheries.

Last winter sports and commercial fishermen combined forces and presented a petition signed by more than 30,000 people asking Ottawa to extend Canada's fish limits to the edge of the continental shelf.

"But what has all this

Postal Situation Jittery

OTTAWA (CP) — Jittery union and government negotiators enter the final rounds of postal mediation talks today as a five-day suspension of rotating postal strikes begins.

Representatives of the federal treasury board and the 27,000-member Council of Postal Unions refused to make any comment on the talks Wednesday, but sources say both sides are feeling the pressure as the weekend approaches.

Mediator Thomas O'Connor of Toronto has said the 11-month-old contract dispute will have to be settled by this weekend or talks will be broken off.

Prime Minister Trudeau said last Friday he would allow Mr. O'Connor a week to 10 days to reach a settlement.

Mr. O'Connor, a labor relations specialist appointed to mediate the dispute last week, now will make no comment on the talks after expressing optimism when they began a week ago.

The council announced earlier this week it would suspend rotating strikes, which it has staged since May, to allow for delivery of old-age pension cheques which go in the mail today and Friday.

The postal workers, who now earn an average hourly wage of $3.06, are asking for a 58-cents-an-hour increase over two years, a 9.5-per-cent boost in each year.

The government has offered 47 cents an hour over three years, a 5.9-per-cent increase.

MASS ARRESTS followed third night of clashes between youths and police at Birmingham, Mich., Wednesday night. Youths were ordered to lay on the ground before being taken to police station; others, in right background, were searched for weapons. (AP Wirephoto).

DETROIT TEENS RAMPAGE

ROYAL OAK, Mich. (AP) — Two Detroit suburbs are under indefinite states of emergency today, following three nights of rock- and bottle-throwing rampages by teen-agers.

At least 400 youths were arrested Wednesday night after a clash with police in Royal Oak and the adjacent suburb of Birmingham, said Assistant Police Chief James Soul of Royal Oak.

That brings the three-day arrest total to more than 500. Most were arrested for curfew violation, although Soul said several arrests were made on suspicion of narcotics possession.

PARTS OF WHITE PAPER REWRITTEN

Mining Industry Gets Tax Break

Heavy Pressure Brings Results

Times News Services

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister E. J. Benson has yielded to heavy pressure from the provinces and mining companies and has rewritten parts of his tax-change proposals in favor of mines.

He announced three revisions Wednesday night to his original tax white paper of last November that would have the effect of giving mining companies an easier tax ride than first outlined.

In a letter sent to his provincial counterparts in advance of a federal-provincial conference next month, Benson proposed:

- A reduction in the federal rate of corporation tax on mining companies to 25 per cent from the 40 per cent applied to other companies. The provinces at present collect varying additional cuts of corporation tax ranging between 10 and 13 per cent.
- A broadened definition of the types of investment that would count towards calculation of tax concessions that a mining company could earn by exploring and developing resources. The so-called depletion allowances — $1 of tax-free profit for every $3 spent on development — could also be earned by building new ore-refining facilities in Canada, even when located off the minesite.
- An extension of the original proposal to accord depletion allowances to costs of buildings and equipment on

U.K. Police Raid Arms Caches

LONDON (AP)—Police made more than 100 co-ordinated raids throughout England during the night, rounding up weapons believed destined for Northern Ireland and the Middle East.

The sweep, which began at exactly 7 p.m. Wednesday, was the biggest dragnet in British police history. More than half the targets were in the London area, but the rest were spread from Cornwall to the Scottish border.

Several men were arrested. No estimate of the amount of arms seized was available yet, but it appeared to be considerable. One room at the Croydon police station was stacked like an arsenal with machine-guns, rifles, grenades and ammunition boxes.

The sources said Scotland Yard suspects an effort is under way to stockpile weapons and ammunition to prolong the Protestant-Catholic strife in Northern Ireland. It is believed that underworld gangs were trying to profit from the street fighting by supplying arms at high prices.

The operation had been in preparation for a week, ready to be set in motion by a coded teletype message from Scotland Yard's London headquarters.

CAPTURED NARWHALS COMPLETE AIR TRIP

VANCOUVER (CP) — Five narwhals, captured in the chilly waters of the Arctic Ocean by the Vancouver Public Aquarium's northern expedition Sunday, arrived in the city late Wednesday after a 19-hour flight from Milne Inlet on Baffin Island.

The narwhals, two full-grown females and three calves of undetermined sex, were put into the research pool in Vancouver's Stanley Park.

Liberal leader Dr. Pat McGeer, who accompanied the expedition, said the party took nearly 13 hours to get the whales into the aircraft for the flight down.

McGeer said the narwhals were in "excellent condition" on their arrival here. They were packed in ice and hosed down continuously during the long trip, he said.

Military Bases To Be Phased Out

OTTAWA (CP) — The defence department announced today that its bases at Rivers and Gimli in Manitoba will be phased out of military operations over the next year.

In a press statement, Defence Mnister Leo Cadieux said he decided to close the bases in view of the reductions in the forces, a change in priorities and the fixed defence budget.

Affected by the closings are about 170 civilians and 300 military personnel at Rivers and 200 civilians and 300 military at Gimli.

Qualified civilians at both bases who are offered and accept positions at other defence establishments or elsewhere in the public service will be reimbursed for reasonable expenses if the new job requires moving.

Armed forces personnel will be posted to vacant positions in other units.

TWO KILLED BY LIGHTNING

Storm Hits Quebec Area

MONTREAL (CP) — A violent storm which carved through Montreal and much of southern and eastern Quebec Wednesday killed two persons and caused extensive damage to trees, buildings and hydro lines.

Sylvie Lalonde, 11, of Montreal, and Delphis Philibert, 59, of Matane 200 miles northeast of Quebec City, were killed when struck by lightning.

The girl was riding her bicycle on an access road adjacent to the Trans-Canada Highway near Montreal. Philibert was struck while on his farm.

TRAPPED IN CAR

Jean Wachniuc, 48, was taken to hospital with a broken leg after a freak accident which resulted in his car being washed off an overpass. His car tore 40 feet of railing off the overpass. The railing fell, damaging seven cars parked in a municipal lot below.

There were reports of damage to buildings in the Eastern Townships and a roof was reported blown off a house near Drummondville, 90 miles east of Montreal.

A live power line fell on a car near downtown Montreal, causing a fire and trapping occupants briefly. Firefighters and Hydro-Quebec workers freed them but the man driving the vehicle was treated for shock.

Downed power lines and lightning caused a succession of power failures in the central and north sections of the city and throughout the western part of Montreal Island.

ANOTHER BIRTHDAY

It's one year today since Premier Bennett's Social Credit government humiliated its opposition parties by winning 38 seats in the 55-seat legislature in what was supposed to be a close election. The New Democrats won 12 seats and the Liberals five.

Invasion of Canada Already on Paper?

OTTAWA (CP) — Diplomatic correspondence justifying the NATO military occupation of its own allied countries is already deposited with U.S. ambassadors in all the NATO countries, former Greek leader Andreas Papandreou said Wednesday.

In a speech to the congress of the World Association of World Federalists, Papandreou said messages to be used by NATO when it decides to occupy a member country have been drawn up and readied for dispatch.

"What is missing is the date and the signature."

But cabinet ministers — even prime ministers — often do not know the details of the plans for invasion, he said.

He did not know of specific plans for invasion in Canada, he told reporters after the speech.

A Canadian external affairs department spokesman said in Ottawa the government has no knowledge of any military occupation plans by NATO.

Jarring to Continue Mid-East Meetings

Diplomatic sources anticipated that Jarring will continue his discussions, begun Tuesday, with Egypt's UN ambassador, Mohamed H. El-Zayat, while Tekoah is in Jerusalem for consultations with his government.

El-Zayyat conferred for 45 minutes with the UN special envoy Wednesday and was briefed on the results of Jarring's two meetings with Tekoah Tuesday.

The sources expect Tekoah, who left Tuesday evening, to be back in New York early next week with comprehensive instructions on Israel's position in the talks. Although he was named deputy delegate to Foreign Minister Abba Eban, Tekoah is expected to represent Israel in the early rounds of indirect talks with Egypt and Jordan.

STILL AVAILABLE

Abdul Hamid Sharaf, Jordanian ambassador to the United States, also met Jarring for a second time Wednesday, but he later returned to his post in Washington. He left word, however, that he is available for further consultations at a moment's notice.

Sharaf is standing in for Jordanian UN Ambassador Muhammad H. El-Farra, who will not be back in New York from consultations in Amman until early next month.

The sources suggested that these first few meetings under Jarring are being used to establish the basic positions of the three governments.

WOMEN'S LIBERATION WAR CRY

'Don't Cook Dinner . . . Starve a Rat Today'

NEW YORK (CP) — Shouting "Come on, sister, join us" to less-demonstrative female spectators, thousands of women paraded down Fifth Avenue Wednesday in the biggest of United States-wide demonstrations to get women "out of the kitchen, out of the house — out from under."

Some joined, while others jeered as the steady stream of placard-carrying, slogan-chanting women activists marched down the broad asphalt of one of the world's leading centres of feminine fashion.

Police estimated there were more than 20,000 marchers and 20,000 onlookers, but leaders of the demonstration for women's liberation said there were 50,000 marchers and 30,000 spectators.

The sponsors, including the National Organization of Women (NOW), called the demonstration a "strike for equality" and urged women across the country to stay home from work and to stop performing menial household chores.

There was no way to determine how many husbands ate dinner from a can Wednesday night.

Old, young, black and white women shouted for an end to male domination and the "slavery" of women. Most wore the liberation movement's emblem of a clenched fist inside the female sex symbol.

Many of them obviously not wearing bras, which the liberationists consider symbols of sexual inferiority imposed by outdated social standards, the marchers chanted:

"Women of the world, unite."

"Free our sisters, free ourselves—power to the people."

They carried banners reading:

"Death to the male power structure."

"I love my husband, I love those nights, I also love my daily rights."

GOT A PARADE PERMIT?

EL PASO, Tex. (UPI) — El Paso Herald Post reporter Jane Pemberton reported to work Wednesday wearing a pants suit and set out on her daily courthouse beat.

"A hippie sidled up to me and muttered in my ear: 'Bitch.'

"A lawyer came up and asked me whether I wanted the law on assault changed. It is simple assault to sock a man but aggravated assault to strike a woman.

"A police captain asked me whether I had a parade permit."

Vietnam 'Copter Crash Kills 32 U.S. Troops

SAIGON (AP) — Thirty-two Americans were believed dead today in one of the worst helicopter crashes of the Vietnam war, but the United States command announced that U.S. battlefield casualties last week dropped to their lowest level in 4½ years.

The weekly casualty report said 52 Americans were killed in action last week and another 358 were wounded. A spokesman said it was the lowest casualty total since the week ending March 5, 1966, when 61 Americans were killed and 177 wounded.

Communist and South Vietnamese casualties also were down. The U.S. command said 1,055 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong were killed last week, the lowest in more than three years, while the Saigon government reported 247 of its troops killed, the lowest in a month, and 745 wounded.

The American report did not include the casualties in the shooting down Wednesday of the 50-foot-long 14-ton Chinook helicopter. Two bodies were recovered, seven men were injured, and 30 other Americans were listed as missing and presumed dead.

The big U.S. Army helicopter was hit by a rocket-grenade as it was coming in for a landing at Fire Base Judy, in the northern part of the country. It was transporting troops being withdrawn from Kham Duc, a base 13 miles east of the Laotian border which combined troops forces abandoned Wednesday.

BLADE KILLED TWO

The chopper crashed just outside the artillery base, spraying wreckage in several directions. A rotor blade hurtled into the base, killing two soldiers stationed there and wounding five others.

There were 32 Americans aboard the twin-rotor transport, and only the co-pilot and one passenger among the Americans, an infantryman, were rescued. Both were injured. Late today no word have been received on recovery of missing bodies.

In the worst helicopter crash of the war, 41 Americans were killed on Jan. 8, 1969, when a CH-53 troop carrier crashed into a mountain. On May 7, 1969, two Americans and 38 South Vietnamese troops were killed when a CH-47 hit a tree while taking off near Khe Sanh.

The 52 Americans killed in action last week was the lowest death toll since the week ending Dec. 3, 1966, when 44 U.S. troops died on the battlefield. It was the first time since then American battlefield deaths have gone below the 60 mark.

The official summary listed a total of 43,418 U.S. troops killed in action and 287,216 wounded in Indochina since Jan. 1, 1961.

The Viet Cong and North Vietnamese casualties reported for last week raised to 667,231 the number of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops reported killed since Jan. 1, 1961.

THE WEATHER

A fast-moving system coming from the west will bring increasing cloud tonight and Friday morning.

The weather office at Victoria International Airport is predicting sunshine again for Friday afternoon.

A high Friday of 68 degrees is forecast.

Winds will be southwest 15 to 20 mph over the city and west 25 mph with occasional stronger gusts over the Juan de Fuca Strait.

. . . TAX BREAK

new mine so that such costs as a major expansion of an existing mine would also qualify.

TAXES MAY BE UP

Taxes could still be heavier than at present once final tax-change legislation becomes fully effective on mines five years after enactment. However, the revisions mean that the white paper's proposed withdrawal of present tax concessions for mines — including the present three-year tax holiday for new mines and automatic tax-free depletion allowances —

WOULD BE LESS SEVERE

Using rough figures that would be applicable to Ontario and Quebec — where provincial corporation tax is 12 per cent and mining tax is 15 per cent — Benson calculated that his revisions would bring maximum combined taxes on mines into line wth the rate appled to other industries.

Under his example, a mining company that pays 44½ per cent of its profits in combined federal and provincial taxes at present would have been liable for just over 59 per cent tax under the original white paper proposals — if the company qualified for no depletion allowance.

With the revsion, the same company would pay 52 per cent tax, provided the province did not raise its corporation or mining tax rates.

The tax rate would drop to just under 40 per cent if the company qualified for maximum depletion allowance.

Benson suggested the revisions were designed particularly for mining ventures that would not normally have been able to earn depletion concessions by further explorations — iron, potash, salt and the oilsands of Alberta.

INCENTIVES 'SHAMEFUL'

Max Saltsman (NDP-Waterloo), his party's leading member of the Commons committee studying the government's tax law proposals, said today Benson's new plan for mining company incentives is "shameful and cowardly."

The minister, Saltsman said at his home in Galt, Ont., in a telephone interview, "is undermining the work of the committee, and probably going against the general wishes of the committee."

Saltsman said incentives to the mining ndustry should be curtailed further, rather than extended.

"By emphasizing the resource industries, we have been short-sighted in not providing for the creation of thousands of jobs in secondary industry," he said.

Saltsman also said Benson has set "a terrible double standard" in dealing with changes in his white paper proposals.

URGING EXEMPTIONS

Since last November, Saltsman said, the opposition parties in Parliament have been urging the government to introduce higher exemptions now for personal incomes. The higher exemptions proposed in the white paper would do little more than allow existing exemptions to catch up with inflation.

But Benson has refused to deal piecemeal with the personal income tax, while now changing the tax proposals for mining companies, Saltsman said.

The NDP financial critic said he will return to Ottawa next week for committee meetings, and the committee should complete its report on the white paper within a month.

In Toronto, a mining industry spokesman said the exact implications of the proposed revisions must be examined carefully.

John Bonus, managing director of the Mining Association of Canada, said he is unsure of the results of "putting the onus on the provinces" in future tax incentive plans for the mining industry.

"I'm not too surprised about the changes. What did surprise me was the proposals that were originally written into the white paper."

He said the government now is suggesting that the base for depletion allowances for mining companies will be enlarged.

CONDEMNED PROPOSALS

The finance minister told reporters that provincial governments had been "next to unanimous" in condemning the original white-paper proposals for mines.

Referring to claims that some potential mining ventures had been stalled because of doubts about the eventual tax burden they would face, Benson mentioned development of Alberta's Athabasca oil sands and "several projects" besides.

The revised proposals were announced because "it is urgent that some decision be made in order that major developments will not be held up," he said.

Benson said he did not believe the same urgency applied to other industries, although he did not rule out similar revisions to his tax proposals before fnal legislation is presented to Parliament.

Present target for enforcement of tax-reform legslation is Jan. 1, 1972 — a year later than originally planned. Main points of the mining-tax changes would come fully into force five years after.

Troop Pullout Guaranteed, Says Agnew

SAIGON (AP) — Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew arrived in South Vietnam today for his second visit of the year and said that the success of the Cambodian venture has ensured that United States troop withdrawals will proceed as planned.

"We will go forward with it," Agnew told correspondents accompanying him on the flight across the South China Sea from Formosa. The present program calls for U.S. forces in Vietnam to be reduced to 284,000 men by next April. There now are 403,700 U.S. troops in Vietnam.

The vice-president spent most of the afternoon in conference with President Nguyen Van Thieu and Vice-President Nguyen Cao Ky, reviewing the progress of the war in South Vietnam and neighboring Cambodia. They last met when Agnew was here at the beginning of the year.

Agnew was maintaining a fast pace onhis current Asian visit, with 48 hours in South Korea, 24 in Nationalist China and now 24 or less in South Vietnam. He goes to Thailand Friday, and although he said again today he would not visit Cambodia, officials in Phnom Penh were making plans for him to stop there for lunch en route to Bangkok.

accomplished? We tired to do it the way everyone says, and we've got nowhere. They (Ottawa) just give us the same old story of thanking us for our efforts, how nice it is to see concerned groups stepping forward and then doing nothing," said one fisherman who did not want to be identified.

King and Gerald Butterfield, of Bamfield, both said the fight for survival of the fishing industry is more than a fight by the commercial fishermen.

"It's affecting everyone in the province, the sports fishermen and the tourist industry because if you don't have the fish ... there is nothing for anyone," said Butterfield.

When notified of the mass sail-in and the likely blocking of the harbor, Larry Slaght of the Department of Transport today said that he is still studying the situation and possible dangers involved.

The fishermen have also been trying to contact federal Fisheries Minister Jack Davis in an attempt to set up a meeting on Sunday in Victoria.

A spokesman in Davis' Vancouver office said the minister is vacationing until tonight or early Friday on Bowen Island, in Howe Sound, and would not be available until then.

The fishermen stressed that the sail-in was not connected with any organization or group.

The Pacific Trollers Association after an emergency meeting in Victoria Wednesday issued a statement saying that "we are in no way involved or responsible for any illegal action on the part of any person or persons and that no person involved in such action may hold themselves out as representatives of the association."

Patient Time Reduced By Jubilee

A new system of ward monitoring has helped reduce by about one day the average time a patient stays in Royal Jubilee Hospital.

As a result more patients have been admitted.

Dr. A. C. Pickles, executive director of the hospital, said Wednesday that the average length of stay during the first seven months of this year was 9.94 days compared with 10.84 days during the same period in 1969.

Admissions were 10,960 patients compared with 9,994 during the first seven months of 1969.

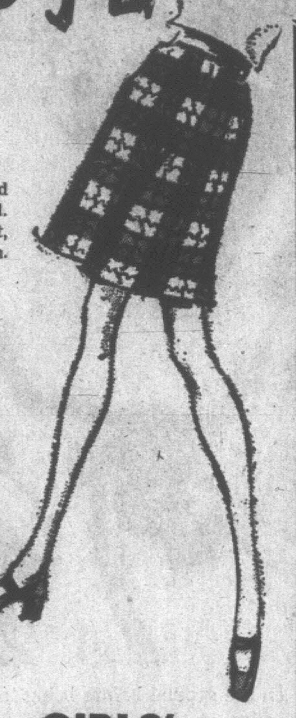

Under the new ward monitoring system, said Pickles, a member of the medical staff patrols each ward and checks to see if any patient is staying beyond the usual recovery period for that diagnosis.

GAGLARDI OUSTER ASKED

Welfare Protest Quiet

By PETER McNELLY

Soon 19 had gathered. Two children held their mothers' hands.

The signs began to pack together, rising. "Out with Gaglardi." "Decent work for decent wages." "Bring welfare rates up to the standards of the Economic Council report."

The messages were familiar, but they took new life outside in the sunshine. The people bearing them were out of work or poor. More than 5,000 people like them are out of work in Victoria, according to Canada Manpower.

The demonstrators were mostly members of the Victoria Citizens' Committee on Unemployment and the Low Income Group.

★ ★ ★

"What's going onr" said a man in a yellow work suit to a woman walking with him.

"It's something about welfare," she said.

"Want to help them demonstrate?"

She laughed. By now a crowd was gathering. Not a big crowd, not even an unfriendly crowd. The demonstrators were getting excited.

"Let's go," said Frank Cox of the unemployment committee. "What time is it? Is it 12:30 yet? Hey, it's time, let's go."

They started marching toward Government Street at 12:33 Wednesday afternoon. A nearby policeman seemed to notice nothing extraordinary.

Tourists paused on street-corners to watch the marchers. Some unwrapped 35 millimetre cameras and began shooting. The policeman stopped, noticed, and crossed Government to the opposite side from the demonstrators.

★ ★ ★

Cox and Walter Olszewski of the Low Income Group started to distribute leaflets to passersby. The leaflet was a summary of demands they were later to present to the offices of the Provincial Alliance of Businessmen and Canada Manpower.

"Come on, take it," Olszewski said to a passing woman who did not choose to stop. "You must be a Scored."

The policeman began to take notes. Secretaries stared out their windows. Regional welfare director for Vancouver Island J. A. Mollberg leaned out his office window and watched.

"Hello, Mr. Mollberg," said Olszewski.

Cox said the group would ask for Gaglardi's immediate dismissal, doubled welfare rates and old age pensions or a guaranteed annual income.

They would also ask for federal and provincial work projects at decent wages, equal employment opportunities for women, removal of fees and living expenses for students who were unemployed this summer, a freeze on immigration until everyone in Canada has a job and an end to sale of unprocessed Canadian resources to foreign countries.

"Join us," Olszewski said to a passerby.

★ ★ ★

"I can't, I'm an American tourist."

"Well, you're in Canada now; join us."

"They look pretty well organized," said the policeman on the bike. "They don't need a parade permit as long as they stay on the sidewalk and keep moving. There doesn't seem to be any need for us here."

Cox and four others saw Ron Price with the PAB while the rest waited outside, They weren't gone five minutes.

Cox said he gave Price the brief and invited him to a public meeting to discuss unemployment problems as well as the contents of the brief.

Following the meeting with Price, the group marched to Canada Manpower's office at 1415 Vancouver and met manager George Bevis.

Bevis received their brief and the same invitation to attend a public meeting. Cox did not ask Bevis to discuss the brief before he had had time to read it.

Bevis told the group he wanted to meet with the executive of the unemployed citizens' committee at a later date. He thanked them for their presentation.

Cox said he considered the march a success and was looking forward to meeting Bevis in a few weeks.

"This is not any great thing in itself, but it makes it known that there are people who aren't going to take it sitting down. Marches put pressure on the higher-ups and force officials to stop passing the buck."

New NDP Leader Barrett Refuses To Hang Up on Telephone Company

By BRUCE YEMEN
Times Legislative Reporter

It may never be remembered as the election that kept British Columbia safe for the B.C. Telephone Company.

But there is a theory about the Aug. 27, 1969, election which closely links everybody's favorite and only telephone company with the rout of Tom Berger and the New Democratic Party he led so briefly.

Current NDP Leader Dave Barrett may be one of the subscribers to the belief that the voters started hanging up on Berger after he got hung up on B.C. Tel.

A year later, it all seems ironic, because the question of who should own the telephone company is hardly even a side-issue in the B.C. political arena.

Hours after being elected NDP leader in April, 1969, Berger was apparently taken by surprise by a question at a press conference. Would he, as premier, take over B.C. Tel?

The answer was yes. It wasn't surprising, because it was old party policy. But it was surprisingly blunt.

Some observers felt he had committed the unpardonable political sin of being specific when he could have been vague.

●

Premier Bennett went on to exploit the "Marxian-Socialist threat" to private enterprise, hammering away at the "you can't trust the socialists to stop at B.C. Tel" theme.

If Berger made a mistake, Barrett appeared to have learned from it.

The morning after winning the NDP leadership early in June this year, Barrett was asked the same question by the same reporter (Alex Young of the Vancouver Province.)

"My concern," replied Barrett, "is that the premier (Bennett) would do it first."

If Barrett had rehearsed it, he couldn't have looked more bored with a question.

"It's part of our program but it isn't a priority item," he went on.

"We are not interested in economic manoeuvres for their sake alone. We are interested in creating an economy that serves the people."

Then he was off and running about how Premier Bennett campaigned on a no-takeover of B.C. Electric Co. policy in 1960 and promptly took ot over in 1961.

Somehow, he worked in a comparison between Bennett's Columbia River Treaty with the U.S. and the sale of Manhattan Island by the Indians.

Rather than try to bring Barrett back to the topic, reporters went on to another question. Barrett had passed a test.

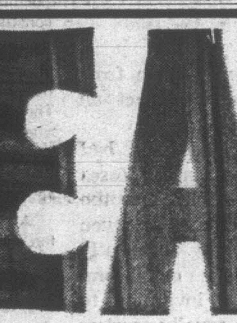

●

It wasn't a major test, of course, because in non-election years the takover of the privately-owned B.C. Tel is about as irrelevant an issue as anyone could dredge up.

It's fairly easy sailing these days for Barrett on the whole issue of public ownership of industries, because as leader of the party he has asked for a reassessment of all party policy.

It's a safe bet he'll do his best to influence policy toward his non-doctrinaire line of thinking. He has already alarmed the radical "waffle" group in the party and hard-line labor union elements with his moderate stands on some issues.

Back to the Barricades

WHEN SAANICH ALDERMAN Leslie Passmore says that Saanich has one of the best commercial sign bylaws in British Columbia, that is an invitation for the public of that municipality to line up to repel another of the periodic attacks on this valuable protective legislation.

Those who framed the bylaw a few years ago did a good job on it, and Saanich has reaped the benefit ever since. People in other municipalities have regarded it with envy, particularly in Victoria where the sign wars of a few years ago resulted in an improvement but only after the new city bylaw had been watered down four times under the high-priced attacks of the commercial sign industry.

The current Saanich confrontation involves an advertiser who asks for a slight revision in permitted sizes in order to accommodate a mass-produced sign which is 13 square feet larger than the legal area. The fallacy of the argument lies, of course, in the fact that an extension of the measurements for one applicant can only be an extension for all, and standards which are set up to be whittled a little bit at a time are no standards worth having.

The old belief that a bigger sign attracts more attention is valid only when it is not counteracted by other signs equal to or larger than the first. It is necessary to shout only when everyone else is shouting too. And Saanich has wisely curbed the escalation of advertising signs by setting reasonable maximums and sticking to them. No one is at a disadvantage compared with his competitors. The beneficiaries are the public who can get the advertiser's message with a minimum of oral or visual noise.

When Alderman Noel says that the Saanich sign bylaw "has gone a bit too far" and that it is "a little biased", he should explain exactly where far enough is and by how much Saanich has exceeded this mark. If the bylaw is "biased" it is biased in favor of the people of the municipality whose environment the sign displayers use to advertise their wares. Does Alderman Noel have any objection to that?

And although Alderman Newberry says he "can't see why Saanich should be so different from the rest of the country," there are a lot of other people who can see that rejecting conformity to the garish practices of many other communities is a pretty good stand to take. Many of those other communities admire Saanich for what it has had the courage to do. Let it have the courage to keep on doing it.

Basic Requirements

EACH YEAR THE FEDERAL Auditor General reports to Parliament, and the public, on irregularities, waste, incompetence, chicanery and fraud which have been discovered in the public accounts over the preceding twelve months. Each year there is a slight flurry of public attention — a blend of amusement and disgust. Parliament accepts the report, various members defend or reject it, and the matter slips into history. Rarely are any major changes made, principles re-stated, or wrongdoers punished.

In the last issue of Weekend Magazine a number of incidents extracted from the Auditor General's reports over the years were recalled — a sorry tale of deliberate theft of government property and money, misuse of public funds, sloppy judgment, and callous disregard for the public interest. The conclusion of anyone reading the magazine article on the Auditor General's reports is that at any given time, regardless of the government in power, a certain percentage of the people employed in civil or military positions by the government are incompetent, dishonest or both. They are a disgrace to the service they represent, an affront to the vast majority of honest, diligent public servants, and a standing reproach to any administration which permits them to flourish, conceals their depredations, or fails to expel them from the public payrolls and exact all possible recompense.

The actual incidents are bad enough in themselves, in the losses they cause to the public. But the intangible effects may be even farther reaching. For apparently undetected dishonesty or incompetence provides an invitation to other persons to be equally careless of their reputations and the nation's good, and a cynical, distrustful attitude on the part of the public toward government can only erode those qualities which are necessary for the proper functioning of a democratic system.

One remedy would be to order that the Auditor General's report would be followed by another authoritative one detailing the steps which had been taken to ensure that the same mistakes would not happen again, by getting rid of offenders, improving the systems of spending, enforcing fool-proof checks on all operations.

It may be argued that a few millions of dollars here and there may not be important enough to warrant a great upheaval. But the damage done to the democratic structure must also be reckoned — and we live in times when public displeasure is increasingly given active demonstration. Surely honesty and horse sense in the public services should be basic requirements at all levels.

The Ties That Bind

IN THESE TIMES OF PROTEST, women — far more than men — are asserting their rights in regard to wearing apparel. Ladies reject the midi skirt without a second thought while men still agonize over whether to have two or three buttons on their blue serge suit.

Male muteness on the subject of dress may be partially due to the fact that they are choking on their neckties. Once the symbol of white collar prestige, the tie has become as irrelevant to many men as the appendix.

Defection has even reached the conservative bastions of Wall Street where one of the largest and most respected brokers is quoted in Time Magazine as saying "by next summer we will all be wearing turtlenecks around here." Or as a perplexed philosopher once asked, "Why should men have to wear a knot around their neck—as if they are preparing to be hanged?"

Neckties originated in the neck cloths that men folded and wrapped around their necks. By the mid-1800s narrow string ties, knotted bow ties and ascots had replaced the more elaborate cravat. Around 1870 the wider four-in-hand followed by striped neckties became popular. Since the turn of the century ties have varied in width but the tightness of the knot remained sacrosanct. And so will the ties that bind, given Western man's fondness for sameness—unless of course militant women decide to wear ties en masse.

Quebec's Trade Barrier Against Canada

ALL governments bewail the limitations of the Canadian Common Market but most governments at one time or another have attempted to limit it further. The Quebec government at the moment is dedicated to the position that Quebecers should eat Quebec eggs. Owing to the inadequate efforts of Quebec hens not all the eggs on Quebec tables are demonstrably of Quebec origin. Eggs entering from provinces such as Manitoba however are re-baptized by FEDCO (the Quebec Federation of Egg Producers) so that a citizen may be free of guilt feelings so long as he conscientiously avoids bootleg products. This, to say the least of it, is a peculiar situation — so odd that the constitutional status of the egg is now a subject of study by the courts.

Western

The federal government earnestly hopes that the problem will go away. The thought in Ottawa is that if and when the national marketing legislation passes, interest in Quebec City will shift from the provincial to the all-Canadian egg.

At present the prospects seem none too encouraging, FEDCO owes its powers to provincial legislation which took effect in May and was manifestly a response to the dissatisfaction of Quebec egg producers. These powers are considerable and may have had sufficient effect to persuade Quebec ministers that the experiment from their standpoint is worthwhile.

FEDCO under authority of the legislation sets quotas and prices and so far as possible controls the market. It has various instruments of control among them the egg-grading stations through which all eggs are supposed to pass. There is no problem so far as the Quebec farmer is concerned. But the province is not self-sufficient in eggs having in the past drawn approximately 35 per cent of its supply from outside sources especially Manitoba, Ontario and Nova Scotia.

It would be clearly unconstitutional to interpose physical barriers to shipments at the provincial borders. FEDCO's powers are derived entirely from Quebec, none have been delegated to it by the federal government. It has attempted to sign up outside suppliers but more importantly has licensed distributors. Some of the egg pipelines are fairly easily blocked since it was the practice of many producers to ship to brokers in Quebec province. Others have proved far more difficult because of direct arrangements between producer groups and large Quebec buyers such as chain stores.

Egg Bootlegging

According to Ottawa's information there is a good deal of egg bootlegging from Ontario into Quebec. (It seems regrettable that a term so derogatory is applied to persons who according to the general understanding of these matters are defending the constitution in the course of their normal business.) Nevertheless, FEDCO's partial success has apparently had three results: it has drastically curtailed marketings of Manitoba and Ontario eggs in Quebec; it has increased Quebec egg prices (although FEDCO is apparently far behind in payments to producers elsewhere who have been shut out of the Quebec market.)

Obviously FEDCO's purpose is to create a separate and higher market in Quebec thus encouraging the expansion of Quebec production. It may be imperfect protection but according to sources here, it has already encouraged other producers to look for similar action in their fields. Further fragmentation of the Common Market supposedly guaranteed by the constitution would be a very serious development.

Challenged by Court

FEDCO has successfully turned back one court challenge — an attempt by the Quebec food council representing wholesalers and retailers to obtain a writ of prohibition against regulations depriving them of their established supply sources. Presumably it succeeded (although the case is being appealed) because of the limited character of its operations.

Still there can be no certainty in these circumstances that Quebec will see the error of its ways and the superior merits of national marketing if and when the federal bill becomes law. If Ottawa is disappointed in this hope the obvious recourse is to the Supreme Court of Canada, which alone can ascertain with finality whether or not the province is seeking by circuitous means to do what it could not do directly within the constitution.

The U.S. Looks at National Security and Oil Imports

THE Nixon administration has introduced a new and potentially-important modification into its policy of restricting imports of Canadian crude oil by mandatory quota. There is now the possibility that, under certain conditions, Canadian oil will flow into the U.S. at levels well in excess of what is permitted by quota. At the same time, the administration has put aside a far-reaching blueprint for oil imports under which Canada would have been assured virtually free access to the U.S. market. A system of tariffs, from which Canadian oil would have been exempted, would have supplanted the quotas which currently limit the U.S. intake of oil from overseas, as well as from Canada.

Traynor

Both moves were revealed by the administration Monday in connection with an oil policy review which laid heavy stress on the mounting problems arising from disruption of Middle Eastern oil supplies and from new internal pressures affecting the demand for oil. In the face of power shortages, there is an urgent need for more fuels, but this is complicated by revulsion against the pollution caused by oil and other energy sources.

Procedure Alterations

In a letter to Mr. Nixon made public Monday, Gen. George Lincoln, the president's chief adviser on oil policy, revealed alterations in the procedure for importing foreign oil under the quota system. To signify authorization to import, refiners are allotted tickets, which have previously applied only to overseas oil, but which can now be used to import oil from Canada.

Normally, the refiners would be able to get oil from other continents more cheaply, and would have no interest in applying the tickets to Canada. But the net effect of the turmoil in the Middle East has been to boost the price of ship-borne oil well above both the Canadian and domestic U.S. prices.

If this situation continues, import tickets may increasingly be used to import Canadian oil into the U.S. Midwest, where fuel hunger is becoming more and more pronounced. Officials here said they could not give definite estimates of the scope for converting tickets, but said a sizable swing toward Canadian oil by refiners could result in imports "substantially" above what is permitted by the quota (395,000 barrels a day east of the Rockies).

The final say on such a swing rests with the Oil Import Appeals Board, which must rule that increased imports from Canada are necessary to allay hardship among refiners. Under a separate provision and in accordance with the hardship criterion, the board has in recent weeks authorized imports something short of 12,000 barrels a day. The board could grant further concessions of this type up to a total of somewhat over 30,000 barrels a day.

The modifications to the quota on Canadian oil reflect U.S. awareness of the dependability and convenience of Eastern and other overseas oils. This considerably reduces the impact of the decision not to proceed with the tariff scheme, with its great opportunities for Canada. Though the import system will remain, there will be continuing consideration of liberalized Canadian imports, in the view of qualified observers here.

As outlined in the report of a presidential task force on oil, headed by former Labor Secretary George Schultz, the tariff scheme presupposed a broad agreement on energy policy between the U.S. and Canada. It was this that first prompted Canadian suspicions of U.S. intentions on energy questions generally. The improbability of an easy energy agreement, as indicated by the hostile Canadian attitude, may have contributed to the decision to abandon the tariff scheme.

The official reasons for the decision were different, however. In his letter — which the president endorsed — Gen. Lincoln cited uncertainties as to the availability of Alaskan oil, on environmental complications, and on misgivings about the stability of overseas oil supplies.

Severe Supply Problem

"New estimates indicate we have a more severe problem than we estimated six months ago in preventing an unwise dependence on relatively insecure sources of supply," Gen. Lincoln wrote.

The consolidation of the quota system is in accordance with much congressional thinking, as reflected in the actions of the powerful ways and means committee of the House of Representatives. The committee incorporated into its controversial protectionist trade bill a provision to freeze the oil import quota system.

Under the new circumstances of supply and demand, there is great emphasis on stimulation of domestic production to prevent reliance on insecure foreign sources.

There was more than a hint of this in Gen. Lincoln's letter to the president. "We ... face the growing danger of not having adequate supplies from reasonably secure sources — a vast problem which cannot be separated from our overall energy policy. National security must be the central consideration in working out that over-all policy."

Looking Back

From the Times of August 27, 1910:

The Conservative press of Canada seems to be doubtful as to whether British Columbia Premier Richard McBride ought to be criticized or commended for the liberality of mind he had displayed in receiving Prime Minister Wilfrid Laurier. But it is terribly disturbed in mind at the evident enthusiasm with which Sir Wilfrid has been received in the West, and there is little question as to the terms in which it would express its opinion.

Letters

City Waterfront

Through you I would like to bring to the attention of His Worship, the Mayor, and the Victoria city aldermen, my views on the proposed arrangements that appear to be developing for the Wharf Street Waterfront adjacent to Bastion Square.

I am most concerned that this development may be allowed to proceed without a detailed plan having been submitted by the developer. I understand that the only commitment Reid Properties have undertaken, is to build a four to six million dollar structure which will consist of three floors of automobile parking with a high-rise apartment dwelling above this. I understand the twenty-five million dollar figure is a suggestion and not a concrete proposal by the developer.

My concern is that the Inner Harbor area will be developed without any over-all comprehensive plan, that private developments such as this will effectively wall-off public access to the waterfront. It seems to me that this fine and natural site will be a great recreational asset in the future if arrangements are made now for permanent public use of the waterfront in this area.

I am also concerned that the gasoline storage tanks in the Inner Harbor area are unsuitably located so that they pose a fire hazard and pollution threat should any shift occur to the relatively unstable foundations on which they are sited.

I know from discussion from many friends and colleagues that these concerns are shared by many of the citizens of our fine city.—R. T. Hosie, M.D., 2911 Seaview Road.

Job Well Done

Since I have not, as yet, seen any mention in your paper of the Passing Out Ceremony of the Summer Militia program which was held on Wednesday, August 19, may I make the following comments.

The boys who took part in the Summer Militia have worked extremely hard. They have had to be up by 6 a.m. every morning, clean and polished for inspection at 8 a.m., and after a long day's drill, have had to work late into the evening, washing and ironing uniforms and polishing their boots. There has been little time for play. The results of their endeavours were very evident on Wednesday. Their marching and drill were done in a most professional manner.

I have attended many military inspections, but never before seen the inspecting officer appear to be so interested and to stop and talk with so many of the ranks. In his short speech, the inspecting colonel remarked how "pleasantly surprised" he was, and I feel he was most sincere. He encouraged the boys to continue their education regardless of their future aims in life.

These lads have been no problem to anyone this summer. They have learned, among other things, respect for themselves and more important, respect for others (a characteristic sadly lacking in many youth today). They have worked hard without complaining and I'm sure other Militia parents join me in congratulations to their officers and to the boys themselves for a job "well done." — M. F. Fisher, 2254 Arbutus Road.

Ferry Wreck Didn't Follow Any Script

By TERRENCE O'FLAHERTY

(O'Flaherty, television columnist for the San Francisco Chronicle, was a passenger on the ill-fated Queen of Victoria when she was rammed by the Soviet freighter in Active Pass. This is his caustic review of the event.)

When a human being faces sudden death, it has been said that all the events of his life flash by him in an instantaneous soap-opera of unpaid bills and unrequited love. This is a sobering thought and — depending on one's own excesses — a substantial arugmment for staying alive.

Several weeks ago while in mid-stream between Vancouver and Victoria I made an involuntary test of this flash-back theory when the Canadian ferryboat I had the misfortune to be standing on at the time was sliced open like a can of sardines by an idiot at the wheel of a Russian freighter.

Nose-to-Nose

There was Death looking at me, nose-to-nose, for an instant followed by a deafening crunch of metal, the shattering of glass, and then a brief, strange silence broken all at once by the cries of babies and the screams of the injured and frightened.

The first assurance I had of survival was when I failed to see a procession of bad television columns parading across my vision spaced by personal recollections of several rather shaky romantic interludes including a night in the grass alongside Panama Canal in 1939. When I didn't see THAT, I knew I couldn't be dying.

Then there was a sudden sense of chagrin that Death had almost come calling in the form of a thick-necked Tartar peasant instead of Gustave Dore's pretty angel with the great white wings or the gentle chap in On Borrowed Time.

What followed bore no resemblance to any shipwreck dramas I have seen on the television screen. I guess they had a different scriptwriter. During the long hours while we silently drifted and circled with the Russian's sharp prow imbedded in our side like an undrawn assassin's dagger, no word of assurance — indeed no word at all — came from the captain or mates. No Nearer My God to Thee, no Women and Children First; not even a Don't Give Up the Ship! Surely no Hollywood writer would have allowed this to happen.

Just One Cliche

Only one dramatic cliche remained intact: the Russians were bums from start to finish. Not once during the encounter caused by the Sergey Yesenin did even one lousy Soviet crew member or passenger come on deck to make an offer of help or show any concern for the hundreds of persons on the crowded Canadian ferryboat. Of course, it's possible they were all preparing to be shipped off to Siberia.

I saw no heroes among the Canadian crew, either. They were poorly briefed for such an emergency and performed with the disinterested distraction of parking lot attendants. They did, however, provide the only bit of comic relief — albeit grim comedy — when nine officers and men tried to row two dying passengers from the ferry to a waiting Canadian Coast Guard hovercraft. If the sight of one merchant seaman rowing with the wrong end of the oar didn't finish off the injured, nothing could.

One look at the muscles of some of the men passengers as well as the tenaciousness of their young, showed them to be an uneven match in any race for a seat in a lifeboat. So, despite the discovery that I looked absolutely silly in a lifejacket, I decided it was either that or sink.

Not Like TV

There I stood at the railing with the others like an Hawaiian tourist in a large orange lei lamenting that what this shipwreck needed most of all was Gale Storm acting as a cheery, lamebrained cruise ship hostess as she did in the TV series Oh Susanna or Billy DeWolf—all teeth and fuss — as the captain in CBS's The Queen and I. Why can't life be more like television?

The two ships met in the narrow passage between islands just as two strangers might meet one another in the turn of a hallway. The Canadian ferryboat paused in gentlemanly fashion and remained on the right, but the Russian freighter kept coming like a blind drunk. By the time the Russians had begun to turn, it was too late.

When it was over I thought how untrue is the picture of death and tragedy that television shows us night after night. This violent medium provides us with bloodless corpses and sanitary killing. Perhaps if the video blood was spilled more realistically death might be more meaningful to viewers.

Watching television for a living can prove to be educational at a time like this, however, because I recalled an early series devoted to disasters where an old salt from Hollywood's Central Casting said: "Aye, there's more to be feared from fire aboard ship than from water . . ."

Torrents of Gas

Apparently that series hasn't gotten to Canada yet. If it has, surely the officers of the Queen of Victoria haven't seen it. Even though gasoline was flowing in torrents from 20 cars smashed below deck, the officers refused to warn passengers not to smoke, fearing such an announcement might cause panic.

The thought of sitting atop two decks of cars waiting to explode like a string of firecrackers turned me into a one-man anti-smoking campaign that would have impressed the American Cancer Society. But smokers are a determined lot, I discovered. It was like asking ministers not to preach sermons.

Almost immediately after the collision a wonderful thing began to happen. Small boats appeared from nowhere — motor yachts, sailing craft, fishing trawlers, even rowboats from nearby summer homes — at least 70 of them.

During the next two hours the ferryboat and the freighter clung to each other, drifting rapidly with the tide and all that time the little boats stayed close in a reassuring, loving circle ready to pluck us from the water.

I can forgive the ferry captain for many actions during the crisis, but I will forever despise him for failing to thank those friendly people. Instead, they were allowed to disperse with only an obscenity flung at them through a bull-horn from an officer on the bridge when one boat was slow in clearing.

Mouths Open Wide

During the days which followed, the comedy of errors continued to unfold. Canadian public officials opened their mouths even wider than their counterparts south of the border. The first to be heard from was Highways Minister Wesley Black. If any script writer needs a model for a pompous baboon in some future situation comedy I now know where to send him.

"Well, you can't win them all," said Black, who then proceeded to blame the passengers for the confusion. Safety aboard ship is the passenger's own burden, according to him.

"It's perfectly clear they can't be waited on hand and foot . . . They didn't carry out their responsibilities," he said, and then excused the total lack of advice from the ferry crew as a human error "like leaving the iodine bottle open in the bathroom or roller skates under the staircase . . ."

Even after the political smoke clears it will take some time to fix the blame. A Canadian pilot was on the bridge of the Russian ship at the time of collision to give advice but the ultimate responsibility rests with the Soviet captain. It looks as if one of them left the roller skates under the staircase.

Nixon Economists Score a Zero

By JOHN KENNETH GALBRAITH

On July 20, Dr. Paul W. McCracken, the chairman of the president's Council of Economic Advisers (CEA), told the Joint Economic Committee that there was "unmistakable evidence" of a slower rate of increase in the wholesale price index and cited the "extremely important" fact that food prices were falling. A week later the index showed its greatest increase in six months and the increase was led by food.

Asked about this, President Nixon said that he was encouraged because "the rise of the rate of increase is downward rather than upward," a formulation that calls for thought. Dr. McCracken said only that "there is some evidence that after a long period here we are beginning to see some things shaping up in the price area that give some hope that we are going to make some real progress in the period ahead." The increase in prices for July, it then developed, had been underestimated. It was at an annual rate of 7.2 per cent and not 6.0 per cent.

Unredeemed

Dr. McCracken and his colleagues might be forgiven had their score otherwise been good. Unhappily, it has been unredeemed by prescience. On taking office in January, 1969, Mr. Nixon's economists promised an end to inflation and predicted it for later in 1969. Both promise and prediction were repeatedly affirmed. Both failed.

All who have succumbed to the euphoria which engulfs a new administration and causes everything to seem possible will be lenient. But last January's economic report — after 12 sobering months in office — declared even more categorically that, "The unfairness of steeply rising living costs must not again be inflicted upon this nation." (My emphasis). Living costs have risen steeply ever since.

Additionally, economic output has been substantially lower in recent months than predicted. Unemployment has been much higher. These errors are conceded. The stock market slump was not foreseen. Nor the severe depression in the housing industry. Nor the heavy capital outflows of recent months and the worsening of the payments balance.

A Sober Side

In economics no one asks for a perfect score. But this, alas, is a zero score and no economist wants to go back to his university with a record like that. Worse still, the president's economists are becoming, for those who can afford it, a considerable source of humor. Economics should not be a wholly frivolous subject; it, too, has its sober side.

There would seem to be three possible explanations for the terrible showing of Mr. Nixon's scholars. The first, simply, is that he hired bad economists. The second is that he is using economists for political bamboozlement. They predict not what will happen but what the president wants to have happen or needs to have happen.

This keeps people hoping and hence content—at least for a while. The third possibility is that economists generally, of which the president's men are a representative sample, are no good. They are error-prone and powerless in dealing with the misfortunes they are supposed to prevent or cure.

When they promise, as did the "economic report" last January, a world of "plentiful jobs earning dollars of stable purchasing power," they cannot perform. The instruments they feel justified in using—fiscal and monetary policy—are capable of producing inflation or recession or some combination of the two but not high employment and stable prices.

Clearly, the president's economists must soon meet and take counsel with themselves and decide which of the above reasons explans their failure. The fact of failure they cannot deny. They have already used energetically the weapons they are winning to use. So, in the absence of a miracle, they cannot expect the future to be better than the past. And no really good scientist puts all of his faith in miracles.

Vanity Factor

I do not believe, as they consider the matter, that the president's economic advisers will decide that they are bad economists. Vanity is a factor and their past eminence in the profession also entitles them to believe they are up to standard. They may have more difficulty with the thought that they are being used. Their errors of prediction have a marked tendency, which of course may be entirely coincidental, to parallel the president's political needs—which are for less inflation, more employment and higher production.

Monetary and fiscal policy cannot be so combined as to produce adequate employment at stable prices — not in the modern world of powerful unions and corporations of great market power. Nor, I should perhaps add, is anything changed by the new device of inflation alerts. This, for those too young to remember, is patterned on the World War II air-raid alert but with the difference that it signals only the arrival of a new and heavier bomber in the midst of a bad raid that is already under way. Also, unlike the earlier alerts, it scrupulously avoids any association with counteraction.

It will, of course, comfort the president's economists that their belief in the omnipotence of monetary and fiscal policy is shared by a great many other economists. But comfort is not everything. In 1930-32, Mr. Herbert Hoover and Mr. Andrew Mellon had the support of the vast majority of economists in their belief that recovery would come from balancing the budget and minimizing government interference in the economy. This was comforting but it did not make them right or save their reputation. Nor was it good for the country.

It Does Take All Kinds

By RICHARD L. TOBIN
Saturday Review

Will Durant, in "The Lessons of History," an epilogue to his magnificent ten-volume "Story of Civilization," says that "History in the large is the conflict of minorities; the majority applauds the victor and supplies the human material of social experiment."

Intellect, therefore, is a vital force in history, but it also can be a dissolvent and destructive power. Out of every hundred new ideas ninety-nine or more will probably be inferior to the traditional responses which they propose to displace.

No one man, however brilliant or well informed, can come in one lifetime to such fullness of understanding as to safely judge and dismiss the customs or institutions of his society, for these are the wisdom of generations after centuries of experiment in the laboratory of history."

●

Durant goes on to write that the conservative who resists change is as valuable as the radical who proposes it, "perhaps as much more valuable as roots are more vital than grafts. It is good that new ideas should be heard, for the sake of the few that can be used; but it is also good that new ideas should be compelled to go through the mill of objection, opposition, and contumely; this is the trial heat which innovations must survive before being allowed to enter the human race."

Immanuel Kant warned against observing the past only as a tapestry woven out of vanity, frenzy, and destruction with no account made for goodness in men or a gradual enlightenment. Similarly, Arnold Toynbee has often rejected the idea of history as chaotic and disorderly, with no plan or sequence, no cycle or evolution but simply a "fortuitous flux" void of rhythms, patterns, or improvements in the human condition.

It has been said many times that those who ignore history are condemned to relive it, but it is equally true that to refuse to acknowledge an overall pattern in history implies a skepticism in keeping with neither humanism nor the democratic tradition. In other words, when today's nihilists declaim that history is bunk and the whole story of mankind a woeful tale of unending bungling, pessimism, and disaster, they support a retrogressive philosophy rather than an evolutionary one.

What we are trying to say here, particularly to the impatient young who proclaim violence as the way out and as the only, if simplistic, solution to every modern crisis, is that it takes all kinds to make a world and that not all of our ancestors were utter fools, nor all of our former ideas errant.

The new generation must learn to use the past, not destroy it; build upon it a new and lovely brotherhood many men have dreamed of. But the past, if prologue, is the rock foundation from which the new structure must rise.

Isaac Newton said: "If I have seen further, it is by standing on the shoulders of giants." And Albert Einstein added: "My inner and outer life are based on the labors of other men, living and dead."

To toss away (or blast away) the carefully laid foundation would be to lose incalculable time, a setback we can no longer afford.

GOVERNMENT AT HILLSIDE
NOW HAS DATSUN

British Blood Sport Protesters Now Part of the Rural Scene

By COLIN SMITH

LONDON — Campaigners against blood sports in Britain are taking up the hunters' own weapons in their frequent attempts to sabotage the traditfonal chase. Anti-blood sport contingents took an antique hunting horn along with them as well as lots of snuff and aerosol sprays when they set out in hot pursuit of the Buckinghamshire and Courtenay Tracy Otterhounds the other day.

★ ★ ★

A dozen or so policemen followed the protesters along the River Tove and they were in turn chased by a pack of reporters alerted for the occasion by the anti-hunters' public relations man. All were on foot — only foxes and stags are hunted on horseback.

But by midday, only the otter — one of Britain's star turns in European Conservation Year—had failed to put in an appearance. Snuff and aerosol sprays had already been used to mask any scent that might be about — although a local farmer swore he had not seen an otter in the area for the last 10 years anyway.

Not that this dampened anybody's enthusiasm for the task at hand. Each side glared resolutely at the other and recalled past encounters and victories.

Doyen of the anti-bloods is 26-year-old Dave Wetton, a bearded quantity surveyor from South London. As leader of the London branch of the hunt saboteurs' association he has become something of a virtuoso on the hunting horn — guaranteed to lure the most loyal hounds away from the huntsmen. Only a week ago he upset a hunt in Essex, east of London, by persuading the hounds to cross to one bank of the river while the huntsmen remained on the other, trying to find a place where they could cross.

★ ★ ★

"Then we took the pack off into the woods where they had a lovely time chasing blackbirds", said Mr. Richard Ryder, a 30-year-old psychologist at Oxford University, and leader of the 30-strong Buckinghamshire protesters.

"It's quite easy to learn the calls," said Mr. Wetton modestly. "Really, it's just: "Peep! Peep!" He gave a little demonstration while some of the hunt followers pretended not to notice.

In fact, the behavior of both sides was so impeccable that the police escort bid them all a hasty farewell as soon as the hunt had strayed over the border into Northamptonshire, which forms a different police area.

The hunt women, in their uniform of royal blue two-pieces, red ties and blue football socks, had apparently long since decided to accept the protesters as part of the country scene, and were even willing to explain the strange ways of the anti-bloods to curious city folk there to watch the encounter.

Mrs. Phyllis Haswell, joint Master of the Bucks and Courtenay and an otter hunter for 50 years, said that she thought the protesters were just going to get a good country walk, although they were apt to tire easily and would probably quit shortly after lunch.

In her hand was the hazel wood otter pole she had cut for herself as a child — ridged with notches to record her kills. "Hunting helps to preserve them," she said. "Anyway, civilization has always destroyed wild animals in its path. Why, at one time there were wolves and bears in this country."

"Who said we're trying to kill them?" asked another hunting woman huffily. "We're simply trying to find them!"

A bearded young animal technician from Ware, Herts, said: "Well, actually I help breed animals for experiments." He held up a placard which read: "SADISTS IN FANCY DRESS."

★ ★ ★

"Are you in fancy dress, then?" asked one of the huntswomen sweetly.

"It's very hard to get through to other hunters," said Mr.Ryder sadly. "Do you know, even a hard-headed nation like Poland has forbidden otter hunting for economic reasons? You see, otters tend to protect the majority of the fish population eating the eels which live on fish eggs."

Police Strike Abetted Crime

MONTREAL (CP) — The Quebec Police Commission was told Wednesday that there was a 50-per-cent increase in crime in one district during a walkout by Montreal's 3,700 policemen last Oct. 7.

Andre Deluca, inspector in charge of No. 4 station during the 16-hour walkout, said his force numbered 250 but when the strike occurred he was left alone and the crime rate shot up.

Insp. Deluca said that several hours after the strike began, a provincial police lieutenant and four constables arrived to help out.

"Why (the visit)? I never asked," said Insp. Deluca.

With "utmost politeness," Sgt. Patrick DeCaen asked the QPP lieutenant to leave, which he did "quietly and with a grand smile."

ALSO SAW DeCAEN

Another witness, Inspector Eugene Belec of No. 12 station, who tried to stop his men from attending an extraordinary session called by the Montreal Policemen's Brotherhood, said he also saw Sgt. DeCaen during the day.

He said the sergeant arrived while one QPP corporal—one of the many who tried to fill in at deserted stations — was in the station.

"He asked the corporal to call his headquarters," Insp. Belec said. "Then the corporal left."

Other testimony from inspectors Wednesday indicated that none of them was aware there would be a mass walkout Oct. 7.

Police returned to work early in the morning of Oct. 8 at the request of the brotherhood president and under special Quebec legislation. Two persons were killed in rioting which occurred during the walkout.

Eventually, police ratified a one-year contract providing annual pay of $8,750 for first-class constables. They had initially been offered $8,030 and $8,300 in the first and second years of a two-year contract.

Hearings by the Quebec Police Commission continue.

BOMB PLOT FOILED

VANCOUVER (CP) — A dozen CP Air flights were delayed for as much as two hours Tuesday because of a telephoned bomb threat and extortion attempt, it was disclosed Wednesday by police.

A man called CP Air and said a bomb had been put on a flight and was due to explode. He ordered the airline to place $30,000 in a telephone booth in the Kitsilano district in return for information on location of the bomb.

'NEVER CONSENTED' TO PULLOUT

Korea Contradicts Agnew

SEOUL (AP) — The South Korean government today disagreed with much of what U.S. Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew said publicly about his lengthy talks with President Chung Hee Park Monday and Tuesday.

Agnew told American reporters travelling with him that he and Park had "reached a basic accord," and the vice-president also said there would be no change in U.S. plans to withdraw 20,000 of the 62,000 U.S. troops in Korea by next June 30.

But Information Minister Shin Bum-shik told a news conference:

"We have never consented to the withdrawal of 20,000 U.S. troops from Korea. There is no change at all in our basic position that the modernization of our armed forces must precede any U.S. troop cutback in Korea."

Agnew also reported he told Park that when the "long-range" modernization program is completed, perhaps in five years, perhaps later, the United States hopes U.S. troops would no longer be necessary in South Korea. He said Park "accepts that and I think he accepts it as desirable."

Shin commented: "We understand that this statement . . . was a general explanation of the principle of the Nixon Doctrine on the assumption of a situation when our self-defence capability becomes intact."

FERRY UNEXPECTED

Pilot Chose Pass

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Soviet freighter Sergey Yesenin, which collided with a ferry in Active Pass Aug. 2, entered the pass on the advice of a Canadian pilot, the freighter's master said Wednesday.

Capt. Nikolai G. Khaustov told a federal inquiry into the collision, which killed three ferry passengers, that the pilot, Capt. D. G. Crabbe, had not expected to find any ferries in the pass.

Capt. Khaustov also said through an interpreter that the British Columbia government ferry, the Queen of Victoria, did not significantly alter course immediately before the two vessels collided.

The 41-year-old master, a seaman for 22 years, was on his first voyage on the Sergey Yesenin and on his first run to Canada. But, he said, he was satisfied his crew was experienced.

MOST CONVENIENT

Capt. Khaustov told County Judge E. J. C. Stewart, inquiry commissioner that he had intended to use Boundary Pass while en route to Vancouver to pick up lumber for Japan.

"When we passed Stuart Island, the pilot suggested to proceed through Active Pass in order to enter Georgia Strait. He said it was the most convenient route at the time.

"He looked in my presence at the schedule of movement of ferries and explained to me that at the time of our passage through Active Pass there should not be ferries at that time in the pass . . .

"The final decision was up to me. Since there is nothing to forbid the passage of our vessel through Active Pass, I made the decision to go through that pass."

He said the Sergey Yesenin moved into the pass at a speed "not exceeding 12 knots" and he first saw the ferry 1,800 to 2,100 feet away, coming from behind Helen Point.

"When I saw the ferry, my instantaneous reaction was to bring my vessel to an immediate stop . . . I immediately telegraphed the engine an order for the highest full speed astern.

'ONLY WISH'

"Our vessel continued to turn to starboard all the time and it was located a very short distance from Helen Point. I stopped paying attention to the fact our vessel could have been grounded on the rocks.

"My only wish was to pass the ferry safely."

He said the Sergey Yesenin started to operate reverses 35-40 seconds after his order. Asked to estimate the ferry's speed, he said he thought it was "no lower than ours."

"The ferry almost did not change course. When I first saw it, it was changing to port but after it could have changed course a little bit to starboard. But the changes to one side or the other were very little and were insignificant."

He said the freighter's whistle was sounded twice as she moved into Active Pass but he heard no other ship's signals before the ferry was sighted.

Capt. Crabbe, the pilot, boarded the Sergey Yesenin at the Victoria pilot station.

'HISTORIC STEP,' SAYS DIRECTOR

Hearing on Zoning Set for Salt Spring

By ROGER STONEBANKS

A public hearing on the first zoning bylaw for Salt Spring Island is expected to be held Monday, Sept. 14 in Ganges.

This was the tentative date agreed by directors of the Capital Region District Wednesday when they gave first two readings to the bylaw.

Final readings and passage into law can only come after the public hearing, when all persons who deem themselves affected may speak.

Salt Spring director M. H. Holmes told the regional board that zoning is "a historic step after 120 years of settlement and rapid, uncontrolled development."

He said there is no alternative if the character of the island is to be maintained.

"Repeated tests of public opinion show 80 per cent in favor of land control," he said.

The zoning bylaw contains changes over a previous one, which was withdrawn, to meet obligations raised by businessmen who complained the first one would have made many promises non-conforming.

NOISE FROM BAND

The board was also told that copies of the bylaw will be made available to interested persons and maps displayed prior to the public hearings.

In other matters, the board will advise three residents of Hooson Road on Pender Island that the district has no jurisdiction over noise.

The residents' complained that a Victoria man, his wife and small child have been joined by two men and a woman in a house where they practice as a band and use amplification at all hours.

Esquimalt Mayor Art Young, whose municipality has an anti-noise bylaw, said it is almost impossible to enforce and get convictions and said "if you can keep away from it you should."

The board agreed to arrange a preliminary meeting between representatives of the seven municipalities within the regional district and Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell, along with technical staff, on possible coordination of various services.

'LOGICAL VEHICLE'

Campbell wrote saying if there should be joint services the "logical vehicle to handle them" is the regional district.

The board was told by executive director Bill Long that three of the eight services suggested by Campbell for study are already under study. They are auditing procedures, garbage disposal and standardization of forms.

Campbell's other suggestions include fire and police, assessment machinery, single purchasing commisson and pooling of public works equipment.

Director Edith Gunning said adding transportation is probably a good idea and board chairman Hugh Curtis noted that public health, which the board wants regionalized, is not mentioned by Campbell.

An ice arena for Langford-Colwood-Metchosin may still have a chance — if the bond market permits.

Campbell wrote suggesting financing at a rate no greater than 9 per cent with the Juan de Fuca Centennial 71 committee to arrange the financing.

Long saw no problem to the regional district acting, in effect, as financial agent with the cost borne by residents in the affected area, in the same way as the Centennial swimming pool. A local vote would be needed.

But when asked what chance there is of 9 per cent money, he replied "if I knew that I'd retire." The board approved the steps outlined by Campbell.

175 BOATS EXPECTED FOR MAPLE BAY RACE

MAPLE BAY — Maple Bay Yacht Club members are expecting at least 175 boats from all along the Gulf of Georgia rim to participate in their annual regatta Sept. 5 and 6.

Competitions will include three different courses for 20 types of boats, from the half-mile sabot class race to the nine-mile course for curising boats.

The race for the Lipton Cup, competed for by the cruising classes only, will be run on Sept. 5.

SPEC Makes Plea For Pickup Trucks

DUNCAN — A call for more pickup trucks to help in SPEC's cleanup drive on Sunday has been made by Kurt Horn, Cowichan-Malahat branch president.

Horn said the trucks are needed to haul trash to the Royal Canadian Legion grounds at Trunk Road where North Cowichan and Duncan trucks will be parked.

He said not only have many persons promised to clean around their own homes and neighborhood, many groups such as the Cowichan Indians, sea cadets, boy scouts, girl guides, teen towners, the Cowichan Waterbuoys and managers of local supermarkets have offered assistance.

The cleanup will start at 9 a.m. and end at noon Sunday.

"I hope many SPEC members will be out because it is a SPEC-sponsored drive," stressed Horn.

Funeral Set For Native Of Island

Funeral services for Mrs. Vernice LaFortune, 57, a native and lifetime resident of Salt Spring Island, will be held at 1:30 p.m. Friday at St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church.

Mrs. LaFortune, of Fulford Harbor, died in Vancouver General Hospital Aug. 25 after a short illness.

A member of the Tahouney family, one of the first Hawaiian families to settle on Salt Spring in the 1860s, she lived all her life at the family property on Isabella Point.

She is survived by her husband Steve; sons, Allan James of Vancouver and Steven of Ganges; daughter, Cathy; sister, Mrs. Mabel Pearson; brother, Kenneth Tahouney, both of Victoria; step-children, Mrs. Frances Blake of Cobble Hill, Judy Windsor and Leon LaFortune of Duncan.

Lake Cowichan Chosen For Telesat Station

SHAWNIGAN LAKE — A two day stopover at Shawnigan Lake earlier this week was part of a week-long bicycle tour of Vancouver Island by 26 members of the Seattle Mountaineers.

The Seattle Mountaineers, consisting of 6,000 members, mainly from Washington, was formed in 1906. It includes many branches such as mountaineering, skiing, drama, hiking, photography and bicycle riding.

Mike Kirshner, 35, leader of the grup, said they arrived at Victoria aboard the Princess Marguerite Saturday. They made their first stop at Goldstream Park and moved on to Bamberton Park the next day.

After leaving Shawnigan Lake Wednesday moring the Mountaineers planned a ferry trip from Mill Bay to Brentwood Bay to camp at Macdonald Park on the Saanich Peninsula.

Kirshner said the club will visit Salt Spring Island today and then return to Macdonald Park, where the club members will stay until Saturday when they will return to Seattle.

Psychiatric Test Ordered In Attempted Murder Count

PORT ALBERNI — A psychiatric examination has been ordered for Allen Wayne Dick of Port Alberni, charged with attempted murder of a peace officer.

He appeared in provincial court Monday.

The charge arose after a shooting incident on No. 2 Indian reserve, just outside Port Alberni, Friday afternoon.

A bullet hit Const. Paul Summer's cap after it had passed through the windshield of the police car.

Other shots were fired and Const. W. A. Van Der Braak was wounded in the cheek and Const. Lynn Kraeling was injured in the foot. Both were treated at West Coast Hospital. Hospital.

LAKE COWICHAN — One of two heavy-route stations for Telesat Canada will be situated at Lake Cowichan, it was learned here.

The station, which will use three spacecraft, two orbiting and a third held in reserve, will provide additional capacity for television, telephone and the existing heavy east-west traffic routes.

The orbiting of telesat's first satelite, Anik 1, will be completed in 1972.

Telesat Canada has been authorized to open negotiations with Hughes Aircraft Co. of California to build the spacecraft. Two Canadian companies, Northern Electric Co., and Spar Aerospace products Ltd., will be major subcontractors.

Inquest Tonight In Girl's Death

An inquest will begin at 7 tonight into the death of a four-year-old girl Tuesday in a traffic accident on the West Coast Road near Sooke.

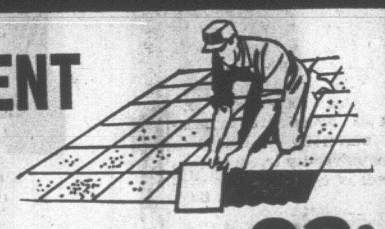

Rita Michelle Burnier died when the car she was riding in flipped over.

The inquest will be held by Coroner Eugene Murphy in the former Legion Hall on Eustance Road.

And leaves you sitting pretty.

A faster washer means a shorter washday. Which leaves you more time for other things. And that's what a Hoover washer is all about.

The secret? Hoover's unique side-mounted pulsator that surges suds and water through clothes. It's very gentle, because nothing touches your clothes except soap and water. And it's very efficient — just four minutes to get a full wash load really clean. What's more, while the pulsator is thoroughly washing one load of laundry, the spin dryer is thoroughly rinsing and spin-drying another load. Two wash loads. Two efficient jobs. Half the washing time. One amazing washer.

To add to the efficiency, there's a specially-designed circulating lint filter that comes clean in seconds.

And if speed and efficiency aren't enough, Hoover also offers convenience. No special plumbing or wiring are required; just roll your Hoover washer to the sink, slip on the hose, and start washing. By the way, you'll notice another saving. A Hoover uses less hot water and less detergent too. Want more? How about smart styling? We've redesigned the Hoover washer with clean new lines.

Best of all, the Hoover name is one you know and trust for quality and dependability.

And that means you're not only sitting pretty. You're also resting easy.

Ont. Hydro Workers Start Slowdown

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Hydro employees began a work slowdown early today but there was no immediate union order to institute rotating strike action as a means of backing contract demands.

However, "the members are standing by for strike action instructions," said Andre Bekerman, publicity officer for Local 1000, Canadian Union of Public Employees.

The slowdown began automatically at 12:01 a.m. with the failure of Hydro and CUPE negotiators to reach agreement with the help of provincial government mediator W. H. Dickie.

Mr. Dickie said he would be in contact with the union negotiating committee today. Mr. Bekerman said the union "is ready to respond to any request that negotiations resume."

Under the slowdown, the 11,300 workers represented by Local 1000 are refusing to work overtime or to make themselves available for standby duties except in case of emergency.

Hydro, which began preparations weeks ago to meet a possible strike, has 1,000 managerial and supervisory personnel ready to take over operational jobs whenever and wherever union members walk off the job.

RECALL 1969 ISSUE

In the event of disruptions, Hydro can draw on the experience gained early in 1969 when the union conducted rotating strike action for five weeks to back contract demands. No major disruptions in public service occurred.

Major issues in the current dispute centre on wages, pensions, overtime premiums, vacations and company proposals to modify work schedules that the union says would be a step leading to unlimited weekend work.

Mr. Bekerman said negotiations broke off early today with management standing firm on an offer of a 12-per-cent increase over two years.

He said the union's demand was for a 21-per-cent increase. Current salaries average $146 a week.

The union has warned Hydro that emergency crews will not be made available by the union in any area where Hydro orders a lockout of union members.

Robert Hillery, assistant chief engineer for Hydro, said Wednesday that any form of strike poses a threat to the maintenance of electrical service across the province.

But Mr. Bekerman said the union's actions had been designed in such a way as to make it possible for service to continue.

'Light Knife' Tests Start on Animals

ALDERMASTON, England (AP) — British scientists say they will test a new laser surgical scalpel next month in operations on animals. But the "light knife" needs further development before it can be used for humans, they said.

The surgical laser was developed by scientists at the Aldermaston Atomic Weapons Research Establishment. It can slice through bone as well as flesh and cauterizes as it cuts to stop bleeding, surgeons said.

MOVES EASILY

In the instrument, the laser, a thin, non-diffusing beam of intense light, is projected through an articulated tube to a working tip that moves easily in any direction. An elbow joint designed by scientist David Beach gives the tip maximum flexibility without making it too heavy or too big for an operating theatre.

Scientific reporters at a laser exhibit in Washington last January were told that a Massachusetts company has developed a "tissue vaporising" laser which might eventually be used for surgery on cancerous tissues and the like.

80 Nations At Convention

MONTREAL (CP) — More than 500 senior academics and university administrators will discuss contemporary education problems during the fifth general conference of the International Association of Universities which opens its week-long sessions here Sunday.

About 80 countries will participate in the conference, the themes of which are international university co-operation and the university in relation to the needs of contemporary society.

Computer Link With East

Victoria-based Argus Computer Applications Ltd. said Wednesday it has contracted to use the heavy data processing facilities of Computel Systems Ltd. in Ottawa and Toronto.

President Douglas H. Peacock, who became associated with Argus earlier this year after 20 years' experience in the data processing field in the East, said the new hookup gives Argus access to large Univac 1108 computers in Ottawa and Toronto by means of high speed telecommunications.

This makes it economic for the small local firm to offer business and government clients sophisticated and speedy data processing in such areas as finance, engineering, forest management and commercial accounting, Peacock said.

In a demonstration, Peacock, vice-president J. A. Carmichael and technical consultant Lee S. Murdock showed how information from punched cards could be fed through the Toronto computer by dialling a telephone code on the Argus input machine.

The reply was transmitted in four seconds in the form of a test pattern on the Argus printout machine.

Computel is one of the larger Canadian operators of computer machinery, catering to the federal government in its Ottawa base interchangably with another large computer in Toronto.

Argus, formed last October, is a private company with seven principals all of Victoria. Peacock, a charter member of the Canadian Information Processing Society, has done data processing for North American air defence and for logistics, inventory and planning in the Canadian armed forces.

A Canadian pilot in the Second World War, Peacock retains an interest in flying and is a member of Victoria Flying Club.

Minerals Sucked From Sea

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new vacuum-like, pollution-free deepsea mining process that could provide much of the world's metal needs for thousands of years was successful in initial tests, its sponsors announced Wednesday.

In a 26-day operation 170 miles off the Florida-Georgia coast that began July 15, a crew of Deepsea Ventures Inc. of Gloucester, Va., sucked hundreds of tons of manganese ore nodules off the ocean floor.

Never before, the promoters told a news conference, has a continuous dredging operation been successful in water more than 600 feet deep.

The Deepsea tests, in water 2,500 feet deep, "have proven encouraging indeed," said Simon Askin, vice-chairman of the board of Tenneco Inc., Deepsea's parent firm in Houston, Tex.

Askin said he is optimistic the July-August tests will lead the way to formation of an international sea-mining consortium that could meet a healthy share of the world's needs in manganese, colbalt, copper, and other metals for centuries.

SUCKED UP NODULES

The process involved dropping a vacuum pipe through a hole in the bottom of an old 320-foot remodelled cargo ship.

Deepsea president John Flipse refused to reveal the suction rate for the prototype test, but said it was between 10 and 60 tons of nodules an hour.

Eventually, Flipse said, the operation will be shifted to the Pacific Ocean where nodules beds are richer. Flipse predicted a single ship designed for the operation could gather a million tons of Pacific Ocean nodules in a year, thus providing 10 to 12 per cent of the world's manganese needs and 12 to 15 per cent of cobalt needs.

Flipse said the company is shooting for a commercial operation on an international scale by 1974.

$ EXCHANGE

VICTORIA — Purchase of U.S. funds in terms of the Canadian dollar was quoted by the Royal Bank at $1.01¼ for cheques; $1.02½ for cash; $1.01⅛ for silver. Sales were $1.02⅛ for cheques and $1.02⅝ for cash.

MONTREAL (CP) — U.S. dollar in terms of Canadian funds up 3/32 to $1.01 29/32. Pound sterling up ⅛ to $2.43.

NEW YORK (CP) — Canadian dollar down ⅛ at 98 7/64 in terms of U.S. funds. Pound sterling down 1/32 at $2.38 29/64.

Newsprint Price Hike Indicated

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian newsprint prices are expected to be increased about $10 a ton in an attempt by producers to regain some of the lost ground as a result of rising costs in recent years.

The increases are expected to be announced in September, to become effective next Jan. 1.

Sources in the Canadian pulp and paper industry said Wednesday substantial adjustments are necessary because of the widening gap between costs and prices, indicating the new increases will have to be well above increases in recent years.

Canadian producers have increased newsprint prices a total of $18 since 1957.

Early last month, wood pulp prices were raised about $7 a ton to meet rising costs.

EXPANDED IN 60s

The industry went through an expansion period in the mid-1960s which resulted in an overcapacity in the last few years. However, increasing world demand has brought about a closer balance between supply and demand.

Besides being squeezed by such factors as rising labor and transportation costs; the pulp and paper industry is currently losing about $75,000,000 a year as a result of the freeing of the Canadian dollar last May.

About 70 per cent of Canada's $2,800-million pulp and paper industry finds its way to the export markets of the world.

J. H. Peck, chairman of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association, said demand for newsprint in the first half of 1970 was down about one per cent in the U.S. an dCanada as well as in Britain while some of the slack was taken up by other export markets.

Besides fighting a slowdown in the economy, the fine papers section of the industry suffered a financial blow as a result of the lowering of tariffs which made these Canadian products less competitive.

EFFECT OF SLOWDOWN

Brighter economic conditions in 1970, predicted toward the end of 1969, failed to materialize as the economic slowdown in the United States, Canada and in other countries adversely affected the pulp and paper market.

Pulp-and-paper producers consequently wound up with smaller half-year profits than had been expected, with the majority of these companies expressing concern at the turn of events.

J. V. Clune, chairman of MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. of Vancouver, reported a "substantial decline" in earnings in the first two quarters of 1970.

The company's net earnings after taxes were estimated at $11.1 million compared with $25 million for the corresponding period in 1969, a drop of 55.6 per cent.

An Ontario Economic Council report to the provincial government said that increases in energy, transportation and labor costs seriously hinder the competitive position of ontario's pulp and paper industry.

The council said that greater mechanization, more forestry research, and the integration of pulp, paper and sawmilling operations would go a long way toward reducing the financial pressure on the industry.

BUSINESS and FINANCE

Editor: G. S. Kent

Crestbrook

Crestbrook Forest Industries Ltd. reports a first-half loss of $3.1 million, compared with a profit of $1.4 million for the first six months of 1969.

President V. C. Brown said although gross sales were up $5.2 million to $12.3 million during the period, the depressed state of the world lumber markets was the main reason for the loss.

He said completion of a new wood processing plant at Cranbrook will "greatly increase lumber capacity to take advantage of any improvement in the lumber market."

IUC

International Utilities Corp. and Pacific Intermountain Express Co. say directors of P.I.E. accept an offer by IU to acquire P.I.E. The offer will be submitted to P. I. E. shareholders when details are worked out.

J. M. Seabrook, chairman and president of IU, and C. G. Zwingle, president of P.I.E., said the IU offer provides for a tax-free exchange on one share of IU convertible preferred stock, ranking equally with the most senior IU preferred for each share of P.I.E. common.

The preferred stock would carry an annual dividend of $1.25 (U.S.) and would be convertible at any time into IU common stock at a rate of 0.8 of a share of IU common for each share of the preferred. The stock would be callable after five years at $25.

Investors Group

The Investors Group reports net earnings from mutual fund and investment certificate activities for the first half declined 32 per cent from the same period in 1969.

Income after taxes was $2.39 million. The figures do not include earnings from Investors' majority holding in Great-West Life Assurance Co., but the cofpany said these "are not expected to vary significantly from the 1969 levels."

Investors president C. E. Atchison attributed the decline to federal anti-inflationary polices which, he said, cause a drop in securities prices, decreased investment management fees and lower distribution fees.

New mutual fund sales showed a marked decline from the near-record levels of a year ago in common with the mutual fund industry. Investment certificates showed a substantial gain.

That Old German Missile Team Finally Fizzles

By BOB WARD

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (Reuters) — Current cuts in the American space program are breaking up Wernher von Braun's Second World War German missile team.

About a dozen veteran members of rocketry's famous "von Braun team" have received notice either of demotion or layoff at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Marshall Space Flight Centre.

At least seven of the German-born rocketeers, who ironically were to celebrate next month their 25th year of employment by the U.S. government, will lose their jobs before Oct. 1, space centre officials confirmed. But the reunion remains scheduled.

Several others are to be downgraded in their jobs. Still others, under pressure to help preserve the jobs of younger men, are retiring prematurely.

But seven being laid off are among 121 workers at the 6,000-man Marshall Centre who received layoff notices as a result of the reduced space budget.

All but one of the seven, although employed continuously since 1945 by the U.S. government, had chosen years ago not to become career civil servants.

They remained on the so-called "exceptee status" they held before gaining U.S. citizenship.

Thus when the axe fell, none had the civil service privilege of transferring to government jobs elsewhere or of accepting only a demotion.

Otto Hirschler, the last of the Second World War German missilemen to work for the U.S. Army, was laid off, earlier this year in a personnel reduction at the army missile command at Redstone arsenal, also located here.

Led by von Braun, 118 of the German V-2 rocket developers came to the U.S. in 1945.

When this week's layoff notices came, about 50 of the original 118 were still on the space centre's payroll.

Kennedy Pushes Medicare

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation to create a comprehensive national health insurance program in the United States, with benefits in mid-1973, was introduced today by Senator Edward Kennedy.

The program would cover all citizens, without individual limit, over the entire range of health services except for certain nursing home care, mental and dental treatment and some medicines and equipment.

Kennedy estimated it would pay 70 per cent of all health expenditures in the U.S., roughly twice the amount now paid by the Medicare and Medicaid programs for the elderly and indigent, which would be terminated.

Joining Kennedy as principal sponsors of the plan were Senators Ralph Yarborough (Dem. Texas), John Sherman Cooper (Rep. Ky.), and William B. Saxbe (Rep. Ohio).

Kennedy, in prepared remarks for the Senate floor, said the program would be financed through a trust fund similar to that for social security.

Forty per cent of the income would be derived from federal general revenues, 35 per cent of it from a 3.5-per-cent tax on employers' payrolls, and 25 per cent from a 2.1-per-cent tax on individual income up to $15,000 a year.

Based on 1969 figures, said Kennedy, the plan would have paid out $37,000 million.

The Nixon administration so far has shunned notions of a national health plan for all U.S. citizens.

Gas Grenade Stops Show by Russians

CHICAGO (AP) — A tear-gas grenade hurled from a balcony in the Civic Opera House forced evacuation of an audience of 3,500 Wednesday night and cancelled a performance of the Moiseyev Dance Company.

Five persons in the opening-night audience were treated for inhalation of fumes. A woman who said she was struck by the thrown canister just before it landed on the main floor also was treated and released.

The Chicago Tribune reported shortly after the incident that it received a telephone call in which the caller said that if the Russian dance troupe did not leave, "the next one will not be a smoke bomb."

Several dozen members of the Community Council of Jewish Organizations had picketed outside the theatre to call attention to the plight of Jews in the Soviet Union.

Abbot Rosen, Midwest director of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, said he was "morally certain that anyone in the group sponsoring the picketing could not possibly be responsible for this act."

Opera House officials said the company's six remaining performances scheduled through Sunday will be held as planned.

Witnesses said the bomb was thrown into the orchestra area about 40 minutes after the performance began. The audience filed out in an orderly fashion and without incident, officials said.

LaBIANCA MURDER DETAILS BARED

Boy Near Tears Recalling Death Scene

By LINDA DEUTSCH

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A teen-age boy was near tears at the Sharon Tate murder trial as he told of finding the bloody body of his stepfather, Leno LaBianca.

Frank Struthers, 16, the son by a former marriage of LaBianca's wife Rosemary, who also was slain, took the stand Wednesday as the state turned to details of the double slaying the night after Miss Tate and four others were killed.

Descriptions of the Tate murder scene ended with a police chemist telling how trails of blood through the mansion and outside marked the paths taken by victims trying to flee their killers. He said the word "Pig" on the front door of the house was scrawled by someone using a towel dipped in the slain actress's blood.

Charles M. Manson, 35, and three women members of his hippie style "family" are on trial charged with murdering Miss Tate, four visitors at her home and the LaBiancas in August, 1969.

NOBODY ANSWERED

Struthers said his mother and stepfather had spent part of a weekend with him and family friends at Lake Isabella, a central California resort, then returned home ahead of the others the night of Aug. 9.

The following night, when Struthers returned, he said he got no answer when he knocked on the door. He summoned his sister, Susan, 23, who lived nearby, and a friend, and they searched for keys.

"I got the keys out of my mother's car and opened the back door," said Struthers.

"When we got to the living room we saw Leno LaBianca . . . in a type of crouched position." He added, "We came out right away."

Struthers said he checked the house days later to see if anything was missing. His mother's wallet was gone, he said. The state's star witness, Linda Kasabian, has testified that Manson entered the LaBianca home before the killings, then came out with the wallet which he told her to discard.

The wallet, later found in a gas station rest room, was identified by Struthers. The youth, whose eyes were red and puffy, appeared near tears as he viewed a color photograph in the wallet.

"It's a graduation picture," he said, "of me."

Pilot Died From Injuries Received in Mid-Air Crash

BAGOTVILLE, Que. (CP) — An autopsy revealed Wednesday that 30-year-old Capt. Denis Lambert died from the fatal injuries he sustained after an in-flight collision between two CF-5 supersonic jets last Friday.

A spokesman at the Bagotville Canadian Forces base, about 120 miles south of Quebec City, said the pilot bailed out of the aircraft following the crash but either died or lost consciousness soon after.

"If he was still alive at all when he landed in his parachute," the spokesman said, "he was certainly unconscious and did not regain consciousness before death."

Capt. Lambert's body was found Tuesday in a dense wooded area about 85 miles north of Bagotville.

He had been the object of a massive search involving 400 men, including 10 Indian trappers and several aircrafts since the collision which forced Capt. Lambert and Lieut. Marc Fortier to bail out from their CF-5s.

Lieut. Fortier was picked up by a helicopter Friday afternoon and was reported to be in good condition. Capt. Lambert's helmet was found Monday by searchers about three-quarters of a mile from the crash site.

The two pilots went down just west of Lake Pipmuacan, in a desolate wooded area about 200 miles north of Quebec City.

No details have been revealed yet about the crash itself pending a board of inquiry which will be called within the next few weeks.

PILOT TRIES FOR AIRPORT, GETS STREET

WICHITA FALLS, Tex. (UPI) — Student pilot David Cowdin, 16, making his first cross-country flight, radioed the control tower for instructions to the Kickapoo Airport. A female voice told him he was on the right flight path.

The airport sent a pilot to Cowdin's plane to fly it to the runway.

Toxic Metals Blasted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pollution by toxic metals presents "a much more serious and . . . insidious problem" than environmental damage from pesticides, weed-killers and nitrogen oxides, an expert has told a United States Senate subcommittee.

"Those metallic and elemental pollutants we have with us now are here to stay for a long time," Dr. Henry Schroeder said Wednesday in urging senators to make every effort to slow the buildup of elements which are toxic and can cause degenerative diseases.

Schroeder, a physiology professor at Dartmouth Medical School, said there is "little doubt in my mind that cadmium pollution is a major factor in human high blood pressure, of which 23 million Americans suffer."

In testimony inserted in the record by the Senate committee's chairman, Philip A. Hart (Dem.—Mich.), Schroeder added: "There is little doubt that at the present rate of pollution, diseases due to lead toxicity will emerge within a few years."

CAN BE STOPPED

"Cadmium in air can be minimized or virtually abolished by abatement of zinc, from which it comes," while lead in air can be wiped out by eliminating alkyl lead additives to gasoline, he said.

Meanwhile, toxic problems or arsenic, lead and cadmium were reviewed by Carl L. Klein, assistant secretary of the interior for water quality and research. He reported that 4,800 pounds of lead and 98 pounds of arsenic are being discharged daily into the lower Mississippi River.

Murray Stein, chief enforcement officer for the federal water quality agency, identified the firms allegedly involved in the discharges between Baton Rouge and New Orleans as Ethyl Corp., with lead, and Kaiser Aluminum Chemical and Allied Chemical Companies, with lead and arsenic.

Native Peoples 'Should Be in Pipeline Picture'

YELLOWKNIFE (CP) — Natives must be brought into pipeline talks now rather than after all the discussions, Energy Minister J. J. Greene said Thursday.

Mr. Greene, on a tour of the North, said he is convinced that the pipeline industry is "sincerely trying to do research that will minimize any possible interference" with native hunting and trapping practices.

"But this is not good enough for me" he said in an interview. "Indigenous people must be brought into the discussions. They must participate now."

There have been a number of recent proposals to run a gas pipeline from Prudhoe Bay, on Alaska's north slope, through the Northwest Territories to southern markets.

Mr. Greene earlier visited a number of N.W.T. communities and a base camp of Atlantic Richfield Oil Co. Ltd. near Purdhoe Bay.

He said oil companies on the slope are not conclusive in their discussion of a gas pipeline through the N.W.T., "but they appear optimistic."

The minister's party was to leave Yellowknife for Hay River, on the south shore of Great Slave Lake, Friday.

Evangelism Youth Force Elders to Discuss Gut Issues

By BOB DOUGLAS

OTTAWA (CP) — Continuing criticism of the Evangelism Congress on Evangelism prompted organizers to suggest changes Wednesday.

Some delegates demanded more open discussion of issues as they said workshops and lectures were not getting off the ground.

Wilber Sutherland, chairman of the congress executive committee, said seminars with speakers could be arranged. He also agreed to a "bear pit" discussion period for youth delegates who have led protests against the way the congress is being conducted.

Young persons started the movement for change Tuesday at a youth caucus. They said speakers were hard to understand and public evangelistic sessions "embarrassing."

In an open discussion period Wednesday night, Dr. Hendrik Hart, 35, a philosophy lecturer at the Institute for Christian Studies in Toronto, said speeches by Dr. Kenneth Hamilton, a theology professor at the University of Winnipeg, were putting "the stamp of approval on our comfort—which shouldn't be happening."

Christians should not react to criticism of the Church by writing off their critics. They should look carefully at what was being attacked.

He was haunted by a dream that if 100 million well-meaning North American Christians died in one moment the world would not miss them.

After two days at the conference he feared the dream was true.

Dr. Hamilton said that he appreciated the spirit of the criticism. He believed in social action but "simple analyses don't do justice to the complexities of God's world."

While a number of delegates criticized the set speeches and lack of open discussion with the speakers, others said they liked what they had heard.

Earlier Wednesday, Dr. Carl Henry, an American Baptist theologian, told reporters that the Christian ecumenical movement is in "dire trouble."

Churches attached to the ecumenical movement were losing members, he said, and the Roman Catholic Church and Protestant evangelicals were mounting competitive movements.

Saskatchewan Teachers Want Direct Talks

REGINA (CP) — The Saskatchewan Teachers' Federation Wednesday said possible strike action would depend on the direct negotiations with the provincial government that the federation is seeking.

Dr. Stirling McDowell, federation general secretary, said in a statement no deadline for a strike would be set before the proposed direct talks with the province about salaries have begun.

"The government has made it plain, by their actions, that they will involve themselves in the settlement of any agreement," he said following an all-day federation strategy conference here.

Education Minister J. C. McIsaac huddled here briefly with negotiators for teachers and trustees in the Saskatoon area, considered a key to a possible province-wide settlement of the dispute.

He tried to clarify in closed-door talks how the province expects its six-per-cent guidelines for salary increases to be applied in a mixed salary-and-increment bargaining situation.

OPENING MONDAY

Most schools are to open Monday. Tentative agreements between teachers and trustees have been reached only in Saskatoon and North Battleford. Sides are deadlocked in the other eight major bargaining areas.

Dr. McDowell said teacher negotiating teams will be maintained only in Saskatoon and North Battleford. Elsewhere, the federation will assume the negotiating chores on behalf of teachers.

Teachers reckon the Saskatoon pact would provide a 4.84-per-cent raise in each year of a new two-year contract plus other benefits. Trustees, however, contend the deal could mean an increase of more than six per cent.

The provincial government has said any school boards granting salary increases of more than six per cent must face the possibility of having to make up the extra dollars locally.

Putting Along Cleanly

CHICAGO (AP) — College auto designers who want to show Detroit that existing technology can prevent cars from polluting the air are heading for Oklahoma City today on the fourth leg of their cross-country race.

The bulk of the 41 official and two unofficial entries in the 1970 clean air car race spent the night in Champaign, Ill., site of the University of Illinois, after a long day's drive from the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor.

Drivers and crews received the keys to the city in a municipal ceremony and, fatigued from coping with the fuelling and maintenance headaches that go with their exotic vehicles, turned in early.

Officials at race headquarters in Chicago said the internal-combustion cars in the race clearly were winning the most rally points. But they said the entries running on electricity, which turned in dismal performances at first, are improving.

CANADIAN IS BEST

Of the latter, the best was a car built at the University of Toronto in which a propane engine powers a generator which in turns drives an electric motor. The Toronto entry scored 123 out of a possible 220 rally points.

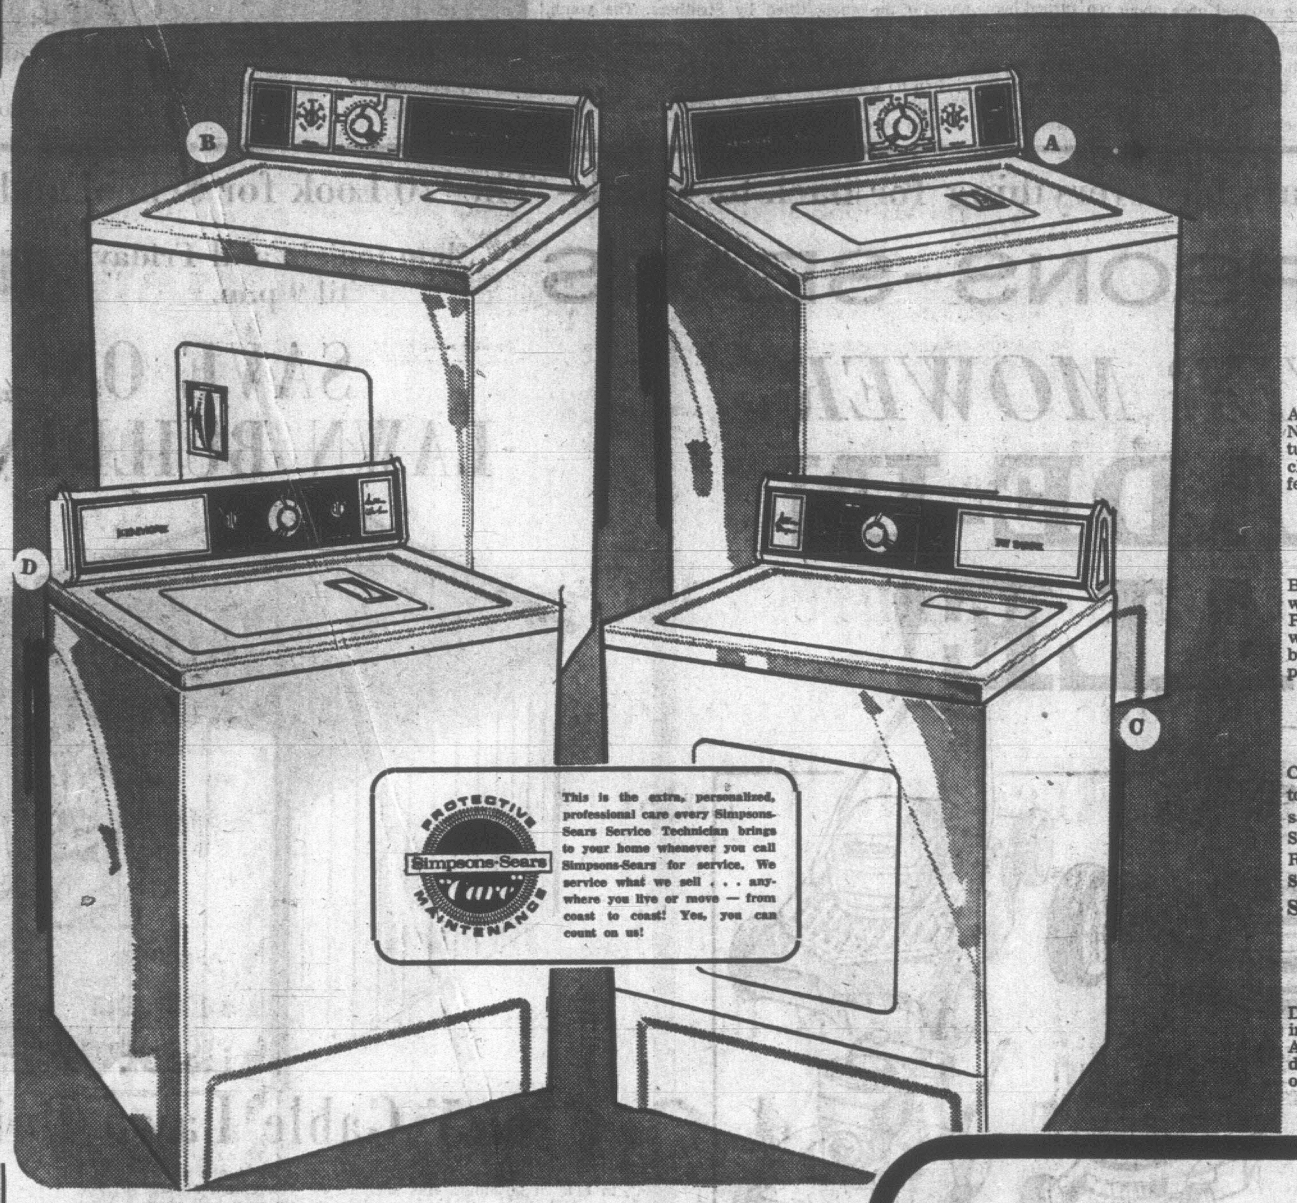

The goal of the race, which started Monday at Massachusetts Institute of Technology and ends Tuesday at California Institute of Technology in Pasadena, is to pollute the air with exhaust fumes as little as possible while keeping a regular schedule.

Race officials said that as of Tuesday in Ann Arbor 17 cars—all with internal-combustion engines—achieved the maximum 220 rally points. These points are judged on how well the car sticks to its schedule and have nothing to do with pollution.

Charges of Nun-Running Unworthy, Says Vatican

VATICAN CITY (AP) — A Vatican magazine came out today with pictures and interviews to counter what it called an "unworthy and scandalistic campaign" by newspapers about alleged nun-purchasing in Indian.

The publication L'Osservatore della Domenica, came out two days behind schedule with a four-page section on the nun-recruitment question.

The presses had been stopped Tuesday and the edition amended to include what high Vatican prelates called a "documented" defence against press reports of alleged traffic in Indian nuns by West European convents.

It marked the third straight day in which a major communications arm of the Vatican had lashed out at what the Holy See claims is sensationalism in press reports of alleged nun-purchasing. The daily paper, L'Osservatore Romano, and the Vatican radio had blasted the press Tuesday and Wednesday.

'BOUGHT' PEASANT GIRLS

The scandal erupted Sunday when the London Sunday Times declared that European convents short of novices had "bought" more than 1,200 Indian peasant girls for $600 to $700 each.

The Catholic Herald, a London Roman Catholic weekly, warned Vatican officials today against trying to hush up what it called unpalatable facts about nun recruitment from the Indian state of Kerala.

In the unprecedented article published today, the Vatican's weekly magazine charged that "the act of charity of Indian nuns has been rejected and insulted."

It printed an interview with the mother superior of a nun congregation based in Rome, the St. Catherine of Siena Sisters of the Poor.

Although this order has no corresponding houses in India, it has 40 Indian girls and 10 of them are prepared to take their vows as nuns, L'Osservatore said.

EXPRESS SATISFACTION

The article also included some interviews with Indian nuns, natives of Kerala, who were quoted as expressing satisfaction with their convents.

The Vatican has been maintaining that while a relatively few girls recruited from India may have met unhappy experiences in Europe, the great majority have a true vocation for the religious life and are content.

L'Osservatore quoted the superior of the congregation, Mother Giovanna, an Italian, as saying that two Indian prelates, including Joseph Cardinal Parecattil, had offered to send the order some Indian girls "who had indicated their desire to become nuns and to come to Italy."

L'Osservatore said Mother Giovanna was asked about reports that many Indian girls had breakdowns in Western convents, and quoted her as replying:

"These girls have voluntarily chosen a religious state. This means sacrifices, renunciations. Naturally they feel homesick but it is the same homesickness felt by Italian girls who leave their families to go to faraway lands."

DEFENDS POLICY

In a lead editorial, London's Catholic Herald paper said:

"There is nothing wrong in an offer by a European convent to pay a would-be novice's air fare or to help her impoverished family. . . .

"It seems clear beyond doubt that the European convents concerned in this shocking story thought they were doing something of the kind and nothing more. . . .

"It would, however, be unpardonable for any priests, or anyone else, in Kerala to 'take a commission' in the process, especially if be authorized it for himself, and it would be the gravest breach of the church's laws to put the slightest undue pressure on possible recruits, let alone deceive them. . . .

10 Passengers, Hijacker Hurt

WARSAW (Reuters) — A man tried to hijack a Polish internal airliner to Vienna Wednesday but set off an explosive device which wounded 10 passengers as well as seriously injuring himself, the Polish news agency PAP reported today.

The air crew defied the hijacker and "thanks to their coolness of mind," the plane landed safely at Katowice in southern Poland, PAP said. There were 27 passengers and four crew members on the airliner.

Pollution Fight 'Needs Co-Ordination'

By GERARD McNEIL

OTTAWA (CP) — Effective pollution control in Canada requires a supreme co-ordinating agency at the federal cabinet level, assistant Professor A. R. Lucas of the University of British Columbia said today.

Prof. Lucas, who gives courses on natural resources, was addressing the University of Ottawa's eighth symposium on comparative law.

Other speakers on pollution, the opening subject, were Prof. Julian Juergensmeyer, Tulane University, New Orleans, and Maurice Prelle, Brussels, legal counsel to the European Common Market.

All three emphasized the importance of public opinion in checking pollution. Prof. Juergensmeyer and Prof. Lucas, after sketching a maze of laws and agencies on pollution, stressed the need for over-riding federal action.

Prof. Juergensmeyer said industries in the U.S. are gravitating to areas where there are pollution laws and agencies because these provide in effect a maze behind which they can hide.

Prof. Lucas said environmental control groups must be given more recourse to the law—often an obstacle in Canada—and more access to deliberations of regulatory agencies.

He criticized British Columbia's pollution control branch, saying that its permit system has turned into a sort of "vested right to pollute."

Basil Frazier Extends Lead

VANCOUVER (CP) — Leading jockey Basil Frazier extended his lead Wednesday with two wins and two seconds at Exhibition Park and set up a quinella of $152.90 aboard Peace River in the eighth race.

Peace River, a $9.30 winner, was followed by Beau Bunnie. Frazier also won on Wise Pride in the fifth, a 1⅝-mile endurance test.

Expos Get Tax Bonanza On Team-Forming Cost

OTTAWA (CP) — The revenue department ruled Wednesday that part of the costs of the Montreal Expos baseball club in acquiring players last year for the new team will be permitted to be spread over a number of years for tax purposes.

Normally, the costs involved in buying player contracts ,or the revenues from the sale of contracts, is counted as a straight business expense or income for each year.

When the Expos were organized last year, the new club invested heavily in contracts.

Revenue Minister Jean-Pierre Cote issued a statement saying the cost "ascertainable as being properly applicable to players' contracts, as distinct from the franchise and related rights," would be allowed to be written off against current income "over the estimated useful playing life of the players."

Mr. Cote noted in his statement that the revenue department's ruling will apply as general policy in dealing with professional sports clubs. Secrecy provisions of the Income Tax Act prevent the government from discussing the specific circumstances of any individual taxpayer, whether a person, a corporation, or—as in this case—a baseball club.

ACQUIRED WHOLE TEAM

The department has always regarded the outlay for players contracts, and the income from their sale, as a normal business expense and income for a professional club because "part of the operations of a club is to acquire, develop and trade players to the end of producing the best team possible, and so to earn more income."

The Expos, however, acquired a whole team by contract purchase last year, and normally would not be able to charge any of that expense against this year's income.

The statement said that since there is no specific provision covering this in the Income Tax Act, the government has to determine what is good accounting and business practice in such circumstances.

Mr. Cote's statement said:

"Recognizing that the individual players making up the acquisition have a limited playing life, it is our view that the cost ascertainable as being properly applicable to players' contracts, as distinct from the franchise and related rights, should be allowed to be written off over the estimated useful playing life of the players.

Jackson Spins Five-Hit Win

Bate Construction blasted in all its runs during the first three innings and then held on to defeat Denford Electric 6-1 in the first game of their best-of-seven Victoria Major Men's Softball League playoff final Wednesday at Central Park.

Barry Jackson pitched up the victory by striking out 11 batters and allowing only five hits while exhibiting fine control to yield no bases on balls.

Bates	213 000 x—6	11	2

Barry Wilkin and Paul Morrison; Barry Jackson and Lyle Cornett.

Labatts Survive Surge by Century

Labatts survived a last-inning surge by league-champion Century Inn on Wednesday to claim an 8-7 victory in the opening game of the best-of-seven Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League playoff final at Heywood Avenue Park.

Jack Lusk's two-run homer in the seventh inning brought Century to within one run but winning-pitcher Bob Harris ended the threat by forcing the final batter to foul out with a man on third base.

Next game of the series is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. Friday in the same park.

Labatts	110 501 0 —	8	11 2

Bob Harris and Andy Andrew; Mike Cox and John Hughes. Home runs: Labatts — Andrew; Century — Jack Lusk.

Jockey Injured

Closing Bomber Surge Upsets Favored Argos

BILL WALKER

VANCOUVER — Jackie Parker slipped down the stairs from behind the curtain that hid the entrance to the stage at the Commodore. He may have been smiling, he had ample reason to, but it wasn't evident as the lights in the banquet hall had been darkened.

The lunch was over and special feature was on. It was how to beat Edmonton, on film in color, as the Lions had done in their previous visit there. Fullback Jim Evenson and Halfback A. D. Whitfield were eating up huge chunks of yardage, the score was mounting, but better still, few of the guests were leaving early.

"Things are going well?" a reporter suggested.

"So far, so far," said the coach of the B.C. Lions. There was clapping in the background. Whitfield had made 12 yards. Whitfield was a dinner guest. The clapping came from the Whitfield table.

Then Parker really smiled. Whitfield had been one of the real surprises of the year for the Lions. But there was more on Parker's mind, than the distant past.

"Don't every discuss that Ottawa team, he said, reiterating what had been his theme at the Touchdown Club luncheon.

"As far as we are concerned, basically they are the Grey Cup champions" he told the guests. "And that means class."

He explained that despite the loss of Margene Adkins, Vic Washington (who really was no help at all to the Riders at the finish), and quarterback Russ Jackson, this was still the best team in Canada. Last year.

"And they will get stronger and stronger this season," he warned.

●

Actually, he could have been excused for thinking out loud. Nobody would have minded. The players will hear the same lesson tonight, That's certain. The Ottawa team which had handled Edmonton with relative ease the night before, wouldn't be any patsies. Parker had read the scouting reports, and he had his own ideas.

"They still have their great offensive line," was an example in point, "and their defensive line is worthy of cup championships," he also suggested.

"Besides," he explained for any non-believers, "Ottawa's first two losses can be excused.

"They caught a hot Saskatchewan team, I know," he said, recalling the 42-9 horror that befell the Lions on opening night against the Roughies here; and in their 17-15 loss to Hamilton, "It could have gone either way," he added.

"Wood," he said, "is one of the finest quarterbacks to come to this league in a long time."

There was no rebuttal, especially not from Ottawa. Because the champs had missed their luncheon date due to a late plane arrival.

But really, the Riders weren't missed. Parker had no problems. His club had won three out of four, the team was so healthy that a question was looming what to do with all the spare bodies, and another near-sellout crowd was anticipated.

Neither were the questions from the floor about to floor him.

●

For instance, there was the black dart variety, such as: "Have the Lions been in touch with Joe Kapp?" It has been hinted rather strongly here, that the Minnesota strong boy is hiding out in the North Shore Hills, with his million dollar contract in his hot little hand waiting for takers.

The suggestion was obvious: Would the Lions be interested?

Parker never missed a verb.

"No," he said, "I haven't seen him," and then he added: "Gee I hope Paul doesn't get lost."

Paul is Paul Brothers, the Lion quarterback, for the season according to Parker; from game-to-game according to the fans.

And Jackie could laugh about the Brothers case, too. Another question proved it.

There was the teaser from a fan who wanted to know if Jackie could do anything about the stadium organ. Parker said he couldn't really answer that one, because he couldn't hear the organ for some guy behind him yelling:

"Get Brothers out of there."

Which won't happen. Parker made that clear, too, when explaining the purpose of a bootleg play. There had been a third-down thinker who didn't like Brothers throwing the ball when it appeared he could run, and run for yardage.

To which Parker replied:

"The way Paul is playing now, I am not going to insist on him running, if he doesn't want to."

The master had spoken.

Things were going well, extremely well.

So far.

Roughies Nip Stampeders To Stretch Lead in West

By The Canadian Press

Saskatchewan Roughriders took a four-point lead in the Western Football Conference Wednesday night while the Winnipeg Blue Bombers scored a stunning upset over the Eastern Conference Toronto Argonauts.

The Roughriders pushed back a fourth-quarter onslaught and nipped Calgary Stampeders 21-17. The win left them with 10 points in the WFC, two games ahead of the Stampeders and British Columbia Lions, each with six points.

The Blue Bombers' 28-22 victory over the Argonauts was their first in five starts this season. It put them into a fourth-place WFC tie with Edmonton Eskimos, also with one win and five losses.

After six years of riding the bench in the National Football League, Wood is playing No. 1 and liking it with Ottawa.

The Bombers trailed Toronto by one point until the final minute of the game when Wally Gabler hit Ken Nielsen with a 40-yard touchdown pass. Bob Houmard, Winnipeg's tough fullback, got the other three touchdowns and Gene Lakusiak finished 4-4 on the converts.

Argos, who split quarterbacking between Don Jonas and Tom Wilkinson, trailed 14-8 at the half but grabbed a slim 15-14 lead in the third quarter.

SYMONS GOT TWO

Bill Symons crossed the line twice for Toronto, and Mel Profit took a 16-yard pass in the final quarter to round out the scoring. Jonas booted three converts and a single.

Winnipeg's fired-up defence thwarted the Argos time and again and on four occasions good defensive play stood off threatening Toronto attacks.

Houmard carried 14 passes for 53 yards and caught five passes for 62 yards. Amos Van Pelt, the other Winnipeg workhorse, rolled up 100 yards offence, including a 32-yard scamper.

Symons again stood out for the Argos, carrying 14 times for 71 yards and taking one pass for 21 yards. Former Winnipeg halfback Dave Raimey ran four times for 36 yards but piled up 56 yards through the air.

Jonas threw only one Toronto touchdown pass and was charged with one of two interceptions. He was good on nine of 17 passes while Wilkinson connected on nine of 10.

The Argos went for 23 first downs and 407 yards total offence while Winnipeg got 22 first downs and 368 yards.

STARTED SLOW

Saskatchewan and Calgary provided mediocre entertainment for the first 30 minutes; each team scored one field goal. The second half exploded into a fierce battle with both teams scoring two touchdowns and Saskatchewan kicking a field goal and a single.

Roughriders led 11-3 at the end of the third quarter but continued to apply the pressure and took a comfortable 21-3 lead. Calgary fought back with two converted touchdowns but Saskatchewan held the line and their four-point advantage.

Dave Denny and Henry Dorsch got the Saskatchewan touchdowns with Jack Abendschan adding the kicking points. Calgary's touchdowns came from Hugh McKinnis and Craig Koinsan. Larry Robinson kicked the field goal.

George Reed, Saskatchewan's powerful running back, made his first appearance in recent games and still showed the effects of a knee injury. He carried 13 times for only 27 yards.

Stampeders, led by quarterback Jerry Keeling, were good on 16 of 30 tosses for 252 yards. Saskatchewan, with Ron Lancaster at the helm, hit 18 times in 31 attempts for 258 yards.

WOOD WAS WATCHER

Wood, a Cornell man, spent five years in New York watching Fran Tarkenton, Earl Morrall and Milt Plum calling Giants' plays, then a year as understudy to Bill Kilmer with New Orleans Saints.

Now he plays. Riders' offence, aided by the defence picking off seven interceptions, stopped Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Football Conference 31-23 Tuesday for Ottawa's first win in three games.

Vancouver Bowlers Win Pairs

CALGARY — Representatives of three provinces shared the titles Wednesday following completion of the Canadian Lawn Bowling championships.

John Henderson of Montreal captured the singles crown, Alex Johnston and Charles Burns of West Vancouver won the doubles title and Ontario collected the rink laurels.

Henderson was unbeaten in six rounds of play while Johnston and Burns also had an undefeated record. Ontario nailed down the team event after a playoff against Quebec, made necessary when both quartets finished the seven-round tournament with 10 points.

Lionel Nichols' Victoria rink defeated F. B. Brown of St. Boniface on Wednesday for its lone victory.

BIG TROUBLE FOR CANADIAN LITTLE LEAGUERS

One run is chalked up by Wayne, J.J. team Wednesday in Little League World Series game at Williamsport, Pa., as Mark Epstein scores on passed ball in second inning on way to 10-0 victory over Canadian champions from Valletfield, Que. Ball has popped out of Daniel Lamadeleine's mitt as first baseman arrives too late to make tag. Steve O'Neill blanked Canadians by pitching no-hitter and Brian Paluga tossed one-hitter to spark Highland, Ind., to 2-0 win over U.S. armed forces dependents' club from West Germany. New Rivals for Palmer; Thoroughbreds to Race

Jack Palmer appears destined to run into tougher competition and the ancient argument over the running abilities of quarter horses and thoroughbreds is going to get heated up again when the Vancouver Island Quarter Horse Racing Association meet continues Friday at Sandown Park.

Palmer is the veteran Oregon jockey who left rivals and almost 3,000 fans gasping last Saturday when he rode winners in all eight races on the opening card of the three-day meet.

Meet manager Danny Hajnal has announced that at least four experienced riders including Ron Archer, one of California's top quarterhorse jockeys, and Ron Chapple, a veteran from Vancouver's Exhibition Park will have mounts.

Added uncertainty was thrown into the pot with the addition of two Exhibition Park thoroughbreds — Yankee Fighter and Miss Elk Lake — to the field in the 660-yard seventh race.

Officials of the VIQHRA, caught off guard by the large crowd last Saturday, have promised to eliminate the delay experienced by many bettors through the opening of more mutuel windows.

With favorites winning seven of the eight races last weeknd, fans had to be contented with small payoffs — but the situation could be different during the final days.

WASHINGTON HORSES

At least 12 new sprinters are ticketed to increase the population already in residence at the Sandown stables. Seven are expected from Washington with another five coming from within the province.

Denny Smith of Amarillo, Texas, who is the racing director for the American Quarter Horse Association, is reported to be on his way to attend the last races.

Post time Friday is 4:15 p.m. with another eight races set to start at 1:15 p.m. Saturady.

Hajnal announced today that bus transportation for race fans will be available both days from C and C Taxi, 906 Government Street.

Buses leave at 3 and 3:15 p.m. Friday as well as noon and 12:15 p.m. on Saturday. The $3.75 return fare includes admission to the grandstand.

DRIVER KILLED IN ATTEMPT TO SNAP MARK

BONNEVILLE, Utah (AP) — A California race car driver was killed Wednesday when he crashed at 325 miles an hour while attempting to break a land speed record on the Bonneville Salt Flats.

Noel Black, 34, of Sacramento, died in a Salt Lake City hospital about five houk after his Streamliner went out of control and flipped end over end.

Officials of the Bonneville Racing Association said Black had just finished a timed mile when his vehicle suddenly swerved out of control.

There was no immediate indication what caused the crash but drivers on the Salt Flats Tuesday complained of high, gusty winds. "You couldn't get me out there on a dare," one driver said.

Nanaimo City Upsets Labs

NANAIMO, B.C. (CP) — Nanaimo City scored four goals in overtime to upset Nanaimo Labs 17-13 Wednesday night in the third game of the Vancouver Island senior B lacrosse final.

Labs, who won earlier games 33-6 and 21-8, lead the best-of-five series 2-1. Fourth game will be here tonight.

OWNERS SUFFERING FROM LOW ATTENDANCE

Puck Penguins for Sale

DETROIT (AP) — Negotiations are in progress by owners of Pittsburgh Penguins to sell the National Hockey League team.

Bruce Whitaker, spokesman for the major shareholders in the team, declined Wednesday to say how much the owners are asking for the team which cost some $2,500,000 in 1967 when it was formed in the NHL expansion.

Whitaker, assistant to Penguin board chairman Donald Parsons of Birmingham, Mich., said: "Mr. Parsons is under some pressure from lenders to improve his liquidity.

"As to the hockey club, we are negotiating with the Mellon Bank on our loans with them."

Whitaker said payments on interest and principal are due each quarter and that the account is up to date although the next payment is due Sept. 30.

Whitaker said the bank loaned Parsons and his partners money to purchase the team in 1968 and about $3,500,000 remains to be paid. He also said the Parsons group owes Detroit Red Wings a portion of the $500,000 awarded to the Wings as part of the original expansion deal.

Whitaker said the Penguins have suffered from low attendance and this, in turn, has made it difficult to meet loan payments on time. He said the partners, nine Detroit-area men who own 80 per cent of the club, have had to reach into their own pockets at times to make payments. Parsons owns 40 per cent of the club.

Scholarship Received

Only Vancouver Island resident among 11 young British Columbia athletes selected this year for Molson hockey scholarships, Oak Bay High School graduate George Walton officially received his award Wednesday night in a ceremony at the Imperial Inn.

Sponsored by a brewing company, the scholarships have been awarded for the past five years to athletes demonstrating natural hockey ability while displaying good citizenship and academic achievement. Each winner is permitted to apply the $500 scholarship to attendance at any university in the province that has an accredited hockey program.

PLANS LAW CAREER

Walton, who received his award from Leo Margolis of Nanaimo, past-president of the B.C. Sports Federation, said he plans to enter the University of Victoria next month as a student of economics. He hopes to eventually obtain a law degree.

VICTORIA BASEBALL TEAM IN NATIONAL TOURNAMENT

Centennials Head for Brandon

Members of the first Victoria team to enter the annual Canadian senior amateur baseball championship tournament left this morning for Brandon, Man., to participate in the four-day affair beginning Friday.

"Victoria Centennials" recently captured the B.C. senior amateur title in Kelowna to qualify for their shot at the national crown.

The team, managed by Keith Todd, is mainly composed of the best players from four teams that make up the local league — Transport Workers, Gorge Hotel, Greaves Movers and Imperial Essos.

But a few visitors have been inserted in the lineup.

Expected to share pitching duties are Gagecole, George Brice and Bob Mabee, while Dave Morgan will replace catcher Mike Embury, who suffered a hand injury during an exhibition contest last Sunday.

Winner of the national championship will represent Canada in world competition and at the 1971 Pan-American games.

Roxburgh Takes Lead In Last-Chance Bid

The 18-year-old golfer fired a one-over-par 69 at Brightwood Golf and Country Club Tuesday for a one-stroke lead after the first round.

But he has yet to put together a strong back nine.

In all four rounds he has gone over par on the back nine.

He was three strokes under par going on to the 13th tee during the first round. His trouble started there. He went one over par on both the 13th and 14th holes, and went two over regulation count on number 16.

JACKSON SECOND

Robbie Jackson, 15, of Ile Bizard, Que., trails in second place with a 70 while Fred Cotton of Vancouver and Steve Koncz of Hamilton carded 72s for third place.

The field of 154 golfers will be cut to the top 60 and ties after today's second round. Only the survivors will play the final 36 holes Friday and Saturday.

Roxburgh has been a member of the B.C. junior interprovincial team for four straight years. He was third in last year's national junior competitions and in the semi-finals for two straight years when the title was determined through medal play. He was named Monday as an alternate to the team representing Canada in the world amateur team championships at Madrid, Spain, in September.

Michael McTaggart, 16, of Islington, Ont., is in second place in the juvenile competition with a 74.

For their 71s, both Koncz and Cotton went two strokes over par on the front nine and returned to the clubhouse, one stroke over regulation on the back nine.

GIRARD FIRES 75

Still in contention are Victorians Jim Girard and Rob Ferguson. Girard fashioned a score of 37-38—75 while Ferguson carded 40-41—81.

OUTDOOR SCENE

By Barry M. Thornton

Blue grouse will be the main targets of Vancouver Island hunters during the early weekends of the 1970 shooting season. After the middle of September, hunter success will drop dramatically as the blues begin the annual autumn migration.

Unlike most wildlife, blue grouse migrate uphill into the dense timber for the winter. Males begin to migrate early in August with females and broods following in mid-September. During the winter months they scatter throughout the mature forests subsisting on fir needles. In the spring they migrate downhill to very specific nesting-breeding sites. The criteria for these nesting-breeding areas is very demanding. The availability of these sites is the limiting factor which substantially controls the population of Blue grouse.

For the hunter, the migration period is very frustrating. One weekend the hunter will have a bonanza shoot and the next not a bird will be found. Once the migration begins blues are very difficult to find unless they are encountered on their migration routes.

The key to consistent success for the blue grouse hunter is to have a basic knowledge of the daily and seasonal habits of this upland game bird.

Early morning is feeding and gravelling time for almost all upland game birds. The blue is no exception and it is at this time that birds are occassionally spotted on or near side roads.

The new hunter in any area should travel the roads during these early-morning periods to locate birds. Once a flock has been found the hunter should note carefully the terrain and vegetation in the surrounding area. After spotting a few flocks he will begin to note specific features common to all areas.

These areas vary with different regions of the Island but have the following specific features; they are near or overlooking water. This may be in the form of a creek, pond, small lake or spring; flocks are found on a slope where the birds have quick access to large fir trees to hide in when flushed. If not on a slope, then the birds will be found near clumps of evergreen trees where they can fly and hide when disturbed. Feed varies considerably from fern leaf tips to salal berries and cannot be used as a consistent feature.

Early in the season, hunters are well advised to hunt the slash areas near water and near clumps or stretches of mature fir. Be on the look-out for the sentinel bird. During the day the flock will sun and dust, usually in the open slash. At this time one of the flock usually takes the position of sentinel, perching on top of a stump or along a log. The flock scatters near the stump. With a pair of binoculars these sentinel birds are relatively easy to locate. Early in the season the sentinel bird will not flush until the hunter is well within range. When he does the flock will also flush providing excellent wing shooting. Here is where a hunting dog is invaluable. As a rule a few birds from the block will not flush. Instead they will crouch and hide until the danger is past. A hunting dog will quickly find and flush these birds for the hunter.

Seldom will a blue grouse fly uphill when flushed.

This is a very important rule to remember when moving towards a flock of birds. The blue is primarily a ground bird with short wings. While powerful for short distances, they will not sustain the bird for any length of time. Because of this, a flushed blue will inevitably fly downhill to gain extra speed and distance. Remembering this rule, hunters can be guaranteed a shot if they approach the flock from below. If spotted, the birds will usually flush horizontal to the slope. However, as usually happens, the birds flush straight downhill giving the hunter the most difficult shot of all — a straight on.

Hunters with dogs apply this rule very effectively. Starting at the bottom of a hill they criss-cross back and forth working the dog above them at all times. In this way, when a flock or single is flushed, it flies toward the hunters.

When a flock is found and flushed the action is fast and demanding for those short moments while the birds are in range. At this time, while the birds are flushing, the hunter must mark the birds he downs. This is critical if birds are not to be lost in the fever of the moment.

Fallen birds can be marked in many ways, but remember that a downed blue is extremely difficult to see in slash as his coloration is a burnt brown-black. A good hunting dog is invaluable for finding these down birds and for recovering any birds which may have been crippled.

It is interesting to note that hunters are responsible for a kill of only six per cent of the total grouse population. These figures have been recorded by Dr. J. F. Bendell and Dr. F. C. Zwickel, who for the past few years have been conducting various studies on blue grouse throughout the Pacific Northwest. Vancouver Island studies on blue grouse are being conducted by Dr. Bendell and Dr. Zwickle in the Anderton Lake-Browns River and the Quinsam Lakes areas. For the upland game bird hunter interested in blue grouse an excellent booklet is available. (Queen's Printer, Ottawa, Cat. No. R65 — 8-4, price—$1.00) entitled, "Behaviour and the regulation of numbers of blue grouse." by J. F. Bendell and P. W. Elliott. This booklet details the studies and conclusions resulting from the Quinsam Lakes blue grouse research.

This year blue grouse have been banded in the above study areas. Hunters recovering banded birds in these research areas are asked to see that the bands are either sent to Dr. Bendell, Dept. of Zoology, UBC, or given to any member of the fish and wildlife branch.

MARSDEN ADVANCES

VANCOUVER — Victoria's Don Marsden was among the three Canadians who advanced to the quarter-finals in Wednesday's second round of match play in the Pacific Northwest Golf Association junior championship.

Marsden moved on with a 1-up ove rSteven Sturart of Brenerton over the Marine Drive course.

Two other Canadians advancing to the eights were Mark Daniel and Stephen Berry, both of Vancouver.

Rocky Chapman and Doug Hood, both of Portland; Tom Egge of Medford, Ore.; Norm Patterson of Oak Harbour and Scott McDougall of Wenatchee are the other quarter-finalists.

Cincy Southpaw Was Ready With Fizz Stuff in Locker

By The Associated Press

Jim Merritt must have known something. Why else would the slick Cincinati Reds southpaw stash away nearly a case of champagne in his locker before the game?

"You don't win 20 games every day," said the 26-year-old hurler after he became the first left-hander in 45 years to win 20 for the Reds.

Merritt didn't last all the way, going 62-3 innings before Wayne Granger came on to save the memorable victory as the Reds edged Philadelphia Phillies 5-6 Wednesday night.

Merritt, who has lost 10 decisions, became the National League's first 20-game winner this season although he gave up 15 hits before Granger bailed him out. Dave McNally of Baltimore Orioles has 20 victories in the American League. The last Cincinnati lefty to win 20 was Eppa Rixey, who was 21-11 in 1925.

In other NL action, Atlanta Braves dropped New York Mets 9-7, San Diego Padres edged Pittsburgh Pirates 2-1, Los Angeles Dodgers beat Chicago Cubs 8-5, Houston Astros topped Montreal Expos 5-4 and San Francisco Giants edged St. Louis Cardinals 8-7.

WAS AHEAD BY 4

Merritt had a 6-2 edge before the Phils unloaded for three runs in the seventh, knocking him out.

Tony Perez slammed his 39th homer of the year and Bernie Carbo had a three-run shot for the Reds, his 21st. Don Money cracked a two-run homer for the Phils.

Hank Aaron slammed his 35th homer of the year, triggering a three-run Atlanta ninth inning that overcame a 7-6 Mets lead. Aaron's two-run shot and No. 589 of his career capped an uphill battle by the Braves, who at one time trailed 7-1.

Orlando Cepeda, Clete Boyer and Bob Tillman added homers for Atlanta while Art Shamsky and Wayne Garrett had two-run blasts for New York.

SPIEZIO HOMERS

Ed Spiezio drilled a two-run homer—his 10th round-tripper of the year—in the seventh inning, sending the Padres to their second straight victory over the Pirates. Despite the loss Pittsburgh remains three games in front of the Mets in the East.

Pat Dobson, 10-13, allowed 12 hits but the Pirates scored only in the sixth on John Jeter's single, stolen base and Roberto Clemente's run-scoring single.

Jim Lefebvre clouted a three-run homer and Claude Osteen captured his 14th victory with relief help from Jim Brewer as the Dodgers stopped the Cubs, who trail the Pirates by 4½ games. John Callison had a two-run homer for Chicago.

DON BUFORD HOMERS

In the American League, Don Buford cuffed Jim Hunter for a two-run homer Wednesday night, propelling the Baltimore Orioles to a 5-1 victory over the fading Oakland Athletics.

Elsewhere, a bomb scare in Cleveland failed to rattle Steve Hargan, who pitched the Indians to a 7-2 victory over Milwaukee Brewers; Minnesota Twins blanked Boston Red Sox 7-0 on rookie Bert Blyleven's four-hitter; the New York Yankees topped Kansas City Royals 3-0 behind Stan Bahnsen; California Angels beat Detroit Tigers 6-3 and the Chicago White Sox downed Washington Senators 3-1.

SAILOR DUNKED BUT GRETEL WINS

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Despite a monetary man-overboard panic, Australia's Gretel II won decisively over France Wednesday in their third match race in the series to decide who will challenge for the America's Cup.

Gretel soundly defeated the French 12-metre yacht by two minutes and 24 seconds, bringing her lead over France to 3-0.

The Australian boat's decisive victory makes her a firm favorite to challenge for the America's Cup next month. She has only to win one more race in the best-of-seven series.

Gretel's fine performance was nearly ruined when a crew member, yet to be identified, fell over the side shortly after the Australian boat set her spinnaker on the second leg of the course. At the time she was leading by one minute and 52 seconds.

Almost miraculously, he caught hold of a trailing rope and surfed alongside the boat for nearly a minute until fellow crew members wrestled him back on board.

Had the man let go of the rope, Gretel would have had to lower her spinnaker and go back to pick him up which would have meant a certain loss of the race.

B.C. ROUNDUP

Alderman Raps 'Cruel' Immigration Policies

VANCOUVER (CP) — City alderman Art Phillips has written to federal immigration minister Allan MacEachen protesting "cruel" immigration policies which encourage people to come to Canada with false expectations.

"We appear to be advertising for nurses and many other occupations in which there is currently considerable unemployment," Mr. Phillips said in the letter.

"Not only is this cruel to the individuals who are brought over here on false pretences but it is also a waste of the Canadian taxpayers' money. We would be better off to greatly curtail all these programs overseas which are designed to encourage people to come to Canada."

The protest was prompted by the case of a 22-year-old Dutch draughtsman who emigrated to Canada three months ago. He wrote to Mr. Phillips that he had been unable to find work although before leaving Holland he had never been given the impression that he would have such problems here.

STARVATION, DISEASE NO LONGER A THREAT

War Aftermath Still Haunts the Ibos

By JAMES MARKHAM

OWERRI, Nigeria (AP) — Widespread malnutrition, starvation and disease no longer threaten the people of what was once Biafra.

But remaining is the enormous task of rebuilding the war-broken economy, creating jobs for hundreds of thousands of unemployed, and returning the Ibo people to something approaching normal.

Nigeria's East Central state, which contains the Ibo core of secessionist Biafra, shows signs of 30 months of fighting and still has pockets of malnutrition in the knobby, grassy hills of the north and in the dense rain forests of the south, where the rebels held out the longest and suffered the most.

For 25 miles east of the Niger River town of Onitsha, where fighting was fierce, most concrete houses are still in ruins. A roof is a rarity.

MARKET CROWDED

Few Ibos can afford to buy more than daily necessities. Most homes have only a few pieces of furniture. People fortunate enough to own serviceable cars often turn them into part-time taxis.

At the Holy Rosary Hospital in Emekuku, on the outskirts of battered, drab Owerri, shrivelled, bloated and tubercular children cling to the chance of a healthy life later on. It is the same story in scores of sick bays in Orlu, Okigwi, Umuahia, Afikpo and little-known villages tucked away down muddy bush roads.

Of the 295,000 people still being fed, half are being treated for malnutrition and half are being saved from sliding into malnutrition, say relief officials.

The Nigerian Red Cross left at the end of June, turning over relief operations to the state's inexperienced rehabiliation commission. It in turn leans heavily on the handful of private agencies that are still the backbone of the feeding program.

ECONOMY IN TROUBLE

It seems unlikely that the Ibo-land econofy will respond to human exertions as quickly as the food crisis has.

Food production in the traditionally food-importing area has dropped below pre-war levels. Most factories, badly damaged by war, are still closed. The number of trucks on the good state roads has dropped while the cost of running them has soared.

The massacres of Ibos in Northern Nigeria before secession and the war itself tended to concentrate the tribe into an area that was already one of the most densely populated in Africa.

Some Ibos have begun to trickle out of the state in search of work, but they have been blocked from returning southward to the Rivers State town of Port Harcourt, an important entrepot they once dominated.

Alhough it is getting some financial help from Lagos and international agencies, the East Central state will run a budget deficit of between $42 million and $59 million this fiscal year. Its capacity to raise revenue is small, but it has set itself ambitious targets in the fields of education and rehabiiitation.

NO POT BELLIES OF HUNGER are in evidence as a group of Ibo youngsters clamber over a downed airplane at the Uli airstrip in Owerri, Nigeria. The plane is a remainder of the Biafran conflict which ended in January. Pot bellies on children, a sign of the protein deficiency disease kwashiorkor, were common during the war, but are rarer now as relief efforts take hold (AP Wirephoto)

We make it mild on purpose.

What we offer is mildness. We make it mild on purpose.
So if symbols and a lot of talk about full-bodied flavour don't exactly light your fire, maybe you'd like a little mildness.
The kind we put in every Matinée.

DRESS RESTRICTION WITHDRAWN

Welfare Accepts the Kooky

Phil Gaglardi's welfare department has withdrawn a 1968 directive requiring welfare applicants to be of "conventional dress and appearance."

However, Gaglardi said Wednesday that long-haired men seeking welfare still will have to agree to a haircut if a prospective employer demands it.

The 1968 directive, attacked by the B.C. Civil Liberties Association, has been superseded by a new Department of Rehabilitation and Social Improvement assessment form.

This form doesn't mention dress or appearance.

But it does ask applicants some questions that have been criticized, such as whether they need counselling for financial, marital, drinking or drug problems.

Gaglardi said these questions will remain, adding: "How can you help people if you can't find out their problems?"

The new assessment form itself has been widely criticized for prying into the lives of welfare applicants in areas that are not the government's business.

St. Joseph's Switch Labelled 'Shocking'

The extended care facilities which were to be added to St. Joseph's Hospital will be built elsewhere and the chairman of the society that will soon administer St. Joseph's says this is "shocking."

The Capital Regional Hospital District Board decided unanimously Wednesday to look for cheaper sites as an alternative.

But Alex Wood, chairman of the Southern Vancouver Island Hospital Society, said this decision is contrary to all technical recommendations for area extended care needs.

Mayor Arthur Young of Esquimalt told the regional body at its Wednesday meeting that land cost is his major objection to building the extended care hospital on St. Ann's Academy land adjoining St. Joseph's.

This would cost about $1.6 million, he said, and added to this would be for relocation of services and $100,000 for demolition of St. Ann's buildings.

Wood called this statement a "sad misrepresentation of fact." The $1.6 million referred to the cost of land needed for all St. Joseph's expansion, not just for land to accommodate the extended care wing.

He said the actual cost to taxpayers for extended care facilities would be about $150,000. The regional board is "out by a factor of 10."

The board also reaffirmed unanimously an earlier decision that when public funds are involved in the purchase of land the title of the property be held in the name of the Capital Regional Hospital District.

WOOD

The decisions made at an afternoon meeting were designed to get action on expansion plans after months of argument, confusion and delay.

On top of this, Young added, the board is expected not to own the land.

The problems that have delayed construction at St. Joseph's since last year include a disagreement between the city of Victoria and Health Minister Ralph Loffmark on future road patterns in the hospital vicinity. Another is the disagreement between the St. Joseph's hospital board and the regional hospital board on which should hold the title to the St. Ann's property.

Added to this was the question whether St. Joseph's could build the 150-bed extended care facilities within the provincial government's cost guidelines.

●

Royal Jubilee Hospital found earlier in the year that it could not construct the facilities within the guidelines and the regional hospital district asked St. Joseph's to study the possibilities of building the 150 beds there.

District chairman J. B. Cumming, mayor of North Saanich, said at Wednesday's meeting another pertinent factor had arisen since the executive committee last week.

Dr. Peter Banks, chief of staff at St. Joseph's, told the hospital advisory committee meeting Aug. 19, after what Cumming termed strong discussion, that the hospital could build the facilities within the guidelines.

"He personally undertook to provide proof within one month," Cumming added.

●

Board member Frances Elford, Mayor of Oak Bay, said by moving the facilities to a less expensive site 225 beds instead of 150 beds could be provided for $1 million less.

She said a centre of this size could be a "viable unit" by itself and draw medical staff wherever it was located.

Ald. Clyde Savage of Victoria said he had some doubts as to public reaction to a study for another location that could take six months.

But Mayor Hugh Curtis of Saanich said this had not been the board's experience with other hospitals.

Earlier in the meeting, the board moved to send a letter to Gorge Road Hospital for submitting working drawings for 300 extended care beds to the provincial government Tuesday, six days before the end-of-the-month deadline.

"All parties would be better off," Young said when proposing the study for an alternative site.

The Sisters of St. Ann, owners of the academy, could get the price they wanted from another purchaser, he said, and the city would get taxes from the buyer.

As well, the city could revert to its original traffic plan for the area and not have to spend money removing services for hospital expansion.

The provincial government, Young said, would save several hundered thousand dollars and the regional hospital district would get the best dollar value which would be more acceptable to the public.

Church Secretary Dies at 94

Mrs. Frances Bullen, 94, the oldest and longest serving church secretary in Victoria, died in Royal Jubilee Hospital this morning.

Mrs. Bullen served as secretary-treasurer for Lake Hill Mission at Falmouth and Savannah for 44 years. She resigned last January.

As well as handling her duties as mission secretary and bookkeeper she taught Sunday school until the age of 75.

It was Frank Bullen who built the present mission structure in 1937.

Mrs. Bullen had been in hospital since May 27.

NEW OUTFALL sewer pipes are being assembled in Esquimalt at Macaulay Point ready to be floated into position Sept. 8. The 7,200 feet of 36-inch pipe will be welded into single length and lowered 200 feet to the ocean floor. New outfall and trunk line will serve Esquimalt and parts of Victoria and Saanich. Existing outfall discharges just off the shore. (Bill Halkett Photo).

Hospital Plan Taken for Study

The Capital Regional Hospital District received for study Wednesday the $14.3 million long-term development proposal for Royal Jubilee Hospital with a recommendation for approval in principle from the district's executive committee.

The master plan, prepared by Vancouver architects Thompson, Berwick, Pratt and Partners, calls for expansion and renovations about $500,000 below the estimate of consultant Harvey Agnew in his survey of the region's hospital needs completed two years ago.

Jubilee has 521 acute care beds but under the plan this would increase to 660 beds. A total of 177 new beds would be created but with some old beds disappearing in the changes the net gain would be 139 beds.

The bulk of the spending, however, would go to update and expand facilities for ambulatory care, out-patient care, diagnostic services and day-care surgery and over the years the main entrances would shift from the south to the north of the complex.

Dr. A. C. Pickles, the hospital's executive director, has said the plan is a total concept of what the Jubilee should be moving towards and not a cut-and-dried affair.

If the plan is completed, it would bring the hospital up to the point Agnew recommended in order to carry its share of the hospital load predicted for 1986.

BOARD TO BUY 30 ACRES

The Capital Regional District agreed Wednesday to purchase 30 acres west of Durrance Lake as part of its regional parks program.

The purchase is subject to approval by the provincial recreation and conservation department which contributes a one-third grant towards all regional parks.

The land would be part of the regional parks system extending from McKenzie Bight on Saanich Inlet to, ultimately, Heal's rifle range when and if the government declares it surplus and south to Mount Work, said Tony Roberts, the district's planning director.

'EXCITING SUGGESTION'

MP Backs Park for Charlottes

David Anderson, MP for Esquimalt-Saanich said today he supports a proposal that a national park be created in the Queen Charlotte Islands with funds from the federal government's $10 million gift for B.C.'s 1971 centennial.

"I think it is an exciting suggestion," he said. "The Queen Charlotte Islands have the longest beaches in the province and in the near future will attract thousands of visitors."

Tom Taylor, president of the Federation of B.C. Naturalists, and former head of the botany department at the University of British Columbia, made the suggestion Wednesday.

Anderson said by acting now the problem of paying high prices to acquire privately owned land would be avoided.

"If we wait to create a park we will be faced with the same problem as the Long Beach national park where both provincial and federal governments are buying back an alienated property at high costs."

He estimated it would cost about $6.5 million to acquire privately-owned property at Long Beach where some expensive homes have been built. If governments had acted 10 years ago, the price would have been half, and 20 years ago, almost nothing.

It would take about $3 million of the $10 million fund to establish a park on the islands, but he felt costs would steadily rise in the next few years if no action was taken now to assemble the land.

People are already seeking to buy land there, he said.

Arthur Mayse . . .

ONE MORNING BEFORE this week is done, the 48-foot troller Sea Beam will take on six or seven tons of flake ice at Oakland Industries dock near Johnson Street bridge. Around noon, grubbed up and fueled up, she will ease out to Juan de Fuca Strait.

A run of eight to 10 hours will fetch her to the Pacific gateway. But instead of rounding Carmanah Point on a course for Canadian fishing grounds, she will head southwest around Washington State's Cape Flattery.

Sea Beam — Dick Williams her master and Allan Meadows her deckhand — will anchor for the night off Destruction Island. At crack of dawn, her crew will be stirring a quick mug of coffee, then they'll take the troller out toward the 40-fathom line, and get her fishing gear overside.

If their luck is in, they will catch coho salmon released as fingerlings from American hatcheries into American waters.

In case you're wondering at this point why Sea Beam and the rest of Canada's 600-unit fleet of ice-packing trollers should have forsaken our own West Coast banks this season, the answer given me is both blunt and grim.

No fish.

The banks off Vancouver Island and north along have failed to produce.

So the Canadian fleet is working the reach of Continental Shelf that extends seaward from Washington and Oregon, and its fishermen are mad as hornets about a situation which they blame directly on Ottawa.

It isn't run-of-the-mill fishermen's grumbling. These are men who see their livelihood threatened, and they are deep-down angry. There's talk in the fleet of a next-season's boycott of federally issued commercial fishing licences.

Why should we lay out for licences, fishermen are asking, when we can't make a catch in Canadian waters?

I learned of this projected protest from Allan Meadows, who depends on commercial trolling to pay his way through University of Victoria.

Meadows, who lives with his parents at 4960 Georgia Park Terrace, says that troller men, and fishermen generally, have two main areas of concern.

One is the yearly encroachment by Russian net fishermen on grounds which they believe should be brought under Canadian fisheries control.

For this they blame Mitchell Sharp of External Affairs much more than Fisheries Minister Jack Davis. They feel that Sharp has waffled when he should have pressed strongly for a Russian remove to the blue water beyond our sector of Continental Shelf.

Their second contention is that federal fisheries, through lack of such replacement efforts as Oregon and Washington have made over many years, has permitted a once-rich natural resource "to be literally shot to hell."

They want hatcheries, not merely one or two as a token gesture, but as part of a broad and continuing salmon restoration program. And they demand stream protection with teeth in it.

I asked Meadows how troller men are reacting to a this-week claim by a fisheries department survey crew that Russian trawlers have been taking large quantities of hake, but no salmon or herring.

The answer was explicit.

"The 'G. B. Read' made a good effort," Meadows said, "but fishermen feel it wasn't at all conclusive. The herring had already been fished by the Russians when the Read went out: she should have been there a month earlier. When it comes to proving anything about Russian salmon catches, she hadn't a chance. Read hasn't the speed, the nets or the manpower. She didn't fish 24 hours a day as the Russians do. And she isn't a stern trawler."

Meanwhile, the season in which Canadian trollers couldn't make a stake in Canadian waters is on the down-slope. Sea Beam, near-victim of a Russian ramming earlier this summer, will make one or possibly two more trips.

Then, along with the rest of a multi-million dollar ice-packing fleet, she will tie up for the winter.

RUNWAY TENDER AWARDED

Step Taken to Jet Age

Construction of a 1,000-foot extension to allow jets to land on the main runway at Victoria International Airport will start immediately, manager Jack Knowland said today.

A contract has been awarded to McPhail's Construction Co. Ltd., Vancouver, one of three companies to bid on the project, which has been delayed about two years.

Work will include modification of the instrument landing approach system. The improvements will enable Air Canada DC-9 jets to make Victoria a scheduled stop.

Cost of the job was estimated at $500,000.

Other bidders were Columbia Bitulithic and Dawson Construction, also of Vancouver.

DEATH VALLEY DAYS

Doctoral Student Stalks Wild Burros

DEATH VALLEY, Calif. (AP) — For six months in the searing heat and desolate wilds of Death Valley, a 26-year-old, blue-eyed Texas blonde has been stalking herds of wild burros.

For at least the next year Patti Moehlman expects to continue travelling over the barren hills by foot, jeep and her horse Rafiki, in pursuit of the nomadic beasts.

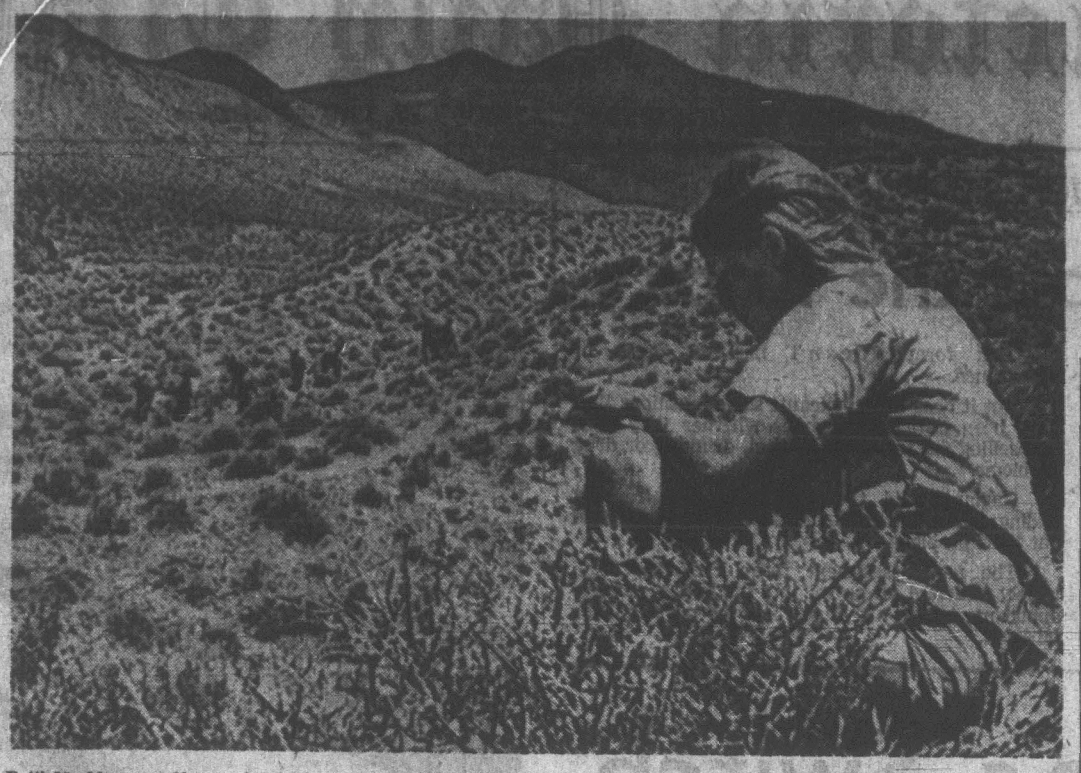

Her 18-month study, undertaken as part of her work toward a doctorate in behavioral ecology at the University of Wisconsin, has stunned experts familiar with the lonely valleys and parched hills.

Her study is the first of the descendants of the beasts of burden of early-day prospectors and miners. It is expected to help the Bureau of Land Management decide whether to establish wild burro refuges in the Southern California desert—a controversial subject since some people are sympathetic to the burro and others feel it is causing serious damage to native plants.

So far the Austin, Texas, zoologist has photographed and named 120 burros among an estimated 8,000 to 10,000 thought to be roaming 10 Western states. Another 1,500 are thought to live in the valley.

"There's a good amount of fighting by males over females—real knockdown, drag-out brawls," she said in an interview. "Males bite each other on the ears, getting good grips with their teeth, then whirling their adversaries around in a circle."

Intense heat and the ease of getting lost are the main dangers of the desert. But Miss Mohelman says she takes care to protect herself from the sun and carefully maps routes before venturing out into the wilderness. She also said she stores extra provisions before heading for a campsite.

Patti Moehlman, a 26-year-old girl from Texas studying for her doctorate as a behavioral ecologist, crouches behind some sagebrush while keeping tabs on a herd of wild burros in the cooler higher elevations of Death Valley, Calif. Since March she has followed the burros by foot, jeep and horseback as part of an 18-month project headed by several organizations to study these nomadic beasts. (AP Wirephoto.)

DEAR ABBY . . .

In the Soup

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Last month I started to work in a large insurance office, and right off the bat I became attracted to a good looking young department head. Not bragging, but I've got a lot going for me, too. I'm 24, single, and a well-built redhead who never lacked for attention.

Well, Department Head and I started seeing each other a lot, but always at my place. (He was sort of secretive about where he lived.)

Yesterday he called in sick with a chest cold, so I decided to surprise him with some chicken soup. (I got his address from the office files).

When I rang his bell, I was the one who got the surprise! A tall, skinny blonde about my age answered his door in a bath towel. At first she wasn't going to let me in, but I pushed her aside and went right to the bedroom to see my sick friend. He was sick all right, and he got sicker when he saw me. The bedroom looked plenty "lived in," if you know what I mean. Her stuff thrown all over the place along with his.

Department Head said Blondie was a childhood chum who had come to town to hunt a job, was low on funds, so he was putting her up temporarily. Now, Abby, how does this story sound to you?—Red.

DEAR RED: Fishy. Department Head could have helped the blonde by giving her a few dollars for a pad of her own. (P.S.: Too bad you didn't know in advance that you were going to cook his goose. You could have skipped the chicken soup.)

DEAR ABBY: I know a woman who goes to A.A. meetings all the time, and she's not an alcoholic. This is the truth, Abby. She told me so herself, but she asked me not to tell anybody. She has never had a drinking problem, but she says she goes there because she's "lonesome" and nobody asks her any questions.

She says she has met a lot of very nice men that way—and women, too. What do you think of such a person?—Just Wondering.

DEAR JUST: She must be very lonesome. (And clever, too.)

DEAR ABBY: My mother-in-law isn't really a mean person, she's just ignorant. How else can you describe a person who introduces me and my children this way?

"This is my daughter-in-law and her two adopted children."

Abby, I have to bite my lip to keep from crying when I hear her say this.

My children are only one year old and two and a half—still a little too young to know what adopted means, but as soon as they are old enough to understand, I intend to tell them. But in the meantime, what can be done about such a stupid woman?—Young Mother.

DEAR YOUNG: Someone should tell her in a nice way to disengage her mouth until she's sure her brain is in gear.

DEAR ABBY: My heart goes out to that poor mixed up teen-aged girl whose father called her a tramp because she slept with different boys. I was in that girl's shoes when I was in my teens and my father never called me a tramp. He helped me all the way because he knew I was a troubled, mixed-up kid.

I am now a happy wife and mother and I hope my father is proud of me now because I am very proud of him.

Girls who are called tramps by their fathers usually stay tramps all their lives. God bless my dad.—Daddy's Girl.

DEAR ABBY: Is it considered good manners to comment on a ladies jewelry? I mean, if the comment is meant as a compliment? — Syracuse.

DEAR SYRACUSE: Certainly. It's a fairly safe bet that the lady who adorns herself with jewelry does so in the hope that it will be noticed.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Letter writing can be a breeze. For Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069.

Couple No. 6 Marry in Chile

By GINNY GALT

Marriage, Chilean style, is not for the liberated woman.

When Kathy Mannix of Victoria, dropped in Santiago, Chile, in December to visit her friend John Parry, a geological engineer with the Canadian University Service Overseas, they thought it might be "sort of neat" to get married.

But they had to wait a month before they could even be squeezed into the Chilean civil ceremony appointment book.

"We were finally fitted in at 10 on a Thursday morning and when we arrived to get married we had to wait in line. We were couple number six," said Kathy, who is holidaying in Victoria.

"It was like a bread stors they give you a number and call when they are ready to serve you. Poor John was visibly shaken by the time they had reached couple number five."

The ceremony, conducted in Spanish, was translated for Kathy.

"It was more like a contract than a wedding. They list all the rules you have to follow, and ask if you love one another. You say 'si', and that's it."

She said the women are subservient in Chile, and obedience is heavily emphasized in the marriage contract.

By law, John must provide her with the best home he can possibly afford. But the law also states that she must let him into the house at all times, "no matter what."

A woman must go anywhere her husband wants her to go, as long as it doesn't endanger her life.

"They didn't say anything about my health, just my life."

Although two-third of John's salary goes into their apartment each month, they have no electrical appliances, so a great deal of time is taken up by housework.

Washes by Hand

"I have to wash all the clothes by hand, and polish the floors without a polisher. On the whole, Chilean women work hard."

John is being paid Chilean wages, and life isn't just a bowl of chili when you're broke.

"I get depressed every time I go to the supermarket and look at the prices. Meat costs about the same there as here, expensive."

But the fruit and vegetables are inexpensive and good.

In Chile there are four meals a day: a light breakfast, a main meal at noon, a light meal at 5 p.m., and another heavy meal at 10 p.m.

She said through the efforts of Mount Doug students and others, over a ton of clothing was sent to the House.

For fun, the Parrys head off to night clubs, or have people over to their apartment which is easier on the pocketbook.

"Most of the people there sing well and play guitars, so whenever we have Chilean couples over, we have a singsong."

After John finishes his CUSO stint in Chile, they hope to see more of the world.

"But I think we'll eventually settle in B.C.," Kathy said.

Mrs. John Parry, the former Kathy Mannix of Victoria, relaxes for a moment with Alley Cat. Kathy has returned from Chile for a brief vacation. She and her husband, a CUSO volunteer, will be honored at an open house Saturday from 8 to 11 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Granger, 961 Lavender Avenue. (Bill Halkett photo.)

Strike in Victoria 'No Go'

Across the United States, women went on strike. It was the 50th anniversary of women's suffrage. They refused to cook or do housework, and rejected their husbands advances at night.

Some women took the kids into daddy at the office to give him a taste of the baby sitting detail. Others dumped the children on city hall steps to emphasize the need for day care centres.

But in Canada, the whole idea didn't catch on. Canadian women's lib leaders attritubed this to a lack of liaison between Canadian and American liberation organizations.

A survey of Victoria offices revealed that women were still manning their posts, doing the same old every-day things.

'Take Off the Blinkers' Pollution Speaker Asks WI

WINNIPEG (CP) — Delegates to the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada convention here were urged "to take off the blinkers" and consider the dangers pollution presents to the environment.

Mrs. Clarence Marchbank of Summerside, P.E.I., convener of the FWIC's national committee on agriculture and Canadian industries said, "We are knee deep in garbage while we watch the astronauts."

Calling on all citizens to "fight against the pioneer belief that the sky, soil and water have infinite capacity to absorb poisons," Mrs. Marchbank urged members to "take off the blinkers and look to the future."

She asked the FWIC to continue its studies on conservation and natural resources, its beautification of Canada programs and to apply pressure on governments to deal with pollution.

Mrs. Stanley Bride of Fordwich, Ont., convener of the United Nations and international exchange committee, said pollutants "are a result of the good life" that won't be worth having if it means destruction of the environment.

She added there were many aspects of the problem to consider including "moral pollution of human rights and dignity" which "will undermine our country eventually."

Mrs. William Gates of Rosseau, Ont. called pollution a problem that every citizen must fight because "if you are not a part of the solution, you are part of the problem."

She called on delegates to return to their homes to report the committee's findings, and added that "communication seems to be lacking from the national level to the branch level."

Nun Urges Women to Nag

WINNIPEG (CP) — A "great nagging campaign" by women must be launched immediately to guide essential change in a mixed-up world, a Roman Catholic sister told a convention of the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada here.

Sister M. Thomas More, head of the department of social science at Holy Family College in Manitowoc, Wisc., told delegates women must restore "the fine old art of nagging" as the method of communicating.

After all, she said, "When it comes down to the brass tacks, it is women who must stand guard over the very core of civilization itself, dedicated to the death to its betterment."

Wide and narrow? Right. New Confidets, from Scott — the first tapered sanitary napkins ever: wide in front, narrow in back. Just like natural body contours. And that's why a Confidet fits perfectly. Stays put. Gives you greater comfort than you've ever known before! Deep and shallow? Yes, both. A Confidet is twice as deep in the middle because that's where you need the greatest protection. Yet shallower at the ends, so there's no bulkiness. That means you get the security of a super pad (when you need it) without the worry of embarrassing outlines! It's the extra absorbency that makes Confidets so unique. And so comfortable. Confidets have just recently come to the West. Have you tried them yet?

After You Milk the Cows, Remember to Oil the Eggs

OTTAWA (CP)—"And when the milking is finished, don't forget to oil the eggs."

Oiled eggs? Yes, says the agriculture department.

And it isn't to make them trickier to handle or to keep them from squeaking.

Eggs oiled the day they emerge from the hen stand up far better to storage and, by preserving albumen quality, can raise the price farmers get for their eggs, the department says in its latest news release.

Albumen is in the egg whites. Albumen quality drops quickly in the first 48 hours of storage after an egg is laid, the department says in reporting on studies at its Agassiz, B.C., research station.

The higher the quality of the whites, the better the egg looks when cracked into a frying pan and the higher the grade it gets when inspected. Producers, by keeping quality up, can earn more money.

'Good Home Cooking Averts Drug Taking'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Children who come home to warm homes permeated with the smell of good cooking are less apt to seek sensations such as drug taking, in the opinion of author and social commentator Sam Levenson.

Levenson, who has written two best sellers on the simple virtues of life, is working on a third book which argues that the "sympathetic, automatic, electronic, noise-infested, soot-laden, oxygen-free, peace-free" atmosphere in which children are raised promotes addiction.

"A home should smell like a home," Levenson said. "Children have got to touch, see and feel that they are home. Mothering requires smothering children whose senses come alive at home do not need to take a trip in search of what is so freely available to them.

"We need to retrace our steps to the days when this kind of home was the rule and not the exception it is today. Too many children do not come home to something cooking in the oven. Over and over they say they 'come home to nobody all the time'."

Peking Is a Poor Town, For Leg Men, That Is

By NORMAN WEBSTER

PEKING — The pretty girl was on the beach at the seaside town of Peitaiho. She walked up on a small rocky point as her boy friend prepared to take her photograph.

From under her arm she took a bundle of black cotton — a skirt. She stepped into it, zipped it up, then began rolling her trouser legs above the hemline.

Sad to say, she didn't have to roll very far. In China, the midiskirt reigns. (Are you listening, Paris?)

Miniskirts, there are none. I have personally checked out Peking. It is a poor town for leg men.

These are cut the same way as men's trousers — loose. Tight pants are not only suspect politically, but also quite impractical in wintertime, when several layers of woolies and other undergarments reinforce resistance to the bitter wind from Mongolia.

Even in summer, skirts are worn by but a minority of women, although most below-teen girls put them on. The little girls may occasionally have hems above the knee and some of the early teenagers may exhibit models hovering around the kneecap, but more mature females firmly cover the patella. (Old ladies rarely appear in skirts.)

It is not quite accurate to say there are no miniskirts whatever in the city. Western women in the foreign community here — they are few — wear short skirts and often receive considerable attention when they go dowtown to shop.

One foreigner who received more attention than desired was the member of the British mission who wore his kilt on a trip to the railway station and was grabbed by policemen who felt this really was going a bit far. They were mollified when it was explained this was the native male habit of a British minority group.

Chinese skirts come in various colors and patterns — black, blue, flower prints, polka dots, checks. There are both straight and pleated versions and, like the trousers, they always hang loose.

This not only forestalls decadence but also makes it possible to hunker down in the confortable, balanced squat with knees wide apart that Chinese of all ages use when chatting, playing with children, waiting for a bus and so on. You can't do it and still be ladylike in a tight or short skirt.

The midiskirt fits in well here with the generally sober dress of the populace. The only really colorful displays generally come in the winter when the babies and toddlers are done up like gift-wrapped packages in oranges, reds, greens and purples, sometimes all at the same time.

The green-brown uniforms of the Peoples Liberation Army are present in fair numbers whatever the season. For most, tough, warm weather dress is mainly short-sleeved white shirts with blue trousers or skirts for women and blue trousers or tan shorts for men. Almost all wear sandals or felt slippers.

The pedicart drivers go topless.

Look for velour fabrics in borders of Greek key and other classic patterns, with the body of the fabric in solid color, used for wrap skirts.

Knit pants costumes will feature in jodphur effect, with the lower leg fitted in ribbed knit, repeated on the sleeves and body of a tunic top.

Suede pumps will have higher, slanted heels, an upswept tongue on which a gilt butterfly applique replaces the buckles of other seasons.

There will be "native" influence in knits, with peasant-stripe treatments combining ripple and plain stripes, odd color combinations.

MEDICARE LAWS PROTESTED

Montreal Doctors Hold Day-Long Rally

By BILL COULTHARD

MONTREAL (CP) — Several hundred medical specialists gathered in an east-end arena today for an all-day information rally on the proposed Quebec medical care insurance plan, leaving only emergency crews of specialists on duty in hospitals throughout the province.

One spokesman for the profession said some doctors are considering leaving the province permanently over the medicare legislation enacted July 17.

The medical specialists, doctors who have taken training in specialties like internal medicine, neurology or dermatology, were called to the rally and will hear speakers from Canada, the United States and five European countries.

General practitioners, resident doctors in hospitals and interns are not involved in the information meeting.

The rally at Paul Sauve Arena was called by the 4,000-member Quebec Federation of Medical Specialists to discuss the Quebec medical care insurance plan.

GROWING NUMBER

Dr. Augustin Roy, registrar, of the Quebec College of Physicians and Surgeons, said Wednesday a growing number of doctors are prepared to leave the province if the legislation, already passed, is implemented without amendment.

Legislation establishing the medical care scheme was passed July 10 but negotiations between the government and representatives of doctors' groups have delayed its implementation.

Dr. Roy said he is "signing certificates of competence daily for doctors who are making preparations for a move elsewhere."

Many of those considering leaving because of the legislation are English-speaking specialists, highly qualified doctors who cannot easily be replaced, he said.

Speakers at the rally, expected to detail some of the doctors' objections, include doctors from other provinces and countries where medical care schemes are already in effect.

The Quebec program is intended to cover medical services, optometrists' services and dental surgery performed in hospitals. It was originally hoped the plan would go into effect Aug. 1.

The federal government will pay 45 to 50 per cent of the cost with the remainder to be covered by individuals and their employers.

Some doctors' groups have complained the scheme will restrict their professional freedoms if it is not modified but the province's general practitioners say they have reached a breakthrough in negotiations with the government on the administration of the program.

"Agreement has been reached between the government negotiators and those of our association," said Dr. Gerard Hamel, president of the Quebec Federation of General Practitioners.

"The agreement provides certain fundamental guarantees which will protect the liberty of exercise of the medical profession.

Labor organizations have taken issue with the doctors' attempts to have the medical care legislation changed and the Montreal council of the Confederation of National Trade Unions says it will picket today's meeting to protest the specialists' position.

Slide Rule Created For Drinking Driver

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP) — A Rutgers University scientist says he has developed a simple calculator that will tell a driver how much alcohol he can drink and still drive safely.

Dr. Leon Greenberg, executive director of laboratory research at the Rutgers Centre of Alcohol Studies, says it's naive to assume that most people will follow the precaution, "If you drink, don't drive."

He therefore fashioned what he called the Alco Calculator to help a driver know his alcohol limit and decide when he is safe to drive.

It's a simple slide rule that carries data about body weight, number of drinks and drinking time. Here's how he said it works:

The man who weighs 190 pounds, drinks four martinis. The woman, whose weight is 120, drinks three.

Which one should drive home? Answer: He should.

The fellow's blood contains .04 per cent alcohol, the girl's .06 per cent, the legal minimum for being "under the influence is .05 per cent."

Revival Of Beatles Ruled Out

LONDON (AP) — Rumors that the Beatles will get together again some day are not true, songwriter and lead guitarist Paul McCartney said today in a letter to the Melody Maker, Britain's musical newspaper.

Since the Beatles wouldn't be the Beatles without McCartney, who with John Lennon created almost everything the group played, McCartney's declaration seemed to mean a definite end to the pop quartet, which changed the course of modern music when it emerged from a cellar in Liverpool in 1962.

The Beatles haven't performed together in public since 1966. They continued making movies and records until last April, when McCartney split from the group, saying: "I have a better time with my family."

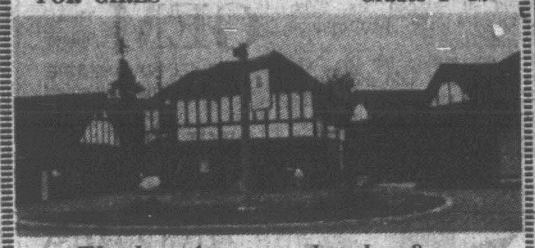

'LIMPING DOG'

Since then, music fans and journals such as the Melody Maker have come up time and again with rumors that the Beatle breakup was temporary.

McCartney said he was sending his letter "to put out of its misery the limping dog of a news story which has been dragging itself across your pages for the past year."

Financially, it wouldn't matter much whether the Beatles ever twanged another note. The latest estimate by a London financial expert says the group still is earning about $18 million a year from record royalties and business interests.

Cable TV Firms Get Extension

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Radio-Television Commission announced Wednesday it is allowing more time for firms to meet a government regulation requiring Canadian ownershop and control of all broadcasting operations.

It announced extension of expiration dates for 22 cable TV systems, including Victoria Cablevision Ltd., Saanich, and for two Windsor, Ont., radio stations which do not meet the Canadian ownership requirements. The extensions run to Dec. 31.

The government regulation was that after next Sept. 1 the commission may not renew or amend the licence of any broadcasting undertaking that does not meet the Canadian ownership requirement.

The commission said it had reached the conclusion that some extensions would allow ownership changes to be carried out in an orderly manner.

DATE UNCHANGED

The announcement took specific note of the situation of Television de Quebec Ltee, operator of CFCM-TV and CKMI-TV in Quebec City, which is owned by U.S. interests.

Licences held by this company for its French — and English — language TV stations expire March 31, 1971.

The CRTC said it "does not believe it would be in the public interest" to change this date.

'Negotiations for a takeover of the company by Canadian interests have been under way for some time and the CRTC said it "expects the interested parties to negotiate in good faith and to consider availing themselves of arbitration if necessary."

Western Ontario Broadcasting Co. Ltd., operating CKLW AM and FM in Windsor, was the only radio station operator on the list of licensees granted extensions to Dec. 31.

Cable TV companies granted the same extension include: Canadian Wirevision Ltd., Vancouver; Fraser alley Cablevision Ltd., Surrey, B.C., National Cablevision Ltd., Coquitlam and Maple Ridge, B.C.; Powell River Television Co. Ltd., Powell River, B.C.; and Victoria Cablevision Ltd.

Nonsuch Leaves Berth at CNE

TORONTO (CP) — An official of the Hudson's Bay Co. says the firm's replica of a 17th-century fur trading ship was removed Wednesday night from the Canadian National Exhibition waterfront.

The official said the 53-foot long Nonsuch was removed because the CNE showed a "lack of co-operation" and did not publicize the sailing vessel enough.

Captain Adrian Small said the only available CNE berth was too small for the ship, the official added.

'Hair' Breaks Attendance Mark

TORONTO (CP) — Hair broke the Toronto record for the longest-running show when it staged its 259th consecutive performance Wednesday.

A spokesman for the folk-rock musical said more than 315,000 persons have seen the production here and that box office receipts averaged about $10,000 daily.

The show is expected to run into October.

ROCK FAN . . . clever disguise?

Police Raid Wight Pop Festival

ISLE OF WIGHT, England (Reuters) — Police disguised as hippies swooped on the Isle of Wight pop festival Wednesday night and arrested 10 youngsters for drug offences.

Drug squad men, wearing wigs and colorful kaftans, began infiltrating the 50,000 pop fans shortly before the five-day festival began.

The festival began four hours behind schedule because of trouble with the $260,000 amplifying system.

Early estimates say 50,000 pop fans are already there and more are on the way. The largest procession of hippies ever seen in Britain wound its way down all major highways to the south coast.

On the main road from London to the Isle of Wight groups of fans were spaced out at neat 100-yard intervals on the entire 70-mile route.

But their appearance seemed to deter motorists from offering lifts and many fans will arrive at the festival with sore feet.

About 200,000 fans are expected on the island by the weekend, when such big stars as Joan Baez, Jimi Hendrix, Miles Davis and The Who will appear.

The sudden population explosion here already has caused a minor crisis in the island's food stores. Several sent out for extra supplies after a massive "buy-in" by the hippie encampment.

It's Only Junk in the Eyes of The Beholder, He Replies

By CONWAY DALY

REGINA (CP) — Norman Austring cast an inventor's eye over the strange assortment of wood and metal in his back yard that city officials deem worthless and declared:

"They're hounding me, these stuffed shirts, because they think I'm just a junk dealer. But it's all stuff I'm using, if not now, then in the future."

The 47-year-old moving contractor and part-time inventor, warned by city officials to clean up his residence grounds, said junk is in the eye of the beholder.

"They're doing it under the guise of a health hazard, but to me that's just a gimmick," Mr. Austring said as he strolled around his northeast Regina home Wednesday.

"Maybe I could get an invention going, maybe an industry. That's what we need, more creators. Instead, we have 10 guys trying to keep the one guy in line and have things nice and neat."

Mr. Austring, father of eight, appeared Tuesday night before city council and charged that officials have been hounding him ever since he moved here six years ago from Toronto.

MADE SUIT HANGER

He produced, to prove his inventor's ability, a special suit hanger he patented with an unusual clamp device to keep trousers from slipping off the wooden hanger.

The aldermen, having noted Mr. Austring's complaints that health inspectors who took photos of his yard refused to give him their names, adjourned the matter for a month.

Mr. Austring has gadgets ranging from an adjustable T-square angle calculator he designed when working at an aircraft plant in Toronto to an unfinished clothes dryer made of wood and powered by electricity and wind.

"They thought it was junk," he said, gesturing at the parts for the dryer. "There's a truck over there that I built from different parts and I've used it for eight years. That, at one time, was junk too, according to the average man."

MADE SUIT HANGER

The city's contention has been that the odd collection of half-finished and partly-rebuilt machines doesn't belong in a residential area and constitutes a health hazard.

The two-storey Austring home, located next to a big open field in a part of the city only recently developed, has some modifications, such as interior renovations, that have drawn the tax assessors' interest.

Said the owner: "You make a few improvements to your home and right away they increase your taxes. I have been a thorn in their side, but not so it's mean and miserable. They're just trying to kill initiative."

Derailment Kills 13

CAIRO (Reuters) — Thirteen persons, including two children, were killed and 53 injured when the Aswan-Cairo express train was derailed Tuesday at Tanmouh Village in Giza province south of here.

The Middle East news agency quoted the director of a hospital to which the victims were taken as saying that 17 of the injured were only slightly hurt and were allowed to leave after treatment.

Asylum Asked

MILAN, Italy (Reuters) — Nine Czechoslovaks and four Hungarians requested political asylum from Italian authorities Monday after crossing the border from Yugoslavia, police reported.

Tonight's Top Television Shows

HAPPY DAYS. 8 p.m., Channel 7; 9:30 p.m., Channel 12. Drummer Buddy Rich brings down the curtain on this nostalgic summer series, beating out 'C-Jam Blues" and "Air Mail Special." Bod and Ray continue their radio spoofs on "Mr. Agony" and "One Man's Family"; Jack Burns' dance marathon drags on aided by Buddy Rich; and fans can wax sentimental over Alan Copeland's rendition of "I'll Never Smile Again." To round out the hour, there's Julie McWhirter doing "Who's Afraid of the Big Bad Wolf," Laara Lacey singing "All Alone," and the band playing "American Patrol."

THAT GIRL. 8 p.m., Channel 4. "Ugh, Wilderness." (Repeat) Silly but funny show with Marlo Thomas and Ted Bessell sharing the laughs. Ann and her boy friend Don are the only passengers on a small plane that makes a forced landing in a wooded area near a resort. The pilot goes for help while Don and Ann search for shelter against the elements and stumble upon a convenient cabin. There's a big laugh in store at the ending.

IRONSIDE. 8:30 p.m., Channel 5. "Little Jerry Jessup." (Repeat) Very good episode. The wife of a convict — a man the chief talked into surrendering — is murdered, and Ironside must break the news to the prisoner and cope with his understandably confused and hostile 12-year-old child. It's a sentimental story, well acted by William Shatner as the prisoner, Mitch Vogel as the youngster, plus regulars Raymond Burr and Don Mitchell.

THURSDAY NIGHT MOVIE. 9 p.m., Channel 7. "The Visit." (1964) (Repeat) Uneven but fascinating adaptation of the successful Broadway play which starred Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne. It's a tale about a strong willed German woman who goes to elaborate lengths to wreak vengeance against her former lover. Ingrid Bergman is stately and menacing as the now wealthy woman who returns to her home town years later to seek out and destroy the man who wronged her. Anthony Quinn seems ideally cast as the victim at first, but he tends to overact in the crucial later scenes.

THIS IS TOM JONES. 9 p.m., Channel 4. (Repeat) Tom's singing guests are Barbara Eden and Wilson Pickett, while Hendra and Ullett handle the comedy of the hour. Vocal highlights include "As Long As He Needs Me" (Barbara), "More and More," "Everybody's Talking" etc. (Tom Jones), and "Born to Be Wild" (Wilson Pickett). Hendra and Ullett appear in a skit about the United Nations, and join their host for "tea for Two."

THE GOLDDIGGERS. 8:30 p.m., Channel 8; 10 p.m., Channel 5. That marvelous English madman, Marty Feldman, and host Charles Nelson Reilly kid newspaper reporters and the medical profession in a couple of sketches, after which the Golddiggers take over. Their main course consists of a medley, including that old favorite, "Anything Goes," and "Applause." Then Tommy Tune breaks in with "I'm a Brass Band," and Paula Cinko tries "When I'm Near the Boy I Love."

SPECIAL. 10 p.m., Channel 4. "College Football 1970 — The Year of the Quarterback." Another one of those pre-season specials designed to whet the appetites of fanatic fans who needs no such come on. All the super signal-callers in the college ranks will be spotlighted, via film clips and interviews. Also, for those fans who think that all the name quarterbacks have left the college ranks and joined the pros, take a peek tonight and you'll see Archie Manning of Mississippi, Jim Plunkett of Stanford, Rex Kern of Ohio State, and Joe Thiesman of Notre Dame.

TONIGHT'S MOVIES

5:30—Channel 12: Gideon of Scotland Yard (1958 English Drama), Jack Hawkins, Anna Lee, Andrew Ray. A genteel Scotland Yard story — Hawkins is very English and very good.

7:30—Channel 12: The Running Man (1963 English Drama), Laurence Harvey, Lee Remick. A scoundrel fakes his death in order to defraud an insurance company. Good performances.

9:00—Channel 7: The Visit (1964 Drama), Ingrid Bergman, Anthony Quinn, Irina Demick. Wealthy woman offers a small village a huge sum of money, with a large string attached.

11:00—Channel 11: Tomorrow is Another Day (1951 Drama), Ruth Roman, Steve Cochran. A woman tried to start a new life but her past proves too strong an obstacle.

11:30—Channel 7: Love Nest (1951 Comedy), William Lundigan, June Haver. An ex-GI and his wife buy an apartment house.

11:40—Channel 2: Carry On Screaming (1966 English Comedy), Harry H. Corbett, Joan Sims. The "Carry On" gang attacks horror-film cliches.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

In the Journal of the AMA recently, was an article by Dr. Edward Rosenberg, an arthritis specialist of Chicago, describing the new type of operation in which a very painful arthritic hip is remade, so that the person is free of pain. Recently, Dr. Rosenberg made three visits to England to watch the great surgeon, John Charnley, operate and to see what his results were. The new operation has been named the Charnley method.

Some people, usually over 50 or 60 years of age, have an osteoarthritis (osteo refers to bone) of the hip joint in which the surfaces of the joint are so roughened that every moment causes great pain. The logical treatment is to put in a new joint which has smooth surfaces. This is exactly what Dr. Charnley does; he takes off the head of the femur, the long, main bone in the thigh, and cements in its place a smooth globular head made of metal. Then he takes out the so called acetabulum, the cavity in the hip bone in which the head of the femur rotates. He cements onto the ilium or hip bone a new acetabulum made of a hard plastic, and in a high percentage of cases, he enables a previously lame person to get up and walk without pain. I am happy to say that already in a good many centers in the United States, orthopedic surgeons have learned to perform this operation. I was told recently that Dr. Coventry is performing it at the Mayo Clinic.

I have recently received a number of letters from unhappy men begging me for more information on how they can have their Peyronie's Disease cured. It is distressing them terribly, and in many cases, they say that it has made them impotent with their wives. What happens is that the penis becomes curved.

I just came across an article by Drs. J. L. Williams and G. G. Thomas, of Sheffield, England, who said they studied 21 patients with this disease. Twelve men received no treatment, but in four cases, the disease cleared up in from 15 months to eight years, which isn't very hopeful. The average period before recovery was four years. Five of the men improved; in three the condition did not change, but fortunately, the patients in this case were able to remain sexually potent.

★ ★ ★

On nine patients treated with X-rays, two were well in 12 months and 20 months, respectively. The condition of five of the patients improved, but none showed improvement in less than 12 months. One patient regained his potency after three years, while two remained unchanged.

Dropouts Find School Boring

VANCOUVER (CP) — An 85-page report commissioned by the United Community Services of Vancouver says dropouts leave school because they find it uninteresting, boring and irrelevant.

The report notes that recent statistics indicate British Columbia has the lowest dropout level in Canada. Eighty-two per cent of B.C. students in Grade 2 in 1960-61 reached Grade 11 in 1967-68. This compares with 49 per cent in Newfoundland and 80 in Manitoba.

The report, prepared by UCS research associate Bruce R. Levens, says:

"The point is that the public school system has retained features which are inappropriate to the demands placed on it by modern society."

WINS $27,715

LONDON (UPI) — A man who bet 48 cents on seven horses over the weekend won $27,715, a spokesman for the William Hill bookmaking organization said.

The lucky bettor, identified only as "Mr. Albert," was remembered by a teller who watched him borrow eight cents from a friend in order complete his wagers.

Victoria Wins Award For Safety

The Greater Victoria area has won a Canadian Automobile Association special citation for its comprehensive pedestrian accident records and its municipal legislation for pedestrians.

Ray Elston, manager of the British Columbia Automobile Association's Victoria branch, said the citation was the result of a pedestrian program appraisal for cities with a population of 50,000 to 200,000.

Other categories on the questionnaire prepared by the Canadian Automobile Association and completed by 172 cities throughout Canada were law enforcement by police, traffic engineering by city hall, school traffic safety, public education through the news media and safety program co-ordination by industries, civic organizations, local governments and schools.

Six other B.C. communities were honored by the CAA for their work in protecting the lives of pedestrians.

New Westminster won first place in its population category; Nelson received an honorable mention: and Kimberley, Penticton, Prince George and Prince Rupert were cited for their fatality-free record during 1969.

HOW ABOUT BILLIARD TABLES?

LONDON (UPI) — British United Airways said they will start secretarial and standup bar service on their long flights to Africa.

Spokesmen for the airline said VC10s on East African routes will from November have a secretary on board. For a "small extra charge" the secretary will take notes, dictation or typing for business passengers. She will have her own office on the plane.

Other space on the plane will be reserved for the stand up bar, the airline said.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

The weak system which brought cloud into the north coast Wednesday continues to weaken and move southeast but has given a few brief periods of rain to the same area. Elsewhere a few bands of cloud edged into the central interior and into northern Vancouver Island with other regions being clear.

Bands of cloud will spread further into the south coast later today as the system dissipates. The basic pattern still indicates that the ridge of high pressure will build towards the B.C. coast keeping conditions generally sunny over the next few days except for morning cloud in coastal areas.

The Weather and You

By Carl Riblet Jr.

Along about next May there won't be as many births as in the two preceding months of March and April. How do the doctors, scientists and statisticians know that? Because they know that during the very hot weather of August and early September there is a marked reduction everywhere in the number of conceptions.

Medical studies show that an increase in population is helped by weather that is at least cool and mostly cold.

The presence of heat in the atmosphere reduces the opportunity for conception. Ovulation tends to be suppressed by heat. The male fails to produce sperm both in quality and in numbers in hot weather. And even when the sperm and the egg are united, heat tends to deter the development of the normal fertilized egg.

Saanich Changes Yard Expansion Plan

Saanich has purchased 3.65 acres for $150,000 from Growers Wine to expand its municipal yard on McKenzie.

The expansion to the east replaces earlier plans to extend the yard to the north on a triangular piece of municipally-owned land.

A special council meeting Monday night agreed to sell the triangular piece of land, totalling 3.92 acres, for subdivision into 16 or 18 single-family houses.

Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis said the purchase gives the municipality "badly needed expansion room" for the yard and permits sale of the municipal land to the north.

He also indicated the possible sale of some of the newly-acquired land which is not needed for the yard when sewer construction permits, in 1½ to 2 years. Not all the acreage is needed for the yard, he said.

Pats Win Two Awards

Two awards will be presented to the 3rd Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, when it parades at Work Point Barracks Friday at 8:30 a.m.

Victoria police traffic inspector Richard Berry will present the battalion with the Mobile Command Safe Driving Award for outstanding performance in motor vehicle safety.

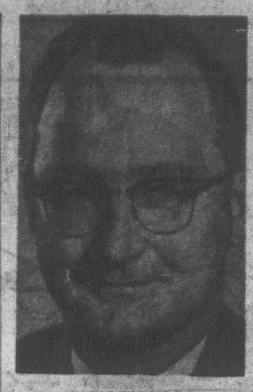

The second award to be received will be the Mary Otter Trophy of St. John Ambulance. This was won by a regimental team that competed in a national competition for the armed forces. It will be presented by Michael Allen, chairman of the local branch.

Three Injured At Intersection

Three people suffered minor injuries Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. in a crash that did a total of $2,600 damage to the two cars.

Claude Harrison, of 1130 Oliver, travelling west on Oak Bay, collided with a car driven south on Richmond by Joseph John Mero, 1736 Kingsberry, in the intersection.

Both drivers were taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital, along with Mero wife, Rose.

Bomb Threat Clears Tavern

Anyone who went to the Halfway House on Esquimalt Road Wednesday night with the idea of getting blasted wound up with slightly more than he bargained for.

And he went home thankful he didn't get bombed.

An anonymous telephone caller to Esquimalt police at 9 p.m. threatened that a bomb had been planted in the beer parlor.

About 100 patrons were evacuated while police and employees conducted a search. Nothing was found. The flow of beer resumed.

Expo Tax Concession Outrage—Campbell

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell today termed an "outrage" a federal revenue department decision to grant tax relief to the Montreal Expos baseball team.

Campbell said the decision to allow the Expos to write off capital expenses of acquiring players over a number of years is an example of the "incredible lack of fair play" in Canada which he had complained of earlier in connection with aid to municipalities.

"The man responsible for this outrage (Revenue Minister Jean Pierre Cote) happens to represent a Montreal riding," Campbell said.

He said "one has to wonder" whether the same sort of aid would have been made available if a Vancouver team had asked for it.

He said the revenue department ruling was "ridiculous" and added that he doesn't favor it for any team in any city.

Shocked Youth's Condition 'Poor'

Steven Worswick, 14, a Jordan River youth nearly electrocuted Saturday by a 60,000-volt high tension wire, is still in poor condition in St. Joseph's Hospital.

Steven was climbing on top of a B.C. Hydro building when he touched a live wire.

Flag Battle To Continue

George Burnham will enter a new round in his five-year battle to retain the original Canadian flag Tuesday at 10:30 a.m. in Supreme Court.

He says he has "a couple of surprises ready" for his next attempt to have the new maple leaf flag ditched. Burnham insists the maple leaf flag is the flag of Peru.

Advice Followed

MOSCOW (AP) — Dr. Zakhari Frenkel, author of Prolonging Your Life and Active Old Age, died Tuesday at the age of 100, Tass News agency announced Wednesday. Frenkel was a resident of Moscow.

Inquest Verdict Delayed In Youth's Shooting Death

MONTREAL (CP) — Coroner Jacques Fournier postponed his verdict Wednesday in the inquest into the shooting death of Edward Douglas Kinghorn.

The 19-year-old youth was shot in the head by police in suburban Greenfield Park July 3 while allegedly wielding a two-foot-long Spanish sabre at them.

Jean Lepage, ballistic expert with the Quebec Medico Legal Laboratory, testified Wednesday he was "70-per-cent sure" that the bullet recovered from the body had come from the gun identified as belonging to Constable Jean Marc Legros of the suburban Lafleche police department.

Constable Legros said he fired to injure rather than kill the fleeing suspect and that it was the first time he had fired his revolver while on duty.

He said that he had opened fire because the youth had just injured a constable with his sabre and was running towards a group of women waiting for a bus.

DISCUSSED RELIGION

Vincent Belanger, 18, earlier told the inquest that he and Kinghorn had spent the night before the fatal shooting discussing religion and Kinghorn asserted repeatedly he was Jesus Christ.

Belanger said Kinghorn had the sabre with him and claimed that whoever had it could use it to fight evil.

Constable Richard Roy from the Greenfield Park police department testified Wednesday that he had asked the youth to hand over the sabre and no harm would come to him but Kinghorn yelled:

"If I have to, I will kill to keep this sabre."

He said the boy ran off and jumped over a fence.

"I fired twice in the air but he wouldn't stop. He turned around and threatened me with his sabre saying I could shoot all I wanted but the bullets wouldn't hurt him."

Colchicums Sure Sign of Fall

By HILDA BEASTALL

Early this week the first colchicums thrust sharp pointed flower buds through dry soil to show us their lovely lilac-pink blossoms. Quite literally, overnight this happened. One day the buds were at soil level still covered with brownish purple sheaths. Next day, sheaths were pushed aside and elongating flower tubes inches above the soil.

Hilda

The common name of Autumn (or Fall) Crocus has been given to the colchicum, a genus within the Lily Family and not even remotely related to the true Crocus, which is a genus of the Iris Family.

Dainty and inspiring when in bloom, the colchicum is one of the plants I want in my trouble-free, less-work garden, for it will come up unerringly year after year, increasing as time goes, yet never becoming a nuisance.

This is how I feel about them after putting in the first big smooth brown corms just about 25 years ago. They have increased well during that period, and I still love to see them each fall.

In spring come the leaves which annoy some gardeners, for they may be 10 or 12 inches long, four inches across and ordinary dark green. Quite handsome, and essentially useful in their work of building up the food reserves in those large brown corms underground, so that another fall season of beauty may be ours.

They must be allowed to grow unmolested until suddenly in early June, they wilt and become yellow. Then they may be cut off at soil level. Their season's work is accomplished.

A sloping bank held in place by spreading junipers would come alive each fall if planted with groups of six colchicums in the sunny spaces. There they would increase and add interest to the junipers in fall and again in early spring with their leaves.

Occasionally the pure white Colchicum speciousum album is found for sale locally and I have seen a deep red form C.s.rubrum. A hybrid double is a bright pinky lilac, with the name "Waterlily."

The corms are perfectly winter hardy outdoors, yet versatile enough to open a succession of flowers indoors if set into damp peatmoss in a shallow bwlo on a window ledge or a coffee table where sun will reach it in the mornings.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED L. KARPIN

The story is told of the bridge instructor who was having a hard time with a pupil. The pupil had had three lessons, and apparently had not understood a single word She was given a hand to bid, while the instructor stood beside her.

She sorted her cards quite accurately, and asked: "What do I do now?" She was told to count her points, which she did, and arrived at a total that was about 80 per cent correct. Again she asked: "What do I do now?" She was told to bid. She asked: "But what should I bid?" In quiet desperation, the instructor replied: "I don't care what you bid, but bid something."

The retort from the lady was: "I bid a dollar!"

In today's deal, neither the instructor nor anyone else would have approved of West's initial bid. But in view of the result, who would dare to criticize him — especially since he knew what he was doing.

North-South vulnerable. South deals.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East

Opening lead: Ace of ◇.

West's two club overcall was, of course, an attempt to confuse North-South. If he had been doubled, he had every intention of retreating to wto diamonds. At this contract, he assumed that he would lose less than the opponents could make at a vulnerable game.

North, with his 13-high-card points, knew that his side had the values for a game; and, from his position, it certainly appeared that no-trump was the place to play the game. When West doubled the three no-trump contract, possibly North should have suspected that "something was rotten in Denmark." But he didn't, as can be attested to by his redouble.

When the smoke had cleared, West had cashed the first six tricks, and South was down two, redoubled and vulnerable, for a loss of 1000 points. Had West not indulged in his shenanigans, North-South would probably have arrived at their normal four spade contract. This contract would have been fulfilled with ease, the only losers being two diamonds and a club.

But, as fate would have it, West's "psychic" overcall turned out beautifully for the defenders.

Beer Bath for Plants

ALTAMONT, Ill. (UPI) — Edward H. Torbeck feeds beer to his flowers.

The flowers, he says, thrive and bloom earlier than normal and with larger blossoms.

A long-time resident of St. Louis, Torbeck designed and planted living replicas of the St. Louis Cardinals' emblem, a clock and a St. Louis bicentennial design.

Since 1968, when he turned his St. Louis barber shop over to his son and moved here, he has been enriching Altamont with his creations.

This year his front lawn sports an American flag, done in blue ageratum, dusty miller cineraria, red begonias and santolina. Carefully planted and trimmed yellow alternanthera spell out "God Bless America" nearby.

It took Torbeck three days to position the 2,019 plants in the design, each of which, of course, had its ration of beer.

The formula for the beer bath, Torbeck says, is one quart of beer to 10 gallons of water. He gives this to the plants twice a month, with fertilizer in between.

"I use the beer on everything from cacti to orchids," he says.

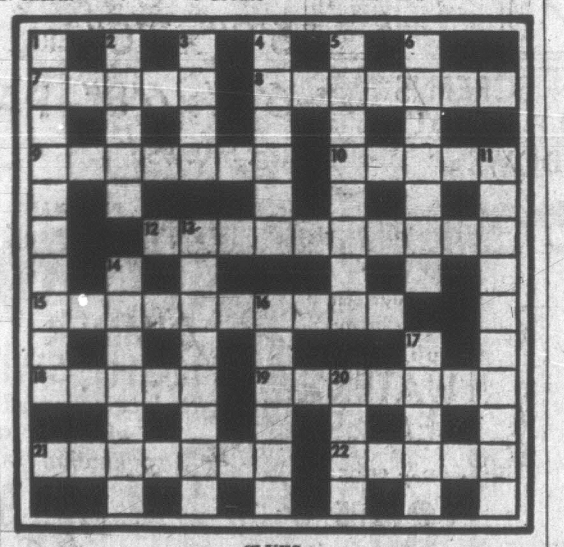

"I always say I have the happiest plants in town."

Desjardins to Stay

WINNIPEG (CP) — Larry Desjardins, the Liberal-Democrat member of the Manitoba legislature who promised he would resign his St. Boniface seat at the end of the last session, said Wednesday night he will not resign.

Mr. Desjardins, the independent member who joined the NDP caucus last summer after Premier Ed Schreyer led his party to a surprising election victory, told the House before it prorogued two weeks ago he would resign because of the abuse that was heaped on him and his family for his position on the automobile insurance legslaton.

Time Crucial

CALGARY (CP)—The superintendent of the Bow River forest reserve said Wednesday night the next 48 hours would be crucial in attempts to control a large fire in the reserve, 80 miles northwest of here. The fire started a week ago and has burned through more than 3,200 acres.

Large Profit Made

EDMONTON (CP) — The Edmonton Exhibition Association will make about $250,000 profit on its Canadan Derby sweepstakes, Graham Jones, president of the association said Wednesday.

In addition, he said, the ticket sellers — 51 Edmonton area service clubs, community and charitable organizations, plus 55 organizations outside the city — will have their commissions doubled.

Jail Terms Given

EDMONTON (CP) — Two Calgary residents each were sentenced to six months Wednesday and two others were remanded on charges resulting from an argument July 17 over a cashe of drugs with an estimated value of $6,000.

Peter Currie, 17, and Lynnsey Sharp, 23, were sentenced for their part in the scuffle in which a shot was fired in an apartment and an 18-year-old Edmonton girl was held against her will.

Oil Leak Kills Fish

EDMONTON (CP) — RCMP were called in Wednesday after oil leaking from a well bleed-off valve seeped into a corner of Freeman Lake, 95 miles northwest of here, and reportedly killed fish and some wildlife. Amoco Petroleum Ltd. said the valve was opened by "other than Amoco personnel"

Math Prof Counts On History

A mathematics professor will step briefly out of his subject field to teach a history course at Simon Fraser University this fall.

The history of mathematics, that is.

Dr. J. L. Berggren explained that the course, the only one of its kind in the province, will trace the story of mathematics from the Babylonian Empire to the 18th century.

"There is a heavy demand for this kind of course from both arts and science students," Berggren said, adding that studying the mathematics of a period tends to shed new light on its culture.

In addition to regular lectures, Berggren intends bringing in guest lecturers — both historians and philosophers — from Simon Fraser and other campuses.

Fishermen's Plight May Spark Harbor Blockade

By PETER MEDWID

Commercial fishermen "fighting for survival" will "blockade" the Inner Harbor Saturday to force Ottawa to take concrete action to save the high seas fisheries.

More than 300 trollers and net fishing boats are expected to gather at Race Rocks at noon Saturday for a mass sail-in to the Inner Harbor.

"This will not be an illegal act by a bunch of hot-headed fishermen," said fisherman John King of Victoria.

"We are individuals who are scared of losing our livelihood and we are all coming to Victoria at the same time to talk.

"We will arrive here at the same time and if there is some sort of blockade it will just be the usual milling around of boats trying to find a place to berth," he added.

But there is no doubt in most fishermens' minds that little or no traffic will be moving in the Inner Harbor.

Some fishermen have contacted the CPR and Black Ball Ferry notifying them of the sail-in and suggesting that ferry times be changed or that some sailings be cancelled.

Air taxi service firms which operate out of the harbor have also been notified and fishermen suggest that flights be cancelled because of the danger involved.

For more than a year, the fishermen have been pressing the federal government for action to protect existing fish stocks on the major fishing grounds off the West Coast from huge foreign fleets and for the federal fisheries department to make an immediate start on the building of fish hatcheries.

Last winter sports and commercial fishermen combined forces and presented a petition signed by more than 30,000 people asking Ottawa to extend Canada's fish limits to the edge of the continental shelf.

"But what has all this

Postal Situation Jittery

OTTAWA (CP) — Jittery union and government negotiators enter the final rounds of postal mediation talks today as a five-day suspension of rotating postal strikes begins.

Representatives of the federal treasury board and the 27,000-member Council of Postal Unions refused to make any comment on the talks Wednesday, but sources say both sides are feeling the pressure as the weekend approaches.

Mediator Thomas O'Connor of Toronto has said the 11-month-old contract dispute will have to be settled by this weekend or talks will be broken off.

Prime Minister Trudeau said last Friday he would allow Mr. O'Connor a week to 10 days to reach a settlement.

Mr. O'Connor, a labor relations specialist appointed to mediate the dispute last week, now will make no comment on the talks after expressing optimism when they began a week ago.

The council announced earlier this week it would suspend rotating strikes, which it has staged since May, to allow for delivery of old-age pension cheques which go in the mail today and Friday.

The postal workers, who now earn an average hourly wage of $3.06, are asking for a 58-cents-an-hour increase over two years, a 9.5-per-cent boost in each year.

The government has offered 47 cents an hour over three years, a 5.9-per-cent increase.

MASS ARRESTS followed third night of clashes between youths and police at Birmingham, Mich., Wednesday night. Youths were ordered to lie on the ground before being taken to police station; others, in right background, were searched for weapons. (AP Wirephoto).

DETROIT TEENS RAMPAGE

ROYAL OAK, Mich. (AP) — Two Detroit suburbs are under indefinite states of emergency today, following three nights of rock- and bottle-throwing rampages by teen-agers.

At least 400 youths were arrested Wednesday night after a clash with police in Royal Oak and the adjacent suburb of Birmingham, said Assistant Police Chief James Soul of Royal Oak.

That brings the three-day arrest total to more than 500. Most were arrested for curfew violation, although Soul said several arrests were made on suspicion of narcotics possession.

TWO KILLED BY LIGHTNING

Storm Hits Quebec Area

MONTREAL (CP) — A violent storm which carved through Montreal and much of southern and eastern Quebec Wednesday killed two persons and caused extensive damage to trees, buildings and hydro lines.

Sylvie Lalonde, 11, of Montreal, and Delphis Philibert, 59, of Matane 200 miles northeast of Quebec City, were killed when struck by lightning.

TRAPPED IN CAR

Jean Wachniuc, 48, was taken to hospital with a broken leg after a freak accident which resulted in his car being washed off an overpass. His car tore 40 feet of railing off the overpass. The railing fell, damaging seven cars parked in a municipal lot below.

There were reports of damage to buildings in the Eastern Townships and a roof was reported blown off a house near Drummondville, 90 miles east of Montreal.

A live power line fell on a car near downtown Montreal, causing a fire and trapping occupants briefly. Firefighters and Hydro-Quebec workers freed them but the man driving the vehicle was treated for shock.

Downed power lines and lightning caused a succession of power failures in the central and north sections of the city and throughout the western part of Montreal Island.

PARTS OF WHITE PAPER REWRITTEN

Mining Industry Gets Tax Break

Heavy Pressure Brings Results

Times News Services

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister E. J. Benson has yielded to heavy pressure from the provinces and mining companies and has rewritten parts of his tax-change proposals in favor of mines.

He announced three revisions Wednesday night to his original tax white paper of last November that would have the effect of giving mining companies an easier tax ride than first outlined.

In a letter sent to his provincial counterparts in advance of a federal-provincial conference next month, Benson proposed:

● A reduction in the federal rate of corporation tax on mining companies to 25 per cent from the 40 per cent applied to other companies. The provinces at present collect varying additional cuts of corporation tax ranging between 10 and 13 per cent.

● A broadened definition of the types of investment that would count towards calculation of tax concessions that a mining company could earn by exploring and developing resources. The so-called depletion allowances — $1 of tax-free profit for every $3 spent on development — could also be earned by building new ore-refining facilities in Canada, even when located off the minesite.

● An extension of the original proposal to accord depletion allowances to costs of buildings and equipment on

U.K. Police Raid Arms Caches

LONDON (AP)—Police made more than 100 co-ordinated raids throughout England during the night, rounding up weapons believed destined for Northern Ireland and the Middle East.

The sweep, which began at exactly 7 p.m. Wednesday, was the biggest dragnet in British police history. More than half the targets were in the London area, but the rest were spread from Cornwall to the Scottish border.

Several men were arrested. No estimate of the amount of arms seized was available yet, but it appeared to be considerable. One room at the Croydon police station was stacked like an arsenal with machine-guns, rifles, grenades and ammunition boxes.

The sources said Scotland Yard suspects an effort is under way to stockpile weapons and ammunition to prolong the Protestant-Catholic strife in Northern Ireland. It is believed that underworld gangs were trying to profit from the street fighting by supplying arms at high prices.

The operation had been in preparation for a week, ready to be set in motion by a coded teletype message from Scotland Yard's London headquarters.

CAPTURED NARWHALS COMPLETE AIR TRIP

VANCOUVER (CP) — Five narwhals, captured in the chilly waters of the Arctic Ocean by the Vancouver Public Aquarium's northern expedition Sunday, arrived in the city late Wednesday after a 19-hour flight from Milne Inlet on Baffin Island.

The narwhals, two full-grown females and three calves of undetermined sex, were put into the research pool in Vancouver's Stanley Park.

Liberal leader Dr. Pat McGeer, who accompanied the expedition, said the party took nearly 13 hours to get the whales into the aircraft for the flight down.

McGeer said the narwhals were in "excellent condition" on their arrival here. They were packed in ice and hosed down continuously during the long trip, he said.

Military Bases To Be Phased Out

OTTAWA (CP) — The defence department announced today that its bases at Rivers and Gimli in Manitoba will be phased out of military operations over the next year.

In a press statement, Defence Mnister Leo Cadieux said he decided to close the bases in view of the reductions in the forces, a change in priorities and the fixed defence budget.

Affected by the closings are about 170 civilians and 300 military personnel at Rivers and 200 civilians and 800 military at Gimli.

Qualified civilians at both bases who are offered and accept positions at other defence establishments or elsewhere in the public service will be reimbursed for reasonable expenses if the new job requires moving.

Armed forces personnel will be posted to vacant positions in other units.

Rivers, about 30 miles northwest of Brandon, and Gimli, have been used primarily for air training.

ANOTHER BIRTHDAY

It's one year today since Premier Bennett's Social Credit government humiliated its opposition parties by winning 38 seats in the 55-seat legislature in what was supposed to be a close election. The New Democrats won 12 seats and the Liberals five.

Invasion of Canada Already on Paper?

OTTAWA (CP) — Diplomatic correspondence justifying the NATO military occupation of its own allied countries is already deposited with U.S. ambassadors in all the NATO countries, former Greek leader Andreas Papandreou said Wednesday.

In a speech to the congress of the World Association of World Federalists, Papandreou said messages to be used by NATO when it decides to occupy a member country have been drawn up and readied for dispatch.

"What is missing is the date and the signature."

But cabinet ministers — even prime ministers — often do not know the details of the plans for invasion, he said.

He did not know of specific plans for invasion in Canada, he told reporters after the speech.

A Canadian external affairs department spokesman said in Ottawa the government has no knowledge of any military occupation plans by NATO.

Jarring to Continue Mid-East Meetings

Diplomatic sources anticipated that Jarring will continue his discussions, begun Tuesday, with Egypt's UN ambassador, Mohamed H. El-Zayat, while Tekoah is in Jerusalem for consultations with his government.

El-Zayyat conferred for 45 minutes with the UN special envoy Wednesday and was briefed on the results of Jarring's two meetings with Tekoah Tuesday.

The sources expect Tekoah, who left Tuesday evening, to be back in New York early next week with comprehensive instructions on Israel's position in the talks. Although he was named deputy delegate to Foreign Minister Abba Eban, Tekoah is expected to represent Israel in the early rounds of indirect talks with Egypt and Jordan.

STILL AVAILABLE

Abdul Hamid Sharaf, Jordanian ambassador to the United States, also met Jarring for a second time Wednesday, but he later returned to his post in Washington. He left word, however, that he is available for further consultations at a moment's notice.

Sharaf is standing in for Jordanian UN Ambassador Muhammad H. El-Farra, who will not be back in New York from consultations in Amman until early next month.

The sources suggested that these first few meetings under Jarring are being used to establish the basic positions of the three governments.

WOMEN'S LIBERATION WAR CRY

'Don't Cook Dinner . . . Starve a Rat Today'

NEW YORK (CP) — Shouting "Come on, sister, join us" to less-demonstrative female spectators, thousands of women paraded down Fifth Avenue Wednesday in the biggest of United States-wide demonstrations to get women "out of the kitchen, out of the house — out from under."

Some joined, while others jeered as the steady stream of placard-carrying, slogan-chanting women activists marched down the broad asphalt of one of the world's leading centres of feminine fashion.

Police estimated there were more than 20,000 marchers and 20,000 onlookers, but leaders of the demonstration for women's liberation said there were 50,000 marchers and 30,000 spectators.

The sponsors, including the National Organization of Women (NOW), called the demonstration a "strike for equality" and urged women across the country to stay home from work and to stop performing menial household chores.

There was no way to determine how many husbands ate dinner from a can Wednesday night.

Old, young, black and white women shouted for an end to male domination and the "slavery" of women. Most wore the liberation movement's emblem of a clenched fist inside the female sex symbol.

Many of them obviously not wearing bras, which the liberationists consider symbols of sexual inferiority imposed by outdated social standards, the marchers chanted:

"Women of the world, unite."

"Free our sisters, free ourselves—power to the people."

They carried banners reading:

"Death to the male power structure."

"I love my husband, I love those nights, I also love my daily rights."

GOT A PARADE PERMIT?

EL PASO, Tex. (UPI) — El Paso Herald Post reporter Jane Pemberton reported to work Wednesday wearing a pants suit and set out on her daily courthouse beat.

"A hippie sidled up to me and muttered in my ear: 'Bitch.'

"A lawyer came up and asked me whether I wanted the law on assault changed. It is simple assault to sock a man but aggravated assault to strike a woman.

"A police captain asked me whether I had a parade permit."

'HISTORIC STEP,' SAYS DIRECTOR

Hearing on Zoning Set for Salt Spring

By ROGER STONEBANKS

A public hearing on the first zoning bylaw for Salt Spring Island is expected to be held Monday, Sept. 14 in Ganges.

This was the tentative date agreed by directors of the Capital Region District Wednesday when they gave first two readings to the bylaw.

Final readings and passage into law can only come after the public hearing, when all persons who deem themselves affected may speak.

Salt Spring director M. H. Holmes told the regional board that zoning is "a historic step after 120 years of settlement and rapid, uncontrolled development."

He said there is no alternative if the character of the island is to be maintained.

"Repeated tests of public opinion show 80 per cent in favor of land control," he said.

The zoning bylaw contains changes over a previous one, which was withdrawn, to meet obligations raised by businessmen who complained the first one would have made many promises non-conforming.

NOISE FROM BAND

The board was also told that copies of the bylaw will be made available to interested persons and maps displayed prior to the public hearings.

In other matters, the board will advise three residents of Hooson Road on Pender Island that the district has no jurisdiction over noise.

The residents complained that a Victoria man, his wife and small child have been joined by two men and a woman in a house where they practice as a band and use amplification at all hours.

Esquimalt Mayor Art Young, whose municipality has an anti-noise bylaw, said it is almost impossible to enforce and get convictions and said "if you can keep away from it you should."

The board agreed to arrange a preliminary meeting between representatives of the seven municipalities within the regional district and Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell, along with technical staff, on possible coordination of various services.

'LOGICAL VEHICLE'

Campbell wrote saying if there should be joint services the "logical vehicle to handle them" is the regional district.

The board was told by executive director Bill Long that three of the eight services suggested by Campbell for study are already under study. They are auditing procedures, garbage disposal and standardization of forms.

Campbell's other suggestions include fire and police, assessment machinery, single purchasing commisson and pooling of public works equipment.

Director Edith Gunning said adding transportation is probably a good idea and board chairman Hugh Curtis noted that public health, which the board wants regionalized, is not mentioned by Campbell.

An ice arena for Langford-Colwood-Metchosin may still have a chance — if the bond market permits.

Campbell wrote suggesting financing at a rate no greater than 9 per cent with the Juan de Fuca Centennial 71 committee to arrange the financing.

Long saw no problem to the regional district acting, in effect, as financial agent with the cost borne by residents in the affected area, in the same way as the Centennial swimming pool. A local vote would be needed.

But when asked what chance there is of 9 per cent money, he replied "if I knew that I'd retire." The board approved the steps outlined by Campbell.

175 BOATS EXPECTED FOR MAPLE BAY RACE

MAPLE BAY — Maple Bay Yacht Club members are expecting at least 175 boats from all along the Gulf of Georgia rim to participate in their annual regatta Sept. 5 and 6.

Competitions will include three different courses for 20 types of boats, from the half-mile sabot class race to the nine-mile course for cruising boats.

The race for the Lipton Cup, competed for by the cruising classes only, will be run on Sept. 5.

SPEC Makes Plea For Pickup Trucks

DUNCAN — A call for more pickup trucks to help in SPEC's cleanup drive on Sunday has been made by Kurt Horn, Cowichan-Malahat branch president.

Horn said the trucks are needed to haul trash to the Royal Canadian Legion grounds at Trunk Road where North Cowichan and Duncan trucks will be parked.

He said not only have many persons promised to clean around their own homes and neighborhood, many groups such as the Cowichan Indians, sea cadets, boy scouts, girl guides, teen towners, the Cowichan Waterbuoys and managers of local supermarkets have offered assistance.

The cleanup will start at 9 a.m. and end at noon Sunday.

"I hope many SPEC members will be out because it is a SPEC-sponsored drive," stressed Horn.

Funeral Set For Native Of Island

Funeral services for Mrs. Vernice LaFortune, 57, a native and lifetime resident of Salt Spring Island, will be held at 1:30 p.m. Friday at St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church.

Mrs. LaFortune, of Fulford Harbor, died in Vancouver General Hospital Aug. 25 after a short illness.

A member of the Tahouney family, one of the first Hawaiian families to settle on Salt Spring in the 1860s, she lived all her life at the family property on Isabella Point.

She is survived by her husband Steve; sons, Allan James of Vancouver and Steven of Ganges; daughter, Cathy; sister, Mrs. Mabel Pearson; brother, Kenneth Tahouney, both of Victoria; step-children, Mrs. Frances Blake of Cobble Hill, Judy Windsor and Leon LaFortune of Duncan.

Lake Cowichan Chosen For Telesat Station

LAKE COWICHAN — One of two heavy-route stations for Telesat Canada will be situated at Lake Cowichan, it was learned here.

The station, which will use three spacecraft, two orbiting and a third held in reserve, will provide additional capacity for television, telephone and the existing heavy east-west traffic routes.

The orbiting of telesat's first satelite, Anik 1, will be completed in 1972.

Telesat Canada has been authorized to open negotiations with Hughes Aircraft Co. of California to build the spacecraft. Two Canadian companies, Northern Electric Co., and Spar Aerospace products Ltd., will be major subcontractors.

Psychiatric Test Ordered In Attempted Murder Count

PORT ALBERNI — A psychiatric examination has been ordered for Allen Wayne Dick of Port Alberni, charged with attempted murder of a peace officer.

He appeared in provincial court Monday.

The charge arose after a shooting incident on No. 2 Indian reserve, just outside Port Alberni, Friday afternoon.

A bullet hit Const. Paul Summer's cap after it had passed through the windshield of the police car.

Other shots were fired and Const. W. A. Van Der Braak was wounded in the cheek and Const. Lynn Kraeling was injured in the foot. Both were treated at West Coast Hospital. Hospital.

Inquest Tonight In Girl's Death

An inquest will begin at 7 tonight into the death of a four-year-old girl Tuesday in a traffic accident on the West Coast Road near Sooke.

Rita Michelle Burnier died when the car she was riding in flipped over.

Lake Attracts Seattle Bicyclists

SHAWNIGAN LAKE — A two day stopover at Shawnigan Lake earlier this week was part of a week-long bicycle tour of Vancouver Island by 26 members of the Seattle Mountaineers.

The Seattle Mountaineers, consisting of 6,000 members, mainly from Washington, was formed in 1906. It includes many branches such as mountaineering, skiing, drama, hiking, photography and bicycle riding.

Mike Kirshner, 35, leader of the grup, said they arrived at Victoria aboard the Princess Marguerite Saturday. They made their first stop at Goldstream Park and moved on to Bamberton Park the next day.

After leaving Shawnigan Lake Wednesday moring the Mountaineers planned a ferry trip from Mill Bay to Brentwood Bay to camp at Macdonald Park on the Saanich Peninsula.

Kirshner said the club will visit Salt Spring Island today and then return to Macdonald Park, where the club members will stay until Saturday when they will return to Seattle.

A faster washer means a shorter washday. Which leaves you more time for other things. And that's what a Hoover washer is all about.
The secret? Hoover's unique side-mounted pulsator that surges suds and water through clothes. It's very gentle, because nothing touches your clothes except soap and water. And it's very efficient — just four minutes to get a full wash load really clean. What's more, while the pulsator is thoroughly washing one load of laundry, the spin dryer is thoroughly rinsing and spin-drying another load. Two wash loads. Two efficient jobs. Half the washing time. One amazing washer.
To add to the efficiency, there's a specially-designed circulating lint filter that comes clean in seconds.
And if speed and efficiency aren't enough, Hoover also offers convenience. No special plumbing or wiring are required; just roll your Hoover washer to the sink, slip on the hose, and start washing. By the way, you'll notice another saving. A Hoover uses less hot water and less detergent too. Want more? How about smart styling? We've redesigned the Hoover washer with clean new lines.
Best of all, the Hoover name is one you know and trust for quality and dependability.
And that means you're not only sitting pretty. You're also resting easy.

Ont. Hydro Workers Start Slowdown

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Hydro employees began a work slowdown early today but there was no immediate union order to institute rotating strike action as a means of backing contract demands.

However, "the members are standing by for strike action instructions," said Andre Bekerman, publicity officer for Local 1000, Canadian Union of Public Employees.

The slowdown began automatically at 12:01 a.m. with the failure of Hydro and CUPE negotiators to reach agreement with the help of provincial government mediator W. H. Dickie.

Mr. Dickie said he would be in contact with the union negotiating committee today. Mr. Bekerman said the union "is ready to respond to any request that negotiations resume."

Under the slowdown, the 11,300 workers represented by Local 1000 are refusing to work overtime or to make themselves available for standby duties except in case of emergency.

Hydro, which began preparations weeks ago to meet a possible strike, has 1,000 managerial and supervisory personnel ready to take over operational jobs whenever and wherever union members walk off the job.

RECALL 1969 ISSUE

In the event of disruptions, Hydro can draw on the experience gained early in 1969 when the union conducted rotating strike action for five weeks to back contract demands. No major disruptions in public service occurred.

Major issues in the current dispute centre on wages, pensions, overtime premiums, vacations and company proposals to modify work schedules that the union says would be a step leading to unlimited weekend work.

Mr. Bekerman said negotiations broke off early today with management standing firm on an offer of a 12-per-cent increase over two years.

He said the union's demand was for a 21-per-cent increase. Current salaries average $146 a week.

The union has warned Hydro that emergency crews will not be made available by the union in any area where Hydro orders a lockout of union members.

Robert Hillery, assistant chief engineer for Hydro, said Wednesday that any form of strike poses a threat to the maintenance of electrical service across the province.

But Mr. Bekerman said the union's actions had been designed in such a way as to make it possible for service to continue.

'Light Knife' Tests Start on Animals

ALDERMASTON, England (AP) — British scientists say they will test a new laser surgical scalpel next month in operations on animals. But the "light knife" needs further development before it can be used for humans, they said.

The surgical laser was developed by scientists at the Aldermaston Atomic Weapons Research Establishment. It can slice through bone as well as flesh and cauterizes as it cuts to stop bleeding, surgeons said.

MOVES EASILY

In the instrument, the laser, a thin, non-diffusing beam of intense light, is projected through an articulated tube to a working tip that moves easily, in any direction. An elbow joint designed by scientist David Beach gives the tip maximum flexibility without making it too heavy or too big for an operating theatre.

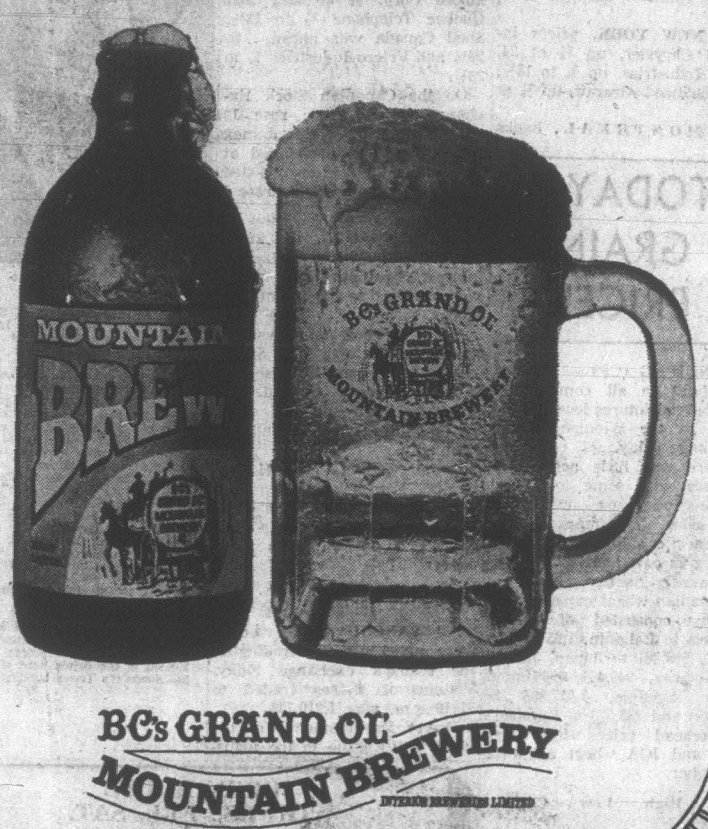

Scientific reporters at a laser exhibit in Washington last January were told that a Massachusetts company has developed a "tissue vaporising" laser which might eventually be used for surgery on cancerous tissues and the like.

80 Nations At Convention

MONTREAL (CP) — More than 500 senior academics and university administrators will discuss contemporary education problems during the fifth general conference of the International Association of Universities which opens its week-long sessions here Sunday.

About 80 countries will participate in the conference, the themes of which are international university co-operation and the university in relation to the needs of contemporary society.

Fishermen's Plight May Spark Harbor Blockade

By PETER MEDWID

Commercial fishermen "fighting for survival" will "blockade" the Inner Harbor Saturday to force Ottawa to take concrete action to save the high seas fisheries.

More than 300 trollers and net fishing boats are expected to gather at Race Rocks at noon Saturday for a mass sail-in to the Inner Harbor.

"This will not be an illegal act by a bunch of hot-headed fishermen," said fisherman John King of Victoria.

"We are individuals who are scared of losing our livelihood and we are all coming to Victoria at the same time to talk.

"We will arrive here at the same time and if there is some sort of blockade it will just be the usual milling around of boats trying to find a place to berth," he added.

But there is no doubt in most fishermens' minds that little or no traffic will be moving in the Inner Harbor.

Some fishermen have contacted the CPR and Black Ball Ferry notifying them of the sail-in and suggesting that ferry times be changed or that some sailings be cancelled.

Air taxi service firms which operate out of the harbor have also been notified and fishermen suggest that flights be cancelled because of the danger involved.

For more than a year, the fishermen have been pressing the federal government for action to protect existing fish stocks on the major fishing grounds off the West Coast from huge foreign fleets and for the federal fisheries department to make an immediate start on the building of fish hatcheries.

Last winter sports and commercial fishermen combined forces and presented a petition signed by more than 30,000 people asking Ottawa to extend Canada's fish limits to the edge of the continental shelf.

"But what has all this

Postal Situation Jittery

OTTAWA (CP) — Jittery union and government negotiators enter the final rounds of postal mediation talks today as a five-day suspension of rotating postal strikes begins.

Representatives of the federal treasury board and the 27,000-member Council of Postal Unions refused to make any comment on the talks Wednesday, but sources say both sides are feeling the pressure as the weekend approaches.

Mediator Thomas O'Connor of Toronto has said the 11-month-old contract dispute will have to be settled by this weekend or talks will be broken off.

Prime Minister Trudeau said last Friday he would allow Mr. O'Connor a week to 10 days to reach a settlement.

Mr. O'Connor, a labor relations specialist appointed to mediate the dispute last week, now will make no comment on the talks after expressing optimism when they began a week ago.

The council announced earlier this week it would suspend rotating strikes, which it has staged since May, to allow for delivery of old-age pension cheques which go in the mail today and Friday.

The postal workers, who now earn an average hourly wage of $3.06, are asking for a 58-cents-an-hour increase over two years, a 9.5-per-cent boost in each year.

The government has offered 47 cents an hour over three years, a 5.9-per-cent increase.

MASS ARRESTS followed third night of clashes between youths and police at Birmingham, Mich., Wednesday night. Youths were ordered to lay on the ground before being taken to police station; others, in right background, were searched for weapons. (AP Wirephoto).

DETROIT TEENS RAMPAGE

ROYAL OAK, Mich. (AP) — Two Detroit suburbs are under indefinite states of emergency today, following three nights of rock- and bottle-throwing rampages by teen-agers.

At least 400 youths were arrested Wednesday night after a clash with police in Royal Oak and the adjacent suburb of Birmingham, said Assistant Police Chief James Soul of Royal Oak.

That brings the three-day arrest total to more than 500. Most were arrested for curfew violation, although Soul said several arrests were made on suspicion of narcotics possession.

PARTS OF WHITE PAPER REWRITTEN

Mining Industry Gets Tax Break

Heavy Pressure Brings Results

Times News Services

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister E. J. Benson has yielded to heavy pressure from the provinces and mining companies and has rewritten parts of his tax-change proposals in favor of mines.

He announced three revisions Wednesday night to his original tax white paper of last November that would have the effect of giving mining companies an easier tax ride than first outlined.

In a letter sent to his provincial counterparts in advance of a federal-provincial conference next month, Benson proposed:

- A reduction in the federal rate of corporation tax on mining companies to 25 per cent from the 40 per cent applied to other companies. The provinces at present collect varying additional cuts of corporation tax ranging between 10 and 13 per cent.
- A broadened definition of the types of investment that would count towards calculation of tax concessions that a mining company could earn by exploring and developing resources. The so-called depletion allowances — $1 of tax-free profit for every $3 spent on development — could also be earned by building new ore-refining facilities in Canada, even when located off the minesite.
- An extension of the original proposal to accord depletion allowances to costs of buildings and equipment on

U.K. Police Raid Arms Caches

LONDON (AP)—Police made more than 100 co-ordinated raids throughout England during the night, rounding up weapons believed destined for Northern Ireland and the Middle East.

The sweep, whch began at exactly 7 p.m. Wednesday, was the biggest dragnet in British police history. More than half the targets were in the London area, but the rest were spread from Cornwall to the Scottish border.

Several men were arrested. No estimate of the amount of arms seized was available yet, but it appeared to be considerable. One room at the Croydon police station was stacked like an arsenal with machine-guns, rifles, grenades and ammunition boxes.

The sources said Scotland Yard suspects an effort is under way to stockpile weapons and ammunition to prolong the Protestant Catholic strife in Northern Ireland. It is believed that underworld gangs were trying to profit from the street fighting by supplying arms at high prices.

The operation had been in preparation for a week, ready to be set in motion by a coded teletype message from Scotland Yard's London headquarters.

CAPTURED NARWHALS COMPLETE AIR TRIP

VANCOUVER (CP) — Five narwhals, captured in the chilly waters of the Arctic Ocean by the Vancouver Public Aquarium's northern expedition Sunday, arrived in the city late Wednesday after a 19-hour flight from Milne Inlet on Baffin Island.

The narwhals, two full-grown females and three calves of undetermined sex, were put into the research pool in Vancouver's Stanley Park.

Liberal leader Dr. Pat McGeer, who accompanied the expedition, said the party took nearly 13 hours to get the whales into the aircraft for the flight down.

McGeer said the narwhals were in "excellent condition" on their arrival here. They were packed in ice and hosed down continuously during the long trip, he said.

Military Bases To Be Phased Out

OTTAWA (CP) — The defence department announced today that its bases at Rivers and Gimli in Manitoba will be phased out of military operations over the next year.

In a press statement Defence Mnister Leo Cadieux said he decided to close the bases in view of the reductions in the forces, a change in priorites and the fixed defence budget.

Affected by the closings are about 170 civilians and 300 military personnel at Rivers and 200 civilians and 800 military at Gimli.

Qualified civilians at both bases who are offered and accept positions at other defence establishments or elsewhere in the public service will be reimbursed for reasonable expenses if the new job requires moving.

Armed forces personnel will be posted to vacant positions in other units.

Rivers, about 30 miles northwest of Brandon, and Gimli, have been used primarily for air training.

TWO KILLED BY LIGHTNING

Storm Hits Quebec Area

MONTREAL (CP) — A violent storm which carved through Montreal and much of southern and eastern Quebec Wednesday killed two persons and caused extensive damage to trees, buildings and hydro lines.

Sylvie Lalonde, 11, of Montreal, and Delphis Philibert, 59, of Matane 200 miles northeast of Quebec City, were killed when struck by lightning.

TRAPPED IN CAR

Jean Wachniuc, 48, was taken to hospital with a broken leg after a freak accident which resulted in his car being washed off an overpass. His car tore 40 feet of railing off the overpass. The railing fell, damaging seven cars parked in a municipal lot below.

There were reports of damage to buildings in the Eastern Townships and a roof was reported blown off a house near Drummondville, 90 miles east of Montreal.

A live power line fell on a car near downtown Montreal, causing a fire and trapping occupants briefly. Firefighters and Hydro-Quebec workers freed them but the man driving the vehicle was treated for shock.

Downed power lines and lightning caused a succession of power failures in the central and north sections of the city and throughout the western part of Montreal Island.

ANOTHER BIRTHDAY

It's one year today since Premier Bennett's Social Credit government humiliated its opposition parties by winning 38 seats in the 55-seat legislature in what was supposed to be a close election. The New Democrats won 12 seats and the Liberals five.

Invasion of Canada Already on Paper

OTTAWA (CP) — Diplomatic correspondence justifying the NATO military occupation of its own allied countries is already deposited with U.S. ambassadors in all the NATO countries, former Greek leader Andreas Papandreou said Wednesday.

In a speech to the congress of the World Association of World Federalists, Papandreou said messages to be used by NATO when it decides to occupy a member country have been drawn up and readied for dispatch.

★ ★ ★

"What is missing is the date and the signature."

But cabinet ministers — even prime ministers — often do not know the details of the plans for invasion, he said.

He did not know of specific plans for invasion in Canada, he told reporters after the speech.

A Canadian external affairs department spokesman said in Ottawa the government has no knowledge of any military occupation plans by NATO.

Jarring to Continue Mid-East Meetings

Diplomatic sources anticipated that Jarring will continue his discussions, begun Tuesday, with Egypt's UN ambassador, Mohamed H. El-Zayat, while Tekoah is in Jerusalem for consultations with his government.

El-Zayyat conferred for 45 minutes with the UN special envoy Wednesday and was briefed on the results of Jarrisg's two meetings with Tekoah Tuesday.

The sources expect Tekoah, who left Tuesday evening, to by back in New York early next week with comprehensive instructions on Israel's position in the talks. Although he was named deputy delegate to Foreign Minister Abba Eban, Tekoah is expected to represent Israel in the early rounds of indirect talks with Egypt and Jordan.

STILL AVAILABLE

Abdul Hamid Sharaf, Jordanian ambassador to the United States, also met Jarring for a second time Wednesday, but he later returned to his post in Washington. He left word, however, that he is available for further consultations at a moment's notice.

Sharaf is standing in for Jordanian UN Ambassador Muhammad H. El-Farra, who will not be back in New York from consultations in Amman until early next month.

The sources suggested that these first few meetings under Jarring are being used to establish the basic positions of the three governments.

WOMEN'S LIBERATION WAR CRY

'Don't Cook Dinner . . . Starve a Rat Today'

NEW YORK (CP) — Shouting "Come on, sister, join us" to less-demonstrative female spectators, thousands of women paraded down Fifth Avenue Wednesday in the biggest of United States-wide demonstrations to get women "out of the kitchen, out of the house — out from under."

Some joined, while others jeered as the steady stream of placard-carrying, slogan-chanting women activists marched down the broad asphalt of one of the world's leading centres of feminine fashion.

Police estimated there were more than 20,000 marchers and 20,000 onlookers, but leaders of the demonstration for women's liberation said there were 50,000 marchers and 30,000 spectators.

The sponsors, including the National Organization of Women (NOW), called the demonstration a "strike for equality" and urged women across the country to stay home from work and to stop performing menial household chores.

There was no way to determine how many husbands ate dinner from a can Wednesday night.

Old, young, black and white women shouted for an end to male domination and the "slavery" of women. Most wore the liberation movement's emblem of a clenched fist inside the female sex symbol.

Many of them obviously not wearing bras, which the liberationists consider symbols of sexual inferiority imposed by outdated social standards, the marchers chanted:

"Free our sisters, free ourselves—power to the people."

They carried banners reading:

"I love my husband, I love those nights, I also love my daily rights."

GOT A PARADE PERMIT?

EL PASO, Tex. (UPI) — El Paso Herald Post reporter Jane Pemberton reported to work Wednesday wearing a pants suit and set out on her daily courthouse beat.

"A hippie sidled up to me and muttered in my ear: 'Bitch.'

"A lawyer came up and asked me whether I wanted the law on assault changed. It is simple assault to sock a man but aggravated assault to strike a woman.

Vietnam 'Copter Crash Kills 32 U.S. Troops

SAIGON (AP) — Thirty-two Americans were believed dead today in one of the worst helicopter crashes of the Vietnam war, but the United States command announced that U.S. battlefield casualties last week dropped to their lowest level in 4½ years.

The weekly casualty report said 52 Americans were killed in action last week and another 358 were wounded. A spokesman said it was the lowest casualty total since the week ending March 5, 1966, when 61 Americans were killed and 177 wounded.

Communist and South Vietnamese casualties also were down. The U.S. command said 1,055 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong were killed last week, the lowest in more than three years, while the Saigon government reported 247 of its troops killed, the lowest in a month, and 745 wounded.

The American report did not include the casualties in the shooting down Wednesday of the 50-foot-long 14-ton Chinook helicopter. Two bodies were recovered, seven men were injured, and 30 other Americans were listed as missing and presumed dead.

The big U.S. Army helicopter was hit by a rocket grenade as it was coming in for a landing at Fire Base Judy, in the northern part of the country. It was transporting troops being withdrawn from Kham Duc, a base 13 miles east of the Laotian border which combined troops forces abandoned Wednesday.

BLADE KILLED TWO

The chopper crashed just outside the artillery base, spraying wreckage in several directions. A rotor blade hurtled into the base, killing two soldiers stationed there and wounding five others.

There were 32 Americans aboard the twin-rotor transport, and only the co-pilot and one passenger among the Americans, an infantryman, were rescued. Both were injured. Late today no word have been received on recovery of missing bodies.

In the worst helicopter crash of the war, 41 Americans were killed on Jan. 8, 1969, when a CH-53 troop carrier crashed into a mountain. On May 7, 1969, two Americans and 38 South Vietnamese troops were killed when a CH-47 hit a tree while taking off near Khe Sanh.

The 52 Americans killed in action last week was the lowest death toll since the week ending Dec. 3, 1966, when 44 U.S. troops died on the battlefield. It was the first time since then American battlefield deaths have gone below the 60 mark.

The official summary listed a total of 43,418 U.S. troops killed in action and 287,216 wounded in Indochina since Jan. 1, 1961.

The Viet Cong and North Vietnamese casualties reported for last week raised to 667,231 the number of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops reported killed since Jan. 1, 1961.

THE WEATHER

A fast-moving system coming from the west will bring increasing cloud tonight and Friday morning.

The weather office at Victoria International Airport is predicting sunshine again for Friday afternoon.

Winds will be southwest 15 to 20 mph over the city and west 25 mph with occasional stronger gusts over the Juan de Fuca Strait.

new mine so that such costs as a major expansion of an existing mine would also qualify.

TAXES MAY BE UP

Taxes could still be heavier than at present once final tax-change legislation becomes fully effective on mines five years after enactment. However, the revisions mean that the white paper's proposed withdrawal of present tax concessions for mines — including the present three-year tax holiday for new mines and automatic tax-free depletion allowances — WOULD BE LESS SEVERE

Using rough figures that would be applicable to Ontario and Quebec — where provincial corporation tax is 12 per cent and mining tax is 15 per cent — Benson calculated that his revisions would bring maximum combined taxes on mines into line wth the rate appled to other industries.

Under his example, a mining company that pays 44½ per cent of its profits in combined federal and provincial taxes at present would have been liable for just over 39 per cent tax under the original white paper proposals — if the company qualified for no depletion allowance.

With the revsion, the same company would pay 52 per cent tax, provided the province did not raise its corporation or mining tax rates.

The tax rate would drop to just under 40 per cent if the company qualified for maximum depletion allowance.

Benson suggested the revisions were designed particularly for mining ventures that would not normally have been able to earn depletion concessions by further explorations — iron, potash, salt and the oilsands of Alberta.

INCENTIVES 'SHAMEFUL'

Max Saltsman (NDP-Waterloo), his party's leading member of the Commons committee studying the government's tax law proposals, said today Benson's new plan for mining company incentives is "shameful and cowardly."

The minister, Saltsman said at his home in Galt, Ont., in a telephone interview, "is undermining the work of the committee, and probably going against the general wishes of the committee."

Saltsman said incentives to the mining ndustry should be curtailed further, rather than extended.

"By emphasizing the resource industries, we have been short-sighted in not providing for the creation of thousands of jobs in secondary industry," he said.

Saltsman also said Benson has set "a terrible double standard" in dealing with changes in his white paper proposals.

URGING EXEMPTIONS

Since last November, Saltsman said, the opposition parties in Parliament have been urging the government to introduce higher exemptions now for personal incomes. The higher exemptions proposed in the white paper would do little more than allow existing exemptions to catch up with inflation.

But Benson has refused to deal piecemeal with the personal income tax, while now changing the tax proposals for mining companies, Saltsman said.

The NDP financial critic said he will return to Ottawa next week for committee meetings, and the committee should complete its report on the white paper within a month.

In Toronto, a mining industry spokesman said the exact implications of the proposed revisions must be examined carefully.

John Bonus, managing director of the Mining Association of Canada, said he is unsure of the results of "putting the onus on the provinces" in future tax incentive plans for the mining industry.

"I'm not too surprised about the changes. What did surprise me was the proposals that were originally written into the white paper."

He said the government now is suggesting that the base for depletion allowances for mining companies will be enlarged.

CONDEMNED PROPOSALS

The finance minister told reporters that provincial governments had been "next to unanimous" in condemning the original white-paper proposals for mines.

Referring to claims that some potential mining ventures had been stalled because of doubts about the eventual tax burden they would face, Benson mentioned development of Alberta's Athabasca oil sands and "several projects" besides.

The revised proposals were announced because "it is urgent that some decision be made in order that major developments will not be held up," he said.

Benson said he did not believe the same urgency applied to other industries, although he did not rule out similar revisions to his tax proposals before fnal legislation is presented to Parliament.

Present target for enforcement of tax-reform legslation is Jan. 1, 1972 — a year later than originally planned. Main points of the mining-tax changes would come fully into force five years after.

Troop Pullout Guaranteed, Says Agnew

SAIGON (AP) — Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew arrived in South Vietnam today for his second visit of the year and said that the success of the Cambodian venture has ensured that United States troop withdrawals will proceed as planned.

"We will go forward with it," Agnew told correspondents accompanying him on the flight across the South China Sea from Formosa. The present program calls for U.S. forces in Vietnam to be reduced to 284,000 men by next April. There now are 403,700 U.S. troops in Vietnam.

The vice-president spent most of the afternoon in conference with President Nguyen Van Thieu and Vice-President Nguyen Cao Ky, reviewing the progress of the war in South Vietnam and neighboring Cambodia. They last met when Agnew was here at the beginning of the year.

Agnew was maintaining a fast pace onhis current Asian visit, with 48 hours in South Korea, 24 in Nationalist China and now 24 or less in South Vietnam. He goes to Thailand Friday, and although he said again today he would not visit Cambodia, officials in Phnom Penh were making plans for him to stop there for lunch en route to Bangkok.

. . . HARBOR

accomplished? We tired to do it the way everyone says, and we've got nowhere. They (Ottawa) just give us the same old story of thanking us for our efforts, how nice it is to see concerned groups stepping forward and then doing nothing," said one fisherman who did not want to be identified.

King and Gerald Butterfield, of Bamfield, both said the fight for survival of the fishing industry is more than a fight by the commercial fishermen.

"It's affecting everyone in the province, the sports fishermen and the tourist industry because if you don't have the fish ... there is nothing for anyone," said Butterfield.

When notified of the mass sail-in and the likely blocking of the harbor, Larry Slaght of the Department of Transport today said that he is still studying the situation and possible dangers involved.

The fishermen have also been trying to contact federal Fisheries Minister Jack Davis in an attempt to set up a meeting on Sunday in Victoria.

A spokesman in Davis' Vancouver office said the minister is vacationing until tonight or early Friday on Bowen Island, in Howe Sound, and would not be available until then.

The fishermen stressed that the sail-in was not connected with any organization or group.

The Pacific Trollers Association after an emergency meeting in Victoria Wednesday issued a statement saying that "we are in no way involved or responsible for any illegal action on the part of any person or persons and that no person involved in such action may hold themselves out as representatives of the association."

Patient Time Reduced By Jubilee

A new system of ward monitoring has helped reduce by about one day the average time a patient stays in Royal Jubilee Hospital.

As a result more patients have been admitted.

Dr. A. C. Pickles, executive director of the hospital, said Wednesday that the average length of stay during the first seven months of this year was 9.94 days compared with 10.84 days during the same period in 1969.

Admissions were 10,960 patients compared with 9,994 during the first seven months of 1969.

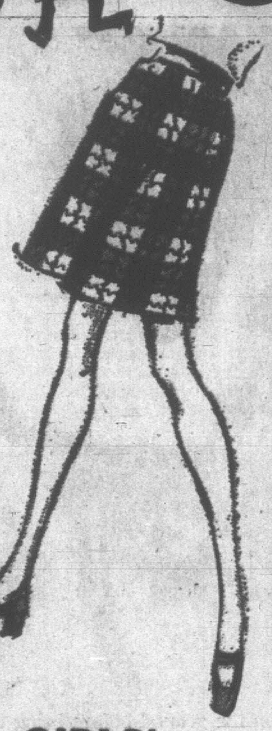

Under the new ward monitoring system, said Pickles, a member of the medical staff patrols each ward and checks to see if any patient is staying beyond the usual recovery period for that diagnosis.

'HISTORIC STEP,' SAYS DIRECTOR

Hearing on Zoning Set for Salt Spring

By ROGER STONEBANKS

A public hearing on the first zoning bylaw for Salt Spring Island is expected to be held Monday, Sept. 14 in Ganges.

This was the tentative date agreed by directors of the Capital Region District Wednesday when they gave first two readings to the bylaw.

Final readings and passage into law can only come after the public hearing, when all persons who deem themselves affected may speak.

Salt Spring director M. H. Holmes told the regional board that zoning is "a historic step after 120 years of settlement and rapid, uncontrolled development."

He said there is no alternative if the character of the island is to be maintained.

"Repeated tests of public opinion show 80 per cent in favor of land control," he said.

The zoning bylaw contains changes over a previous one, which was withdrawn, to meet obligations raised by businessmen who complained the first one would have made many promises non-conforming.

NOISE FROM BAND

The board was also told that copies of the bylaw will be made available to interested persons and maps displayed prior to the public hearings.

In other matters, the board will advise three residents of Hooson Road on Pender Island that the district has no jurisdiction over noise.

The residents complained that a Victoria man, his wife and small child have been joined by two men and a woman in a house where they practice as a band and use amplification at all hours.

Esquimalt Mayor Art Young, whose municipality has an anti-noise bylaw, said it is almost impossible to enforce and get convictions and said "if you can keep away from it you should."

The board agreed to arrange a preliminary meeting between representatives of the seven municipalities within the regional district and Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell, along with technical staff, on possible coordination of various services.

'LOGICAL VEHICLE'

Campbell wrote saying if there should be joint services the "logical vehicle to handle them" is the regional district.

The board was told by executive director Bill Long that three of the eight services suggested by Campbell for study are already under study. They are auditing procedures, garbage disposal and standardization of forms.

Campbell's other suggestions include fire and police, assessment machinery, single purchasing commisson and pooling of public works equipment.

Director Edith Gunning said adding transportation is probably a good idea and board chairman Hugh Curtis noted that public health, which the board wants regionalized, is not mentioned by Campbell.

An ice arena for Langford-Colwood-Metchosin may still have a chance — if the bond market permits.

Campbell wrote suggesting financing at a rate no greater than 9 per cent with the Juan de Fuca Centennial 71 committee to arrange the financing.

Long saw no problem to the regional district acting, in effect, as financial agent with the cost borne by residents in the affected area, in the same way as the Centennial swimming pool. A local vote would be needed.

But when asked what chance there is of 9 per cent money, he replied "if I knew that I'd retire." The board approved the steps outlined by Campbell.

175 BOATS EXPECTED FOR MAPLE BAY RACE

MAPLE BAY — Maple Bay Yacht Club members are expecting at least 175 boats from all along the Gulf of Georgia rim to participate in their annual regatta Sept. 5 and 6.

Competitions will include three different courses for 20 types of boats, from the half-mile sabot class race to the nine-mile course for curising boats.

The race for the Lipton Cup, competed for by the cruising classes only, will be run on Sept. 5.

SPEC Makes Plea For Pickup Trucks

DUNCAN — A call for more pickup trucks to help in SPEC's cleanup drive on Sunday has been made by Kurt Horn, Cowichan-Malahat branch president.

Horn said the trucks are needed to haul trash to the Royal Canadian Legion grounds at Trunk Road where North Cowichan and Duncan trucks will be parked.

He said not only have many persons promised to clean around their own homes and neighborhood, many groups such as the Cowichan Indians, sea cadets, boy scouts, girl guides, teen towners, the Cowichan Waterbuoys and managers of local supermarkets have offered assistance.

The cleanup will start at 9 a.m. and end at noon Sunday.

"I hope many SPEC members will be out because it is a SPEC-sponsored drive," stressed Horn.

Funeral Set For Native Of Island

Funeral services for Mrs. Vernice LaFortune, 57, a native and lifetime resident of Salt Spring Island, will be held at 1:30 p.m. Friday at St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church.

Mrs. LaFortune, of Fulford Harbor, died in Vancouver General Hospital Aug. 25 after a short illness.

A member of the Tahouney family, one of the first Hawaiian families to settle on Salt Spring in the 1860s, she lived all her life at the family property on Isabella Point.

She is survived by her husband Steve; sons, Allan James of Vancouver and Steven of Ganges; daughter, Cathy; sister, Mrs. Mabel Pearson; brother, Kenneth Tahouney, both of Victoria; step-children, Mrs. Frances Blake of Cobble Hill, Judy Windsor and Leon LaFortune of Duncan.

Lake Cowichan Chosen For Telesat Station

SHAWNIGAN LAKE — A two day stopover at Shawnigan Lake earlier this week was part of a week-long bicycle tour of Vancouver Island by 26 members of the Seattle Mountaineers.

The Seattle Mountaineers, consisting of 6,000 members, mainly from Washington, was formed in 1906. It includes many branches such as mountaineering, skiing, drama, hiking, photography and bicycle riding.

Mike Kirshner, 35, leader of the grup, said they arrived at Victoria aboard the Princess Marguerite Saturday. They made their first stop at Goldstream Park and moved on to Bamberton Park the next day.

After leaving Shawnigan Lake Wednesday moring the Mountaineers planned a ferry trip from Mill Bay to Brentwood Bay to camp at Macdonald Park on the Saanich Peninsula.

Kirshner said the club will visit Salt Spring Island today and then return to Macdonald Park, where the club members will stay until Saturday when they will return to Seattle.

Psychiatric Test Ordered In Attempted Murder Count

PORT ALBERNI — A psychiatric examination has been ordered for Allen Wayne Dick of Port Alberni, charged with attempted murder of a peace officer.

He appeared in provincial court Monday.

The charge arose after a shooting incident on No. 2 Indian reserve, just outside Port Alberni, Friday afternoon.

A bullet hit Const. Paul Summer's cap after it had passed through the windshield of the police car.

Other shots were fired and Const. W. A. Van Der Braak was wounded in the cheek and Const. Lynn Kraeling was injured in the foot. Both were treated at West Coast Hospital. Hospital.

Lake Attracts Seattle Bicyclists

LAKE COWICHAN — One of two heavy-route stations for Telesat Canada will be situated at Lake Cowichan, it was learned here.

The station, which will use three spacecraft, two orbiting and a third held in reserve, will provide additional capacity for television, telephone and the existing heavy east-west traffic routes.

The orbiting of telesat's first satelite, Anik 1, will be completed in 1972.

Telesat Canada has been authorized to open negotiations with Hughes Aircraft Co. of California to build the spacecraft. Two Canadian companies, Northern Electric Co., and Spar Aerospace products Ltd., will be major subcontractors.

Inquest Tonight In Girl's Death

An inquest will begin at 7 tonight into the death of a four-year-old girl Tuesday in a traffic accident on the West Coast Road near Sooke.

Rita Michelle Burnier died when the car she was riding in flipped over.

The inquest will be held by Coroner Eugene Murphy in the former Legion Hall on Eustance Road.

And leaves you sitting pretty.
A faster washer means a shorter washday. Which leaves you more time for other things. And that's what a Hoover washer is all about.
The secret? Hoover's unique side-mounted pulsator that surges suds and water through clothes. It's very gentle, because nothing touches your clothes except soap and water. And it's very efficient — just four minutes to get a full wash load really clean. What's more, while the pulsator is thoroughly washing one load of laundry, the spin dryer is thoroughly rinsing and spin-drying another load. Two wash loads. Two efficient jobs. Half the washing time. One amazing washer.
To add to the efficiency, there's a specially-designed circulating lint filter that comes clean in seconds.
And if speed and efficiency aren't enough, Hoover also offers convenience. No special plumbing or wiring are required; just roll your Hoover washer to the sink, slip on the hose, and start washing. By the way, you'll notice another saving. A Hoover uses less hot water and less detergent too. Want more? How about smart styling? We've redesigned the Hoover washer with clean new lines.
Best of all, the Hoover name is one you know and trust for quality and dependability.

Basil Frazier Extends Lead

VANCOUVER (CP) — Leading jockey Basil Frazier extended his lead Wednesday with two wins and two seconds at Exhibition Park and set up a quinella of $152.90 aboard Peace River in the eighth race.

Peace River, a $9.30 winner, was followed by Beau Bunnie. Frazier also won on Wise Pride in the fifth, a 1⅛-mile endurance test.

Expos Get Tax Bonanza On Team-Forming Cost

OTTAWA (CP) — The revenue department ruled Wednesday that part of the costs of the Montreal Expos baseball club in acquiring players last year for the new team will be permitted to be spread over a number of years for tax purposes.

Normally, the costs involved in buying player contracts ,or the revenues from the sale of contracts, is counted as a straight business expense or income for each year.

When the Expos were organized last year, the new club invested heavily in contracts.

Revenue Minister Jean-Pierre Cote issued a statement saying the cost "ascertainable as being properly applicable to players' contracts, as distinct from the franchise and related rights," would be allowed to be written off against current income "over the estimated useful playing life of the players."

Mr. Cote noted in his statement that the revenue department's ruling will apply as general policy in dealing with professional sports clubs. Secrecy provisions of the Income Tax Act prevent the government from discussing the specific circumstances of any individual taxpayer, whether a person, a corporation, or—as in this case—a baseball club.

ACQUIRED WHOLE TEAM

The department has always regarded the outlay for players contracts, and the income from their sale, as a normal business expense and income for a professional club because "part of the operations of a club is to acquire, develop and trade players to the end of producing the best team possible, and so to earn more income."

The Expos, however, acquired a whole team by contract purchase last year, and normally would not be able to charge any of that expense against this year's income.

The statement said that since there is no specific provision covering this in the Income Tax Act, the government has to determine what is good accounting and business practice in such circumstances.

Mr. Cote's statement said:

"Recognizing that the individual players making up the acquisition have a limited playing life, it is our view that the cost ascertainable as being properly applicable to players' contracts, as distinct from the franchise and related rights, should be allowed to be written off over the estimated useful playing life of the players.

DRESS RESTRICTION WITHDRAWN

Welfare Accepts the Kooky

Phil Gaglardi's welfare department has withdrawn a 1968 directive requiring welfare applicants to be of "conventional dress and appearance."

However, Gaglardi said Wednesday that long-haired men seeking welfare still will have to agree to a haircut if a prospective employer demands it.

The 1968 directive, attacked by the B.C. Civil Liberties Association, has been superseded by a new Department of Rehabilitation and Social Improvement assessment form.

This form doesn't mention dress or appearance.

But it does ask applicants some questions that have been criticized, such as whether they need counselling for financial, marital, drinking or drug problems.

Gaglardi said these questions will remain, adding: "How can you help people if you can't find out their problems?"

The new assessment form itself has been widely criticized for prying into the lives of welfare applicants in areas that are not the government's business.

St. Joseph's Switch Labelled 'Shocking'

The extended care facilities which were to be added to St. Joseph's Hospital will be built elsewhere and the chairman of the society that will soon administer St. Joseph's says this is "shocking."

The Capital Regional Hospital District Board decided unanimously Wednesday to look for cheaper sites as an alternative.

But Alex Wood, chairman of the Southern Vancouver Island Hospital Society, said this decision is contrary to all technical recommendations for area extended care needs.

Mayor Arthur Young of Esquimalt told the regional body at its Wednesday meeting that land cost is his major objection to building the extended care hospital on St. Ann's Academy land adjoining St. Joseph's.

This would cost about $1.6 million, he said, and added to this would be for relocation of services and $100,000 for demolition of St. Ann's buildings.

Wood called this statement a "sad misrepresentation of fact." The $1.6 million referred to the cost of land needed for all St. Joseph's expansion, not just for land to accommodate the extended care wing,

He said the actual cost to taxpayers for extended care facilities would be about $150,000. The regional board is "out by a factor of 10."

The board also reaffirmed unanimously an earlier decision that when public funds are involved in the purchase of land the title of the property be held in the name of the Capital Regional Hospital District.

WOOD

The decisions made at an afternoon meeting were designed to get action on expansion plans after months of argument, confusion and delay.

On top of this, Young added, the board is expected not to own the land.

The problems that have delayed construction at St. Joseph's since last year include a disagreement between the city of Victoria and Health Minister Ralph Loffmark on future road patterns in the hospital vicinity. Another is the disagreement between the St. Joseph's hospital board and the regional hospital board on which should hold the title to the St. Ann's property.

Added to this was the question whether St. Joseph's could build the 150-bed extended care facilities within the provincial government's cost guidelines.

●

Royal Jubilee Hospital found earlier in the year that it could not construct the facilities within the guidelines and the regional hospital district asked St. Joseph's to study the possibilities of building the 150 beds there.

District chairman J. B. Cumming, mayor of North Saanich, said at Wednesday's meeting another pertinent factor had arisen since the executive committee last week.

Dr. Peter Banks, chief of staff at St. Joseph's, told the hospital advisory committee meeting Aug. 19, after what Cumming termed strong discussion, that the hospital could build the facilities within the guidelines.

"He personally undertook to provide proof within one month," Cumming added.

●

Board member Frances Elford, Mayor of Oak Bay, said by moving the facilities to a less expensive site 225 beds instead of 150 beds could be provided for $1 million less.

She said a centre of this size could be a "viable unit" by itself and draw medical staff wherever it was located.

Ald. Clyde Savage of Victoria said he had some doubts as to public reaction to a study for another location that could take six months.

But Mayor Hugh Curtis of Saanich said this had not been the board's experience with other hospitals.

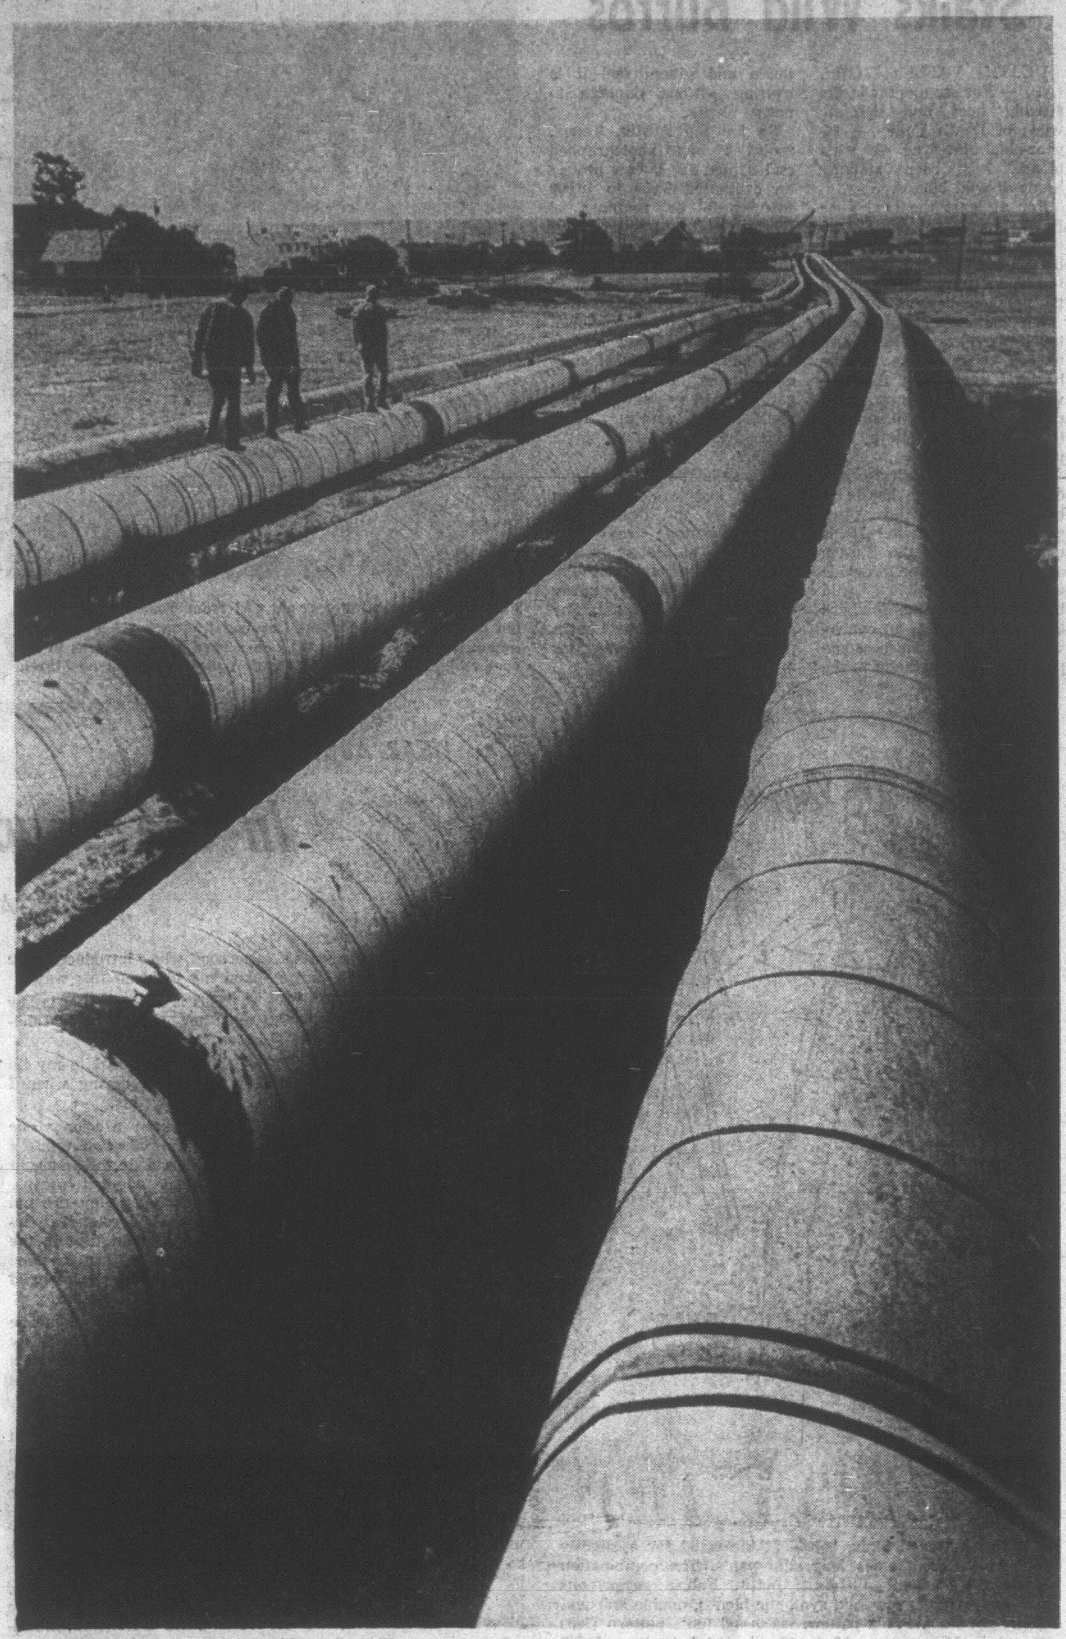

Earlier in the meeting, the board moved to send a letter to Gorge Road Hospital for submitting working drawings for 300 extended care beds to the provincial government Tuesday, six days before the end-of-the-month deadline.

"All parties would be better off," Young said when proposing the study for an alternative site.

The Sisters of St. Ann, owners of the academy, could get the price they wanted from another purchaser, he said, and the city would get taxes from the buyer.

As well, the city could revert to its original traffic plan for the area and not have to spend money removing services for hospital expansion.

The provincial government, Young said, would save several hundered thousand dollars and the regional hospital district would get the best dollar value which would be more acceptable to the public.

NEW OUTFALL sewer pipes are being assembled in Esquimalt at Macaulay Point ready to be floated into position Sept. 8. The 7,200 feet of 36-inch pipe will be welded into single length and lowered 200 feet to the ocean floor. New outfall and trunk line will serve Esquimalt and parts of Victoria and Saanich. Existing outfall discharges just off the shore. (Bill Halkett Photo).

Church Secretary Dies at 94

Mrs. Frances Bullen, 94, the oldest and longest serving church secretary in Victoria, died in Royal Jubilee Hospital this morning.

Mrs. Bullen served as secretary-treasurer for Lake Hill, Mission at Falmouth and Savannah for 44 years. She resigned last January.

As well as handling her duties as mission secretary and bookkeeper she taught Sunday school until the age of 75.

It was Frank Bullen who built the present mission structure in 1937.

Mrs. Bullen had been in hospital since May 27.

Hospital Plan Taken for Study

The Capital Regional Hospital District received for study Wednesday the $14.3 million long-term development proposal for Royal Jubilee Hospital with a recommendation for approval in principle from the district's executive committee.

The master plan, prepared by Vancouver architects Thompson, Berwick, Pratt and Partners, calls for expansion and renovations about $500,000 below the estimate of consultant Harvey Agnew in his survey of the region's hospital needs completed two years ago.

Jubilee has 521 acute care beds but under the plan this would increase to 660 beds. A total of 177 new beds would be created but with some old beds disappearing in the changes the net gain would be 139 beds.

The bulk of the spending, however, would go to update and expand facilities for ambulatory care, out-patient care, diagnostic services and day-care surgery and over the years the main entrances would shift from the south to the north of the complex.

★ ★ ★

Dr. A. C. Pickles, the hospital's executive director, has said the plan is a total concept of what the Jubilee should be moving towards and not a cut-and-dried affair.

If the plan is completed, it would bring the hospital up to the point Agnew recommended in order to carry its share of the hospital load predicted for 1986.

BOARD TO BUY 30 ACRES

The Capital Regional District agreed Wednesday to purchase 30 acres west of Durrance Lake as part of its regional parks program.

The purchase is subject to approval by the provincial recreation and conservation department which contributes a one-third grant towards all regional parks.

The land would be part of the regional parks system extending from McKenzie Bight on Saanich Inlet to, ultimately, Heal's rifle range when and if the government declares it surplus and south to Mount Work, said Tony Roberts, the district's planning director.

'EXCITING SUGGESTION'

MP Backs Park for Charlottes

David Anderson, MP for Esquimalt-Saanich said today he supports a proposal that a national park be created in the Queen Charlotte Islands with funds from the federal government's $10 million gift for B.C.'s 1971 centennial.

"I think it is an exciting suggestion," he said. "The Queen Charlotte Islands have the longest beaches in the province and in the near future will attract thousands of visitors."

Tom Taylor, president of the Federation of B.C. Naturalists, and former head of the botany department at the University of British Columbia, made the suggestion Wednesday.

Anderson said by acting now the problem of paying high prices to acquire privately owned land would be avoided.

"If we wait to create a park we will be faced with the same problem as the Long Beach national park where both provincial and federal governments are buying back an alienated property at high costs."

He estimated it would cost about $6.5 million to acquire privately-owned property at Long Beach where some expensive homes have been built. If governments had acted 10 years ago, the price would have been half, and 20 years ago, almost nothing.

It would take about $3 million of the $10 million fund to establish a park on the islands, but he felt costs would steadily rise in the next few years if no action was taken now to assemble the land.

People are already seeking to buy land there, he said.

RUNWAY TENDER AWARDED

Step Taken to Jet Age

Construction of a 1,000-foot extension to allow jets to land on the main runway at Victoria International Airport will start immediately, manager Jack Knowland said today.

A contract has been awarded to McPhail's Construction Co. Ltd., Vancouver, one of three companies to bid on the project, which has been delayed about two years.

Work will include modification of the instrument landing approach system. The improvements will enable Air Canada DC-9 jets to make Victoria a scheduled stop.

Cost of the job was estimated at $500,000.

Other bidders were Columbia Bitulithic and Dawson Construction, also of Vancouver.

Arthur Mayse...

ONE MORNING BEFORE this week is done, the 48-foot troller Sea Beam will take on six or seven tons of flake ice at Oakland Industries dock near Johnson Street bridge. Around noon, grubbed up and fueled up, she will ease out to Juan de Fuca Strait.

A run of eight to 10 hours will fetch her to the Pacific gateway. But instead of rounding Carmanah Point on a course for Canadian fishing grounds, she will head southwest around Washington State's Cape Flattery.

Sea Beam — Dick Williams her master and Allan Meadows her deckhand — will anchor for the night off Destruction Island. At crack of dawn, her crew will be stirring a quick mug of coffee, then they'll take the troller out toward the 40-fathom line, and get her fishing gear overside.

If their luck is in, they will catch coho salmon released as fingerlings from American hatcheries into American waters.

In case you're wondering at this point why Sea Beam and the rest of Canada's 600-unit fleet of ice-packing trollers should have forsaken our own West Coast banks this season, the answer given me is both blunt and grim.

No fish.

The banks off Vancouver Island and north along have failed to produce.

So the Canadian fleet is working the reach of Continental Shelf that extends seaward from Washington and Oregon, and its fishermen are mad as hornets about a situation which they blame directly on Ottawa.

It isn't run-of-the-mill fishermen's grumbling. These are men who see their livelihood threatened, and they are deep-down angry. There's talk in the fleet of a next-season's boycott of federally issued commercial fishing licences.

Why should we lay out for licences, fishermen are asking, when we can't make a catch in Canadian waters?

I learned of this projected protest from Allan Meadows, who depends on commercial trolling to pay his way through University of Victoria.

Meadows, who lives with his parents at 4960 Georgia Park Terrace, says that troller men, and fishermen generally, have two main areas of concern.

One is the yearly encroachment by Russian net fishermen on grounds which they believe should be brought under Canadian fisheries control.

For this they blame Mitchell Sharp of External Affairs much more than Fisheries Minister Jack Davis. They feel that Sharp has waffled when he should have pressed strongly for a Russian remove to the blue water beyond our sector of Continental Shelf.

Their second contention is that federal fisheries, through lack of such replacement efforts as Oregon and Washington have made over many years, has permitted a once-rich natural resource "to be literally shot to hell."

They want hatcheries, not merely one or two as a token gesture, but as part of a broad and continuing salmon restoration program. And they demand stream protection with teeth in it.

I asked Meadows how troller men are reacting to a this-week claim by a fisheries department survey crew that Russian trawlers have been taking large quantities of hake, but no salmon or herring.

The answer was explicit.

"The 'G. B. Read' made a good effort," Meadows said, "but fishermen feel it wasn't at all conclusive. The herring had already been fished by the Russians when the Read went out: she should have been there a month earlier. When it comes to proving anything about Russian salmon catches, she hadn't a chance. Read hasn't the speed, the nets or the manpower. She didn't fish 24 hours a day as the Russians do. And she isn't a stern trawler."

Meanwhile, the season in which Canadian trollers couldn't make a stake in Canadian waters is on the down-slope. Sea Beam, near-victim of a Russian ramming earlier this summer, will make one or possibly two more trips.

Then, along with the rest of a multi-million dollar ice-packing fleet, she will tie up for the winter.

Math Prof Counts On History

A mathematics professor will step briefly out of his subject field to teach a history course at Simon Fraser University this fall.

The history of mathematics, that is.

Dr. J. L. Berggren explained that the course, the only one of its kind in the province, will trace the story of mathematics from the Babylonian Empire to the 18th century.

"There is a heavy demand for this kind of course from both arts and science students," Berggren said, adding that studying the mathematics of a period tends to shed new light on its culture.

In addition to regular lectures, Berggren intends bringing in guest lecturers — both historians and philosophers — from Simon Fraser and other campuses.

KING AND BUTTERFIELD
. . . only way out is to fight

Fishermen's Plight May Spark Harbor Blockade

By PETER MEDWID

Commercial fishermen "fighting for survival" will "blockade" the Inner Harbor Saturday to force Ottawa to take concrete action to save the high seas fisheries.

More than 300 trollers and net fishing boats are expected to gather at Race Rocks at noon Saturday for a mass sail-in to the Inner Harbor.

"This will not be an illegal act by a bunch of hot-headed fishermen," said fisherman John King of Victoria.

"We are individuals who are scared of losing our livelihood and we are all coming to Victoria at the same time to talk.

"We will arrive here at the same time and if there is some sort of blockade it will just be the usual milling around of boats trying to find a place to berth," he added.

But there is no doubt in most fishermens' minds that little or no traffic will be moving in the Inner Harbor.

Some fishermen have contacted the CPR and Black Ball Ferry, notifying them of the sail-in and suggesting that ferry times be changed or that some sailings be cancelled.

Air taxi service firms which operate out of the harbor have also been notified and fishermen suggest that flights be cancelled because of the danger involved.

For more than a year, the fishermen have been pressing the federal government for action to protect existing fish stocks on the major fishing grounds off the West Coast from huge foreign fleets and for the federal fisheries department to make an immediate start on the building of fish hatcheries.

Last winter sports and commercial fishermen combined forces and presented a petition signed by more than 30,000 people asking Ottawa to extend Canada's fish limits to the edge of the continental shelf.

"But what has all this

Postal Situation Jittery

OTTAWA (CP) — Jittery union and government negotiators enter the final rounds of postal mediation talks today as a five-day suspension of rotating postal strikes begins.

Representatives of the federal treasury board and the 27,000-member Council of Postal Unions refused to make any comment on the talks Wednesday, but sources say both sides are feeling the pressure as the weekend approaches.

Mediator Thomas O'Connor of Toronto has said the 11-month-old contract dispute will have to be settled by this weekend or talks will be broken off.

Prime Minister Trudeau said last Friday he would allow Mr. O'Connor a week to 10 days to reach a settlement.

Mr. O'Connor, a labor relations specialist appointed to mediate the dispute last week, now will make no comment on the talks after expressing optimism when they began a week ago.

The council announced earlier this week it would suspend rotating strikes, which it has staged since May, to allow for delivery of old-age pension cheques which go in the mail today and Friday.

The postal workers, who now earn an average hourly wage of $3.06, are asking for a 58-cents-an-hour increase over two years, a 9.5-per-cent boost in each year.

The government has offered 47 cents an hour over three years, a 5.9-per-cent increase.

MASS ARRESTS followed third night of clashes between youths and police at Birmingham, Mich., Wednesday night. Youths were ordered to lie on the ground before being taken to police station; others, in right background, were searched for weapons. (AP Wirephoto).

DETROIT TEENS RAMPAGE

ROYAL OAK, Mich. (AP) — Two Detroit suburbs are under indefinite states of emergency today, following three nights of rock- and bottle-throwing rampages by teen-agers.

At least 400 youths were arrested Wednesday night after a clash with police in Royal Oak and the adjacent suburb of Birmingham, said Assistant Police Chief James Soul of Royal Oak.

That brings the three-day arrest total to more than 500. Most were arrested for curfew violation, although Soul said several arrests were made on suspicion of narcotics possession.

TWO KILLED BY LIGHTNING

Storm Hits Quebec Area

MONTREAL (CP) — A violent storm which carved through Montreal and much of southern and eastern Quebec Wednesday killed two persons and caused extensive damage to trees, buildings and hydro lines.

Sylvie Lalonde, 11, of Montreal, and Delphis Philibert, 59, of Matane 200 miles northeast of Quebec City, were killed when struck by lightning.

TRAPPED IN CAR

Jean Wachniuc, 48, was taken to hospital with a broken leg after a freak accident which resulted in his car being washed off an overpass. His car tore 40 feet of railing off the overpass. The railing fell, damaging seven cars parked in a municipal lot below.

There were reports of damage to buildings in the Eastern Townships and a roof was reported blown off a house near Drummondville, 90 miles east of Montreal.

A live power line fell on a car near downtown Montreal, causing a fire and trapping occupants briefly. Firefighters and Hydro-Quebec workers freed them but the man driving the vehicle was treated for shock.

Downed power lines and lightning caused a succession of power failures in the central and north sections of the city and throughout the western part of Montreal Island.

ANOTHER BIRTHDAY

It's one year today since Premier Bennett's Social Credit government humiliated its opposition parties by winning 38 seats in the 55-seat legislature in what was supposed to be a close election. The New Democrats won 12 seats and the Liberals five.

Invasion of Canada Already on Paper?

OTTAWA (CP) — Diplomatic correspondence justifying the NATO military occupation of its own allied countries is already deposited with U.S. ambassadors in all the NATO countries, former Greek leader Andreas Papandreou said Wednesday.

In a speech to the congress of the World Association of World Federalists, Papandreou said messages to be used by NATO when it decides to occupy a member country have been drawn up and readied for dispatch.

"What is missing is the date and the signature."

But cabinet ministers — even prime ministers — often do not know the details of the plans for invasion, he said.

He did not know of specific plans for invasion in Canada, he told reporters after the speech.

A Canadian external affairs department spokesman said in Ottawa the government has no knowledge of any military occupation plans by NATO.

PARTS OF WHITE PAPER REWRITTEN

Mining Industry Gets Tax Break

Heavy Pressure Brings Results

Times News Services

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister E. J. Benson has yielded to heavy pressure from the provinces and mining companies and has rewritten parts of his tax-change proposals in favor of mines.

He announced three revisions Wednesday night to his original tax white paper of last November that would have the effect of giving mining companies an easier tax ride than first outlined.

In a letter sent to his provincial counterparts in advance of a federal-provincial conference next month, Benson proposed:

● A reduction in the federal rate of corporation tax on mining companies to 25 per cent from the 40 per cent applied to other companies. The provinces at present collect varying additional cuts of corporation tax ranging between 10 and 13 per cent.

● A broadened definition of the types of investment that would count towards calculation of tax concessions that a mining company could earn by exploring and developing resources. The so-called depletion allowances — $1 of tax-free profit for every $3 spent on development — could also be earned by building new ore-refining facilities in Canada, even when located off the minesite.

● An extension of the original proposal to accord depletion allowances to costs of buildings and equipment on

U.K. Police Raid Arms Caches

LONDON (AP)—Police made more than 100 co-ordinated raids throughout England during the night, rounding up weapons believed destined for Northern Ireland and the Middle East.

The sweep, which began at exactly 7 p.m. Wednesday, was the biggest dragnet in British police history. More than half the targets were in the London area, but the rest were spread from Cornwall to the Scottish border.

Several men were arrested. No estimate of the amount of arms seized was available yet, but it appeared to be considerable. One room at the Croydon police station was stacked like an arsenal with machine-guns, rifles, grenades and ammunition boxes.

The sources said Scotland Yard suspects an effort is under way to stockpile weapons and ammunition to prolong the Protestant-Catholic strife in Northern Ireland. It is believed that underworld gangs were trying to profit from the street fighting by supplying arms at high prices.

The operation had been in preparation for a week, ready to be set in motion by a coded teletype message from Scotland Yard's London headquarters.

CAPTURED NARWHALS COMPLETE AIR TRIP

VANCOUVER (CP) — Five narwhals, captured in the chilly waters of the Arctic Ocean by the Vancouver Public Aquarium's northern expedition Sunday, arrived in the city late Wednesday after a 19-hour flight from Milne Inlet on Baffin Island.

The narwhals, two full-grown females and three calves of undetermined sex, were put into the research pool in Vancouver's Stanley Park.

Liberal leader Dr. Pat McGeer, who accompanied the expedition, said the party took nearly 13 hours to get the whales into the aircraft for the flight down.

McGeer said the narwhals were in "excellent condition" on their arrival here. They were packed in ice and hosed down continuously during the long trip, he said.

Military Bases To Be Phased Out

OTTAWA (CP) — The defence department announced today that its bases at Rivers and Gimli in Manitoba will be phased out of military operations over the next year.

In a press statement, Defence Mnister Leo Cadieux said he decided to close the bases in view of the reductions in the forces, a change in priorities and the fixed defence budget.

Affected by the closings are about 170 civilians and 300 military personnel at Rivers and 200 civilians and 800 military at Gimli.

Qualified civilians at both bases who are offered and accept positions at other defence establishments or elsewhere in the public service will be reimbursed for reasonable expenses if the new job requires moving.

Armed forces personnel will be posted to vacant positions in other units.

Jarring to Continue Mid-East Meetings

Diplomatic sources anticipated that Jarring will continue his discussions, begun Tuesday, with Egypt's UN ambassador, Mohamed H. El-Zayat, while Tekoah is in Jerusalem for consultations with his government.

El-Zayyat conferred for 45 minutes with the UN special envoy Wednesday and was briefed on the results of Jarring's two meetings with Tekoah Tuesday.

The sources expect Tekoah, who left Tuesday evening, to be back in New York early next week with comprehensive instructions on Israel's position in the talks. Although he was named deputy delegate to Foreign Minister Abba Eban, Tekoah is expected to represent Israel in the early rounds of indirect talks with Egypt and Jordan.

STILL AVAILABLE

Abdul Hamid Sharaf, Jordanian ambassador to the United States, also met Jarring for a second time Wednesday, but he later returned to his post in Washington. He left word, however, that he is available for further consultations at a moment's notice.

Sharaf is standing in for Jordanian UN Ambassador Muhammad H. El-Farra, who will not be back in New York from consultations in Amman until early next month.

The sources suggested that these first few meetings under Jarring are being used to establish the basic positions of the three governments.

WOMEN'S LIBERATION WAR CRY

NEW YORK (CP) — Shouting "Come on, sister, join us" to less-demonstrative female spectators, thousands of women paraded down Fifth Avenue Wednesday in the biggest of United States-wide demonstrations to get women "out of the kitchen, out of the house — out from under."

Some joined, while others jeered as the steady stream of placard-carrying, slogan-chanting women activists marched down the broad asphalt of one of the world's leading centres of feminine fashion.

Police estimated there were more than 20,000 marchers and 20,000 onlookers, but leaders of the demonstration for women's liberation said there were 50,000 marchers and 30,000 spectators.

The sponsors, including the National Organization of Women (NOW), called the demonstration a "strike for equality" and urged women across the country to stay home from work and to stop performing menial household chores.

There was no way to determine how many husbands ate dinner from a can Wednesday night.

Old, young, black and white women shouted for an end to male domination and the "slavery" of women. Most wore the liberation movement's emblem of a clenched fist inside the female sex symbol.

Many of them obviously not wearing bras, which the liberationists consider symbols of sexual inferiority imposed by outdated social standards, the marchers chanted:

"Free our sisters, free ourselves—power to the people."

They carried banners reading:

"Death to the male power structure."

"I love my husband, I love those nights, I also love my daily rights."

GOT A PARADE PERMIT?

EL PASO, Tex. (UPI) — El Paso Herald Post reporter Jane Pemberton reported to work Wednesday wearing a pants suit and set out on her daily courthouse beat.

"A hippie sidled up to me and muttered in my ear: 'Bitch.'

"A lawyer came up and asked me whether I wanted the law on assault changed. It is simple assault to sock a man but aggravated assault to strike a woman.

"A police captain asked me whether I had a parade permit."
